Bargaining Appeal Made To Farmers

About 600 farmers were urged to apply the same principles practiced by business, industry and labor to establish price control for their products.

"This can only be done through collective bargaining," Oran Lee Staley, Rea, president of the National Farmers Organization, said. Staley spoke at an NFO organizational meeting Monday night at the armory.

He explained that he flew here from Iowa for three main purposes: To discuss the NFO program and answer questions about it, to discuss agriculture and the agriculture industry, and to ask the farmers to join the NFO.

Staley related that the farmers support is essential to the NFO effort because only with strength can collective bargaining be effective.

The NFO started from a discussion between an Iowa farmer and a feed dealer about the pricing system for agricultural products. Soon a small group was formed and they decided first in 1955, to send telegrams to Washington, D.C., and later to send representatives to lobby.

They learned that the Capper-Volstead Act of Feb. 18, 1922, authorized a group to legally set up an organization to represent the farmers and bargain collectively on their behalf, Staley said.

The group organized for one purpose, Staley continued, to do what it could for equitable prices for farm products.

The reason why prices on farm products "have not been equitable is that farmers are the only segment of an organized economy who have not organized," Staley related.

Farmers have gone to the market and asked processors what they will give.

Other segments of the economy such as the steel and automobile industries set their price and others follow suit, he continued.

"We have seen the small groceries virtually replaced by chain stores that deal in tremendous volume," Staley said. "This volume is not necessarily bad. But when they deal in volume, they have a tremendous effect on prices."

The law of supply and demand operates well, only when there is equal strength on both sides, he continued.

The NFO has made progress to achieve enough power so it can put the price on farm products as surely as manufacturers price clothing and shoes.

Referring to a recent article in the Wall Street Journal, Staley said, a corporate type of agriculture is just over the hill.

"Do you know why?" he asked. "Because of low farm income.

"You and I know that we cannot expect the young farmers today to stay on the farm like we did. They will only stay if they have equal opportunity to earn an equitable return on their investment compared to other walks of life. The average age of farmers today is 55-58."

Larger farm units are needed today to pay for the equipment to operate efficiently, he said.

Investment capital required to start an operation is getting larger and larger to the point where eventually the individual farmer will not be able to take over," Staley said.

"Large farmers also suffer from the present pricing system. They have more to lose.

"Ten thousand acre units are appearing in Texas, Missouri, Arkansas and the Dakotas. And farmers are talking more about leasing in 10,000 acre units."

Turning to the membership agreement, which had been circulated to those attending, Staley asked: "What does it say?"

"It says you sign the NFO as a bargaining unit for all products produced on your farms," Staley said. "It is not the aim to raise the price of a single product, because then diversified farmers will switch their operation, produce too much and deflate the price.

"We hope to bring the prices up in balance to keep diversified farmers from switching."

The membership agreement is for a three-year period for continuity reasons. The member agrees to pay $25 per year or one per cent of his gross to the NFO, if a marketing contract is consummated by the NFO covering a members commodity.

Until a marketing contract is effected, the member is free to sell as he wishes, Staley explained.

To form a marketing area contract would require two-thirds approval of member farmers. Negotiations for a volume contract would first be conducted by NFO leadership and seven zone leaders in a particular marketing area. Marketing areas are made up of 25 to 50 neighboring counties. Once the price is negotiated with a large processor, the local county organizations are asked to call a meeting, notify each member and vote on the contract.

"Collective bargaining, simply, means working together to meet processors and buyers needs on a volume basis," Staley said.

"There is only one reason farmers are receiving the low prices they are getting today. It is because enough farmers are willing to take it.

"This can be done by putting the crop together as collective farmers, putting it on the market in volume at the price you want."

Staley explained the organization's policy of holding actions.

The NFO is faced with an anti-trust suit. In effect, the suit is more directly accusing us of asking non-members to support in a previous holding action, he said. Staley said he was confident that the NFO would win the suit.

The organization has always opposed violations of law and stated its policy against violence, Staley said. Nothing has ever been won in the United States through force and intimidation, he continued.

When a holding action is voted by the NFO board, members are asked to keep their products from the market to effect a price rise. But co-operation is purely voluntary Staley said.

Rain Douses Kennedy Grave Eternal Flame

The torch was relighted by hand when an automatic spark igniter malfunctioned because of a flooded transformer Sunday.

Red Chinese Clash With London Police

LONDON (AP) — Members of Red China's diplomatic mission and police fought bloody battles today outside the legation in the heart of London, bringing an angry diplomatic exchange.

Several policemen and Chinese were injured in two clashes. The Chinese brandished sticks, axes and threw bottles. One flashed a revolver but it was not fired. The police fought back with night sticks.

The first clash came when police stepped in to stop about 10 Britons and 15 Chinese who were punching and kicking one another after an exchange of words. A crowd of about 150 watched.

The second clash came as China's charge d'affaires returned from lodging a protest at the Foreign Office against the first incident.

About 40 policemen and Chinese were involved in a seething mass of bodies in a tiny Mews behind the legation.

The fighting started when the Chinese barred the way of a police car and refused to move. The police pushed them away and immediately a crowd of Chinese rushed out of the mission's headquarters swinging bats and axes and hurling bottles and ash can covers.

One policeman was led away with blood streaming from a head wound. A Chinese, his face bloodied, was dragged by police along the cobblestones.

The police picked up the ash can covers and used them as shields against a barrage of milk bottles thrown at them.

A woman who lives in an upstairs apartment in the same mews joined in the fighting by throwing flower pots at the Chinese.

A blonde policewoman who got caught up in the fighting said: "It was terrifying. I never thought I would see anything like this in Britain."

When the fighting died down ambulances drove up to the legation and the attendants were allowed to carry out on stretchers three Chinese — their heads wrapped in bandages.

A crowd of 300 began to converge on the legation but were held back by police.

Some shouts came from the crowd, "Smash Communism," "Mao is a pig!" and "Go back to China."

After the first outburst before noon, Chinese Charge d'affaires Shen Ping called at the Foreign Office and angrily accused the British police of beating up members of his staff.

Viet Cong Election Plot

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. and South Vietnamese sources say the Viet Cong have plotted a countrywide campaign to sabotage the presidential elections Sunday with increased military attacks, terrorism and propaganda.

The sources said information on the Communist plans came from captured documents, intelligence reports and questioning of guerrillas taken prisoner.

Over the weekend the Communists launched a series of mortar, rocket and artillery attacks from Quang Tri Province below the demilitarized zone to the Mekong delta in the south. There also has been a sharp increase in terrorist kidnapings, murders and sabotage.

The sources said one captured document called for Communist forces in the northern city of Da Nang to "smash the buffoonery of the election." It said that if the elections were a failure, this would provide "momentum to force a new political crisis."

Governors Ask More Guard Riot Training

OSAGE BEACH, Mo. (AP) -- The Midwestern Governors' Conference called today for additional training guidance and techniques for the National Guard to deal with civil disorder.

In a resolution the conference said the Department of Defense 32-hour crash training program is a step in the right direction but is inadequate.

"The problems which have been confronted in the recent violent domestic upheavals throughout the nation," the resolution said, "represent new dimensions in the area of civil disturbances never before experienced by military forces of this country."

In another resolution the governors pointed out that the first responsibility for maintaining law and order belongs to state and local government.

The governors said the states should be given a bigger say in the development of social and economic programs "designed to eliminate the causes of discontent, resentment and discrimination by reason of race or economic status. State governments must be given authority in the inception and development of social and economic programs in relationship to obligations."

The governors also asked the Council of State Governments to "draft an inter-state compact setting forth legally sound methods for mutual assistance among adjoining states for utilization of National Guard units in the event that civil disorders require such assistance across state lines."

Senate Votes to Triple FHA Grants

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill tripling federal grants under the consolidated Farmers Home Administration Act for rural water and sewer projects was passed by the Senate and sent to the House Monday.

Grants of up to $150 million a year would be permitted, compared to the present $50 million limit.

The bill also would expand the types of real estate loans authorized for owner-operators of family size farms to include enterprises needed to supplement farm income.

Expect Quick Union Rejection

DETROIT (AP) — The auto industry offered the United Auto Workers union what one company termed the best contract proposals ever today, but asked the union to cut back on some demands won in previous years.

The industry presented a solid and united front in answering for the first time demands the union itself has termed the most ambitious it has ever made.

Quick rejection of the industry proposals by the union was expected.

The industry economic offers, based on a proposed three-year contract, come after two months of bargaining and with only eight days remaining before a strike deadline.

Contracts covering 650,000 workers at the Big Three expire at midnight Sept. 6 although only the company selected by the union as a pattern setter would be struck.

The three companies estimated their package at 33 to 51 cents an hour over the next three years, including a flat 13-cent-an-hour hike now and 2.8 per cent a year in the following two years.

All three, however, asked the union to modify a cost-of-living escalator clause based on the government cost-of-living index which has brought union members increases of 18 cents an hour since 1964.

UAW President Walter P. Reuther has said he would brook no tampering with the clause and that an attempt to change would be a strikeable issue.

The industry also offered the union an increase of from 62 per cent to 80 per cent in the supplemental unemployment benefits — the benefits that supplement a laid-off worker's state unemployment compensation.

This apparently was far short of the demand made by the union for a complete guaranteed annual income.

Louis G. Seaton of General Motors called his firm's offer the best it has ever made.

Malcolm Denise, chief bargainer at Ford, termed his company's package "responsive and responsible."

GM estimated its contract package at 36 to 44 cents an hour over the next three years. Ford pegged its at 34 cents. Chrysler figured 33 to 51 cents.

Seaton has estimated that union demands made at the start of bargaining in July would cost GM at least $4 an hour.

The industry also offered additional wage boosts for skilled workers, an issue that has caused some dissension in the union. Skilled workers have demanded increases of at least $1 an hour more than the rest of the workers get.

The three companies did not specify how much they would give the 200,000 industry skilled and said only that it was negotiable.

Ford and Chrysler took a different tack than GM on the escalator clause. Both asked ceilings be placed on the amount possible for a worker to get—Ford of 6 cents an hour, Chrysler of 7.

Nothing was said by any company about the union demand for parity for Canadian workers, which along with guaranteed annual income, a big wage boost and continuation of the escalator clause were the union's chief demands. The UAW placed no monetary value on its own package.

The straight-time average hourly wage in the auto industry is figured at $3.41 by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. Fringe benefits are estimated by the companies to run the total cost to about $4.70 hourly.

Cool Air Coming To Missouri

KANSAS CITY (AP)— Missouri warmed up a little today, but the weatherman says another surge of cool air is headed for the state.

Southerly winds are expected to shift to northerly in the northwest tonight. Wednesday's highs will be in the upper 80s in the northwest and from the mid 70s to the mid 80s in the rest of the state.

Monday's highs were in the 80s, ranging from 81 at Kirksville and St. Joseph to 89 at Springfield.

16 Planes Lost-- Heaviest in Air War

SAIGON (AP) — The United States suffered its heaviest losses for a seven-day period in the air war against North Vietnam— 16 planes— between Aug. 21 and Aug. 27, the U.S. Command announced today.

The 16th plane— a Marine A6 Intruder— was lost on Sunday due to "unknown causes," the command said, but announcement of the loss was delayed for security reasons.

The two Marine fliers were listed as missing in action, bringing the total of missing fliers for the seven-day period to 24. Three were rescued. In South Vietnam, the stepped-up Communist campaign of shelling and bridge destruction in the northern war zone was met today by three heavy B52 raids on Red staging bases inside the demilitarized zone.

Military headquarters said Communists blew up nine bridges in the past 24 hours— eight of them in the northern area and one in the main Mekong delta city of Can Tho.

The heavy attacks by the B52s followed intensive tactical air strikes by Marine and Air Force pilots on the gun positions where the Reds have dug in their heaviest weapons— 152mm guns with a range of almost 20 miles.

These big guns opened up with heavy barrages on Marine positions two days ago, and since then Marine fighter-bomber pilots claim to have destroyed 14 fortified pits housing the big truck-drawn field pieces.

The increase in Communist shelling, bridge-blowing and terrorism was evidently intended to demonstrate Red muscle during the South Vietnamese presidential election campaign which ends Sunday. The Communists appear to be concentrating on terrorism in Saigon and on disrupting traffic along coastal Highway 1 in the northern sector and the main paved road south from Saigon to the big cities of My Tho and Can Tho in the Mekong delta.

Just after midnight Monday Communist sappers used the same technique to blow important bridges in Can Tho, and just below Da Nang in the north.

Near Da Nang also, guerrillas attempted to overrun a South Vietnamese artillery post and lost at least 15 dead in a pitched battle. The guerrillas got inside the perimeter of the post long enough to damage one big 155mm howitzer.

In terrorist attacks, a pair of Viet Cong agents on a motor scooter in Saigon's Chinese quarter shot down a South Vietnamese sailor distributing pamphlets urging people to vote, and a high school that was to be used as a polling place was blasted by an explosive, probably a grenade.

Viet Cong guerrillas shot and killed six civilians in an attack on a bus about 75 miles north of Saigon Monday.

U.S. headquarters reported that the number of air missions against North Vietnam climbed to 138 Monday because of clearing skies.

Segregationist, Negro Votes Election Factors

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Mississippi votes today in a Democratic primary election runoff where unassessed Negro voting strength and the ballots of a defeated hard-line segregationist could decide the governor's race.

In local contests, the state may elect its first Negro sheriffs since Reconstruction. Four candidates for sheriff are among the 21 Negroes seeking county offices against white opponents.

A Democratic congressman from Detroit was in Mississippi to observe the voting and to encourage participation of Negroes. Rep. John C. Conyers, a Negro and a member of the House Judiciary Committee, said he would file a report with his committee although his visit was unofficial.

The question of the Negro vote was whether it would form behind state Treasurer William Winter or U.S. Rep. John Bell Williams for governor. Each candidate claimed the conservative, segregationist banner and attacked the federal government.

First primary returns indicated that Negroes, with registration estimated at about 185,000, split among the candidates much as white voters did.

The other factor was the pool of more than 124,000 votes won in the first primary by Jimmy Swan, a Hattiesburg country singer who captured third place with a pledge to open private, segregated schools.

Swan announced in the closing days of the campaign that he would not endorse a runoff candidate, but would work toward the office himself in 1971. Prominent Swan supporters have split between the candidates.

Mahalia Jackson Cancels Concert

BERLIN (AP) — At the advice of her doctor, gospel singer Mahalia Jackson has postponed indefinitely a European concert tour to avoid the possibility of a heart attack. "I want to sing," she cried, wiping her wet eyes Monday. "Oh, how I want to sing. What about all those people who have paid money to see me? Will they understand?"

Dr. Rolf Schroeder, cardiac specialist at the West Berlin Westend Hospital, said, "The burden of performing would have been a great strain on her heart and could have led to a heart attack."

Miss Jackson, 55, suffered a heart attack three years ago.

Rockwell Hearse Barred

CULPEPER, Va. (AP) — The hearse bearing the body of American Nazi party leader George Lincoln Rockwell was barred from Culpeper National Cemetery today as federal troops arrived to enforce an order banning Nazi insignia and uniforms.

Military policemen armed with pistols and night sticks arrived in helicopters and buses. They were led by Maj. Gen. Carl C. Turner, Army provost marshal.

"I am going to protect federal property," Turner told newsmen as the hearse waited outside the gate of the little military cemetery. "No one will be permitted in here with Nazi uniforms and insignia."

There appeared to be about 50 mourners, some dressed in full Nazi uniforms bearing swastikas. Five of those in uniforms said they were to be pallbearers.

Among the floral pieces was a large swastika composed of red carnations and a Nazi flag in red, white and black flowers.

License plates of cars carrying the mourners, some of whom brought children with them, were from California, Ontario, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Michigan, New York and Pennsylvania.

A young man in an Army private's uniform said he was "here to mourn my real commander in chief— Rockwell." He identified himself as Pfc. James G. DeWitt of Mount Pleasant, Mich., stationed at Ft. Gordon, Ga. That, coincidentally, is headquarters of the Military Police Corps, headed by Turner.

But when DeWitt threw a snappy salute at Turner, the general returned it without appearing to notice the black armband of mourning on the private's sleeve.

Turner, who said anyone could enter as long as he did not wear or carry any Nazi insignia or emblem, told acting party leader Matt Koehl those disobeying the order would be arrested.

Minutes earlier, Edward Maxwell, the superintendent of Culpeper National Cemetery, refused to allow Rockwell followers in Nazi uniforms and wearing swastikas permission to enter.

"My orders from Washington are no swastikas can be used inside the cemetery - government property," he said.

A bullet fired by a rooftop sniper killed the party chief Friday as he was leaving a shopping center in his car. A former official of the party has been charged with murder.

Small Vote Appeal in International Coups

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Johnson administration is unlikely to convert two major international achievements into massive support at the polls next year.

But both will help shape the lives and leisure of many Americans for years to come.

Earlier this summer, U.S. officials reached agreement to cut tariffs on thousands of items over a five-year period in return for cuts by other non-Communist nations.

And last weekend the United States agreed with nine leading industrial nations on a framework for creating new money to help pay for new trade.

Both moves have bipartisan support but lack massive voter attention given such questions as the Vietnam war and trouble in the cities.

Yet government officials consider them so important to the country's future that they've spent four to five years trying to resolve problems surrounding each.

President Johnson called last weekend's agreement "the greatest step forward in world financial cooperation" in two decades and said it will advance the welfare of all Americans.

The reduction of tariffs and the means to finance more trade will mean more jobs for Americans, the administration contends.

The government estimates that every $1 billion in exports means 127,000 jobs for Americans. Government officials expect the successful round of tariff talks to increase exports although they hesitate to say by how much.

Foes of specific tariff cuts contend these could lead to increased imports which could affect some U.S. jobs.

With the machinery for monetary reform taking place, the non-Communist world is expected to have the money to pay for growing trade.

It took four years to draft the monetary reform outline which now must be approved by the International Monetary Fund and ratified by participating countries.

Rotarians Look at Head Start

Rotarians took a look last night at the working of the Head Start program through Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Powell.

Powell was social service work counselor in the summer program for Scott county. He said that one goal was to preserve the parents' role in the child's life and that it was hoped that long range results could be achieved.

Mrs. Powell, administrative secretary for the regular Head Start program, said that the program was financed 90 per cent by the federal government. She praised the assistance given by the Sikeston public schools.

To give a child in the classroom individual attention the ratio of teachers to students is one for five, she explained.

Medical, dental, psychological and social services are offered. An effort is made to involve the parents and Mrs. Powell said that "community help" is needed. The children are immunized against disease.

Of 60 children, she said, 218 teeth were filled, 28 teeth extracted, 10 were anemic, four required glasses and three referred for hearing tests were found to have no defects.

The Powells were introduced by Jack Lopp at last night's club meeting at the Rustic Rock Inn.

President Fred Koch announced that the club was sending a wreath to the funeral for L.W. Dillman of Caruthersville, past district governor of Rotary International. Services were at 10:30 a.m. in the Methodist church in Caruthersville today for Dillman, who was one of eight killed in an automobile collision Saturday near Chester, Ill.

Koch also announced that the Rev. Fr. Justin Monaghan would speak at the meeting of the Rotary club in Jackson today at noon.

Visiting Rotarians were Harold Rabin of Belle Glade, Fla., and Norman Wenskay of Morley. Frank Harp was a guest of James Green.

Mary Anne Bruce entertained at the piano.

Motherhood Loses Battle With School Board

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) - Motherhood collided with a school board— and lost.

Mrs. John Hill gave birth to her fourth child while on a sabbatical study leave. Monday night, she was fired from her teaching job.

"I was fired for being a mother," she said. "That's the only thing I can see I've done. They couldn't think of another reason." The story of how the 42-year-old elementary school music teacher gained a son and a master's degree, but lost her job, goes back to 1966.

In March, her school board granted her a sabbatical leave to study at Duquesne University the following school year at half-pay.

Then she started to gain weight. And, school officials said, she showed up for classes in loose-fitting clothes.

On June 10, she got a telephone call from her boss, Dr. Stanley R. Duda, superintendent of the Chartiers Valley Schools.

"Are you having a child?" asked Duda.

"No," replied Mrs. Hill. But she conceded she was gaining weight.

"I felt I was getting fat because I had been used to dancing a lot, then slacked off, plus the fact that I had had three children."

But she gained more weight— and finally accepted the fact she was pregnant.

"I really didn't know I was pregnant," she said. "Any woman my age has difficulty accepting such a development."

Jonathan was born Sept. 13, 1966. And born with him was a full-fledged feud.

Duda contended Mrs. Hill, upon learning she was pregnant, should have notified the board, asked for maternity leave and canceled her sabbatical.

Mrs. Hill figured that since she had already made application to Duquesne, she saw no reason to cancel the sabbatical.

Anyway, she added, she fulfilled the terms of her sabbatical. She went to school, got her degree and took off only one week to have Jonathan.

The school canceled her sabbatical allowance, amounting to about $3,000. She appealed. Monday night, the board turned down the appeal in one vote and fired her in another.

The board contended Mrs. Hill violated state law by not reporting her pregnancy.

1963 REVISITED

It has been said that each man brings most of his troubles on himself. This may be true of nations as well as individuals. One cause of U.S. troubles is that it seems determined to repeat past mistakes.

A little more than 32 years ago, on November 17, 1933, the United States officially extended diplomatic recognition to the Soviet Union. This was caused by, as much as anything else, the pressure of business interests tempted by the promise of billions of dollars in exports to Russia. Today that temptation is again being dangled before U. S. business. Some U. S. businessmen are reaching out to grab the bait, urging closer relations with Russia and showing a willingness to go along -- at least a part of the way -- with the "co-existence" line the communists have craftily dangled.

Before we fall into the same trap twice, we will be well advised to re-examine history of the last 32 years.

U.S. REFUSED

For 16 years after the Bolsheviks took over on November 7, 1917, the United States withheld diplomatic recognition from the Soviet Union. Five American Presidents faced the problem. The Bolshevik seizure of power, headed by Nicolai Lenin and Leon Trotsky, took place during Woodrow Wilson's second term as President. Trotsky, Russian Commissar of Foreign Affairs, almost immediately asked all the accredited foreign envoys in Petrograd for recognition. Neither the United States nor any of its allies replied affirmatively at that time.

Secretary of State Bainbridge Colby, on behalf of President Wilson, explained in plain language why the United States was determined not to recognize Russia:

"The Bolsheviki, an inconsiderable minority of the people, by force and cunning seized the powers and machinery of government and have continued to use them with savage oppression. Their responsible statesmen have declared that the very existence of Bolshevism depends upon revolution in all other great countries, including the United States. There can be no confidence if pledges are to be given with cynical repudiation already in the mind of one of the parties. We cannot recognize a government which is determined and bound to conspire against our institutions."

When Warren G. Harding became President, the Bolsheviks tried again -- without success. Nor did the administrations of Calvin Coolidge and Herbert Hoover move to recognize the USSR. During the latter Administration, incidentally, the communist nation showed how far it could be trusted when it flooded the world with counterfeit American money printed in Moscow.

In his "Memoirs," President Hoover explained his stand. "If one of our neighbors is wicked in all his relations with the community, we do not necessarily attack him. We even minister to him in sickness. But we do not establish his respectability in the communist or offer him opportunities to extend wickedness by asking him into our home."

HOOVER FEARED INFILTRATION

Hoover feared that recognition would inevitably lead to dangerous infiltration of America by communist agents and agitators. He also recalled that "more than five million people have been cruelly butchered in Russia." Many more were in Siberian slave camps.

Nevertheless, the pressure for recognition grew. American business was trading with Russia, and some large companies extended long-term credits to the Soviet Union. When the great depression came, a member of the U.S. Senate said: "There are billions of dollars' worth of future orders in Russia for American workers to fill, and in these times it is simply idiocy for America by its policies, to preclude Americans from trade and commerce which so readily could be obtained." Many leading U. S. newspapers supported recognition of Soviet Russia as a means of bringing about more trade between the two countries.

The able and crafty Maxim Litvinov became Russia's foreign minister, and Franklin D. Roosevelt became President of the United States. On May 16, 1933, President Roosevelt issued a call to 50 heads of other nations to cooperate in a World Economic Conference to be held in London in June. One of the invitations went to the president of the Soviet Union. It was the first time since the Bolshevik Revolution of 1917 the White House had communicated directly with the Kremlin. The Communist Party press in the Soviet Union hailed it as a practical first step toward recognition.

When Litvinov addressed the London Conference, he directed his remarks chiefly to the United States, and as bait he held out the figure of one billion American dollars' worth of Russian orders for U.S.-manufactured goods. He went so far as to list commodities which he knew U.S. manufacturers were well-equipped to produce.

NEXT: COTTON LOAN

The following month, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation granted a loan of $4 million to Amtorg, the Soviet trading corporation, for the purchase of American cotton. The significant of the loan was that it was made by an agency of the U.S. Government. While many Americans criticized the transaction, many business firms praised it. More than 40 American business concerns urged that the RFC extend additional loans so that other goods could be sold to Russia on credit.

Diplomatic recognition was coming closer.

In the summer of 1933, the Chief of the Division of Eastern European Affairs in the U. S. State Department, acting on orders, drew up a memorandum on all phases of the Soviet recognition question. This man, Robert Kelly, warned repeatedly in his memorandum that "all" outstanding issues between the governments of the United States and Russia must be settled "before" recognition.

America's demands, he said, should be as follows:

-- Moscow must sever all connections with communists in the United States and refrain from reactivating them after recognition.

-- Russian debts must be settled. English and French experience had proved that discussion of payments "after" recognition was useless.

-- The legal rights of American citizens in Russia must be clearly defined and agreed upon before recognition.

-- Assurances must be given that the rights of Americans in Russia to observe the rituals of their respective faiths and churches "without annoyance or molestation's would be rigidly observed.

PRIVATE NEGOTIATIONS

When Litvinov came to the United States in the fall of 1933, most negotiations about recognition were carried on in private between him and President Roosevelt. The Russian promised whatever he had to promise, and the promises were accepted. As soon as recognition of the Soviet Union was extended, the promises were ignored by the communist dictatorship. The history of the years since 1933 shows that Russia did not keep one promise of all those upon which recognition was based.

The great hopes of selling goods to Russia, which had caused U. S. business to favor recognition, did not materialize. In the 32 years of diplomatic recognition of the Soviet Union, U. S. trade exports have come to only $1.3 billion.

The U.S. gave Russia $10.8 billion in lend-lease during World War Two. The U. S. never asked payment for lend-lease goods used up in the war; the value of leftover lend-lease material kept in Russia after the war has been estimated to be more than a $1 billion. In the early 1950's the U.S. asked for repayment of World War II debts, and settled on a figure of $800 million. The negotiations fell through, however, and have never been revived. Russia kept 84 merchant ships and 40 military craft which were returnable under lend-lease -- more broken promises.

WHY NOW?

Yet, there is now much effort to increase trade with Russia. This is difficult to understand, because extending credit to Russia is certainly risky. The "customer" is not a business concern; he is a government which uses trade as it uses everything else -- to advance the cause of communism. There is no way, then, to enforce contract and no way that payment can be assured. Successful trade depends on mutual confidence, and it is clear that no confidence can be placed in communist promises.

In view of all this, it is hard to grasp the reasoning in a report issued in May, 1965, by the Committee for Economic Development, a U. S. business study group. The report, entitled "East-West Trade, A Common Policy for the West," recommends setting up machinery for increasing trade between the West and the communist-bloc nations.

One member of the group, Robert Kleberg, Jr., president of the King Ranch, wrote a strong dissent to the report:

KING SIZE DISSENT

"I do not believe," wrote Mr. Kleberg, "that a policy statement by CED on East-West trade is advisable at this time. The whole matter of East-West relationships -- ranging as it does from the shooting war in Vietnam through the counterthreats of atomic retaliation to the stalemate in Cuba, the propaganda war in South America and communist attempts at subversion of emerging nations in Africa -- is so complex that it is not possible to consider East-West trade as a separate issue.

"I feel that it would be unrealistic to hope that mutually useful trade could be developed with the communist countries under present circumstances. We would receive little benefit from such trade and would expose the Western world to some or all of the following hazards:

"An increase in communist propaganda and subversion in Latin America under the guise of trade.

"An opening of the trade barriers which we have attempted to impose around Cuba.

"A further detriment to our balance of payments position as a result of the credits which we would have to extend to communist countries.

"An increase in the flow of our technical information and know-how to the communist world.

"In short, communist governments look upon trade as a political weapon and use it as such. So long as this is true, we should attempt to deny it to them."

The Labor Day weekend will soon be here and drivers were urged today by Colonel E. I. (Mike) Hockaday, the Superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, to help insure their safety before they begin their trip. He said, "One of the first things a car owner can do is to have his vehicle safety-checked. An inspection of the vehicle's tires, lights, brakes, steering and other items of importance to safety should be made before traveling this holiday weekend. The few minutes it takes to have a car checked is time well spent."

The Patrol Superintendent also mentioned the need to be well rested before starting a trip and of the importance of getting an early start. "Make sure you are physically able to drive this holiday weekend," he declared. "Get a good rest before you get behind the wheel, and if you get tired along the way, stop to rest or let someone drive who is physically able to do so.

"The importance of getting an early start and thereby giving yourself plenty of time to reach your destination cannot be overemphasized. Trying to make up for lost time by taking unnecessary chances can be very costly. So get an early start and take your time as you travel this weekend."

Colonel Hockaday concluded by stating that a driver who follows these safety measures prior to beginning his Labor Day trip will have a better chance of not being involved in a traffic accident.

THE NEWSPAPER: ACCENTUATES POSITIVE

Newspapers sometimes are charged with shortcomings ranging from favoritism in photographic coverage to discrimination in the divorce and magistrate court transcripts.

One criticism is that they are perpetrators of gloom, exploiting the sordid and the sadistic out of a desire to sell more papers.

Of course, the charges are untrue in most cases and grossly unfair to the industry as a whole.

Stung by repeated criticism of this type, one Midwestern daily studied, measured and catalogued its own total news lineage over a period of two weeks. The result, it gleefully reported, was that something like 70 per cent of all news printed was of a positive nature, of human accomplishments and encouraging indications.

The much-maligned young by themselves fared every bit as well, and that didn't even count the weekly youth supplement, which accentuated the positive completely.

The only real argument the average critic has is that sordid news sells papers, which is, in a way, a most encouraging fact.

Because the unusual makes the real hard core news, the fat black headlines. The mean, the base, the ignoble are, fortunately, unusual.

As long as crime, violence and all manner of negative deeds are uncommon enough to rate top page play, it means kindness, courage and positive accomplishments are what is really making the world go round.

When the latter become so rare that they make the big headlines, readers will have something to worry about.

TOO BIG FOR THEIR BRITCHES

When business and industry got too big for their britches, 50 years or so ago, the people through their elected representatives cracked down on them.

As labor monopolies have grown in wealth and power, they are following the same arrogant course that brought strict controls and antimonopoly laws to business. The public has suffered great inconvenience as the result of uncontrolled strikes in recent years and more are threatened now. Due to public and national defense interests which suffer in nationwide strike warfare, President Johnson has established a study group to search for ways to cope with strikes that threaten the nation's welfare.

This is the only result that can be expected when any monopoly thumbs its nose at the public. This is not a case of being prolabor or antilabor. It is simply a case of being propublic interest, and the public is seeking for protection.

STEINBECK ON VIETNAM

John Steinbeck has not joined the intellectuals' protest against the Vietnam war, the Catholic Digest says. When asked why by Soviet poet Yevgeny Yevtushenko, the American novelist wrote in part:

"I am against this Chinese-inspired war. I don't know a single American who is for it. But you ask me to denounce half a war, our half. I appeal to you to join me in denouncing the whole war. If you could persuade North Vietnam to agree in good faith to negotiate the bombing would stop instantly. The guns would fall silent and our dear sons could come home. It is as simple as that, my friend, as simple as that, I promise you."

PAPER MOUNTAINS IN WASHINGTON

Most people are aware of the huge sums of money spent on such programs as the War on Poverty. But there are many less obvious ways that tax money is wasted.

One such way is the incredible amount of paperwork in the federal bureaus. Recently the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee completed a study on this subject.

The Committee reports that the government needs one billion reports each year. Two hundred fifty-five thousand employees are required just to file the reports, which take up 25 million cubic feet of space. If records now on file were torn up at the rate of one page per second, two thousand years would be needed to complete the job.

The individual citizen pays for this paperwork many times over. He pays for the paper itself. The Committee reports that the forms it analyzed cost $53 million annually.

He pays the salaries of bureaucrats whose main job is producing new forms, filling out forms, or filing old forms. If the time spent on paperwork would be devoted to other things, the federal government could substantially reduce its payroll.

Many citizens pay for this paperwork directly with the time they have to spend filling out forms sent them by the government.

The Committee made several suggestions to reduce paperwork. But the only real and lasting solution was ignored. As long as there are bureaucrats, there will be paper. The only way to eliminate the paper mountains in Washington is to return the government to its proper function: protecting the liberty of the people. HLH.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- While Ralph Nader has the country all stirred up over unsafe automobiles, some boat manufacturers are still selling boats to the public that don't meet the coast guard's minimum safety standards.

Not only are the newest pleasure boats sometimes unsafe, but they can be piloted by unlicensed operators of any age who know nothing about the rules of the sea. Result: more Americans were killed last year in boating accidents than in plane crashes, and the accident rate is soaring.

The latest available figures, for example, show an astonishing 67 per cent leap in incapacitating personal injuries from boating accidents during the single year 1965 to 1966. Property damage from these accidents shot up 55 per cent.

Meanwhile, the nation's waterways have become cluttered with eight million pleasure boats, carrying 40 million joy riders. Boating has become America's largest family sport. On a given weekend, as many as 25 million people may be out on the water.

Yet the coast guard has done a woefully inadequate job of guarding the safety of these water lovers. To patrol the incredible weekend traffic jam on the waterways, the coast guard has only 37 mobile inspection teams.

Hot-rodding teenagers churn up the water, fleegully splashing past other boats, endangering swimmers and smaller craft, without fear of apprehension. Though youths from 12 to 18 years make up only 6 per cent of the boating population, they figure in 13 per cent of all motor-boating accidents.

Yet, of the 35,624 boating convictions last year, only one involved reckless operation. Half were merely registration violations, which have nothing at all to do with boating safety.

The most serious neglect, however, must be charged to the boat manufacturers who put appearances ahead of safety as the best way to increase sales. They can get away with this because the boat owner, not the manufacturer, is held responsible for meeting coast guard standards.

LANDLUBBER YACHTSMAN

Yet the typical owner today is strictly a landlubber, whose boat is a status symbol. For all this salty posturing, he has little nautical background and usually assumes his boat has passed rigid safety tests.

The craft may have glittering chrome trim and running lights that gleam impressively. Some of the latest runabouts come in pastel shades with vinyl coverings on bucket seats. To the landlubber, with a little spray on his face, his new boat may appear seaworthy enough. But the manufacturer was under no legal obligation to produce a safe boat.

This column has seen a confidential directive sent out six months ago by the coast guard to its various inspectors, notifying them to watch out for new boats with unsafe bilge ventilating systems. The directive identified boats made by the following manufacturers: Revel Craft, Egg Harbor, Hatteras, Jersey 28, Manson, Owens, Pacemaker and Trojan.

Inadequate ventilation can cause fires and explosions aboard boats. Enforcement of a new bilge safety regulation finally began this past July 1, but had been announced two years ago to become effective a year ago. At that time, the coast guard found boat owners and many boat manufacturers had made little real effort to meet the new requirements, and allowed a second year's grace. But many of the latest models still do not pass coast guard inspection.

One reason, according to some boat people, is that the regulations are "vague" and it is up to each inspecting coast guard officer to determine if the bilge ventilation is safe.

Another complaint is that new boats are sold that are not equipped with the horns, whistles, lights, fire extinguishers and other safety devices required by law.

Though boats are not inspected at the factory, the coast guard does check life preservers at the manufacturing level. Yet 91 persons drowned last year using these approved preservers at the manufacturing level. Yet 91 persons drowned last year using these approved preservers.

More than 75 per cent of last year's drowning victims didn't use life saving devices at all. In some cases, no preservers were carried on board the boats. More often, the approved brand was so big and bulky that boaters were unwilling to buy them.

With one - fifth of the population now boating and the waterways becoming ever more crowded, perhaps it's time the coast guard showed the same concern for boats as life preservers and started enforcing boat safety at the production line.

This column has solved the mystery of how a huge, gold-framed painting, which used to hang in the board room of central airlines, turned up on the wall of Texas congressman Omar Burleson's office.

The painting of an oxen-drawn, wooden-wheeled wagon, prodded along by peasants, was purchased in Europe. Someone at Central Airlines decided it didn't project the image of a 20th century airline, and the painting suddenly vanished from the board room.

A spokesman told this column that the painting was carried on the books at a value of $39.50. Its purchase price, he said, was $525. However, the airline received a $140 rebate from the shippers because of damage in transit.

The spokesman identified the purchaser as Ed Connally, one of the airline's directors, who told this column that he paid $500 for it. He immediately shipped it off, he said, to congressman Burleson.

Conally could not explain any reason for the gift, except that he and the congressman were friends. However, the congressman apparently was glad to get it, for it occupies the most prominent place on the wall of his private office.

The next meeting will be Sept. 21 with the program "Living With Today's Fabrics."

Early in his diplomatic career, Hugh Gibson served in the State Department in Washington. As he told it:

At the end of each day's work a group of us would go to the club for a martini. Most of the boys would order a second, and some a third, but I couln't take a second and be any good for the rest of the evening. Yet I did not want to ruin the party, so I asked the bartender to fill my glass with plain water on the second and all later rounds. As he did not want to confuse my drink with the others, he placed a pickled baby onion in it.

Soon the boys discovered that I was drinking along with them and yet remained sober. At first they credited me with an extraordinary capacity to absorb alcohol. Later some thought that it might be the drink, and began to order a "Gibson." Again the bartender came to my rescue. He served those who ordered a Gibson a new kind of powerhouse, almost all gin and very little vermouth, and of course put an onion in it to make it appear genuine. The Gibson has traveled far, farther than I have. - Hugh Gibson

Orrin Hunts Celebrate 50th Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Orrin Hunt Sr. were honored with an open house celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary Aug. 13 from 2 to 5 p.m. in their home.

Hostesses were the couple's daughters, Mrs. Oscar McNeil, Oak Ridge, Tenn., and Mrs. Virginia Wray, Tiptonville, Tenn.

Their son, Orrin Hunt Jr., Columbus, Ohio, could not be present but telephoned during the afternoon.

Miss Carolyn Clinton and Miss Ann Nix, Fruitland, Tenn., great niece of the Hunts, presided at the register.

Nieces of the couple served refreshments from a table covered with a white embroidered linen tablecloth centered with a crystal bowl of gold tinted baby mums and golden candles.

The Dorcas Sunday School class of Trinity Baptist church gave an arrangement of the same flowers for the buffet.

The only ones present who attended the wedding of the Hunts 50 years ago were Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Scruggs of Humboldt, Tenn., in whose home the wedding took place.

During the afternoon Sikeston friends as well as friends and relatives from Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana and Tennessee called.

When icy windstorms blow me in
And nasty blizards snow me in,
There's simply nothing horrida
Than cards from friends in Florida.

Just about anybody can get on radio these days, thanks to the beeper show, a two-way conversation program between listener and disc jockey. It's named for the high-pitched tone that the FCC requires when a telephone conversation is being taped. Slips are rare, but do occur. Paul Benzaquin, who runs a beeper show on Boston's WEEI, had author Louis Lomax as a guest and was chatting with a woman caller who said she read in bed.

"I think Louis Lomax is just as exciting on the air as he is in bed," she declared to several thousand listeners.

French Woman Drives Truck, Farms 313 Acres

PARIS, Ohio (AP)— Martha Henrich, slender, single and 22-years-old, has two jobs—farmer and truckdriver.

"I'd rather wear out than rust out sitting around," she says.

During the summer she farms 313 acres turning out about 300 head of cattle a year.

When things slow down in the winter she jumps in the cab of a tractor-trailer and hauls steel around the country.

"I've seen no disrespect from men despite my competing with them," she says. "I try to act like a lady and that usually results in even rough, tough truck drivers treating me like a lady."

Regena Duniphan Marries William H. Morgan Jr.

CHAFFEE--Miss Regena Sue Duniphan of Chaffee and William H. Morgan Jr. of Advance exchanged wedding vows Friday evening as they stood beneath an ivy-entwined arch at the altar of First Baptist church. On either side of the arch were graduated arrangements of blue and white chrysanthemums and gladioli. Palms lined the approach to the altar.

Organ music was provided by Miss Ruth Ellen Huey, and Mrs. Gary Reutzel, Advance, was soloist. The ceremony was conducted by the Rev. R. L. Robinson, who also read Scripture during a symbolic candlelighting ceremony in which the couple took part. The altar tapers were lighted by Miss Tracy Wagoner and Bradley Wagoner of Cape Girardeau.

Miss Duniphan, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Loman H. Duniphan, was given in marriage by her father. Morgan is the son of Mrs. Marjorie Morgan and William H. Morgan of Advance.

The bride chose for her wedding a gown of Chantilly lace styled in a loosely fitting cage with rounded neckline and short sleeves, worn over an organza sheath. A train of tulle and lace fell from her shoulders to cathedral length, and her tiered veil of illusion was affixed to a petite crown of lace embroidered with pearl and crystal petals. Her bridal bouquet was a yellow-throated orchid nested in white rosebuds and baby's breath.

Miss Duniphan was attended by her sister, Miss Cinda Duniphan, as maid of honor, Miss Carol Glastetter, Cape Girardeau, Miss Janelle Cowles, Springfield, Miss Mary Margaret Miller and Miss Kerri Bolton bridesmaids. Their formal empire gowns of blue peau de soie and Alencon lace were identical. Blue ostrich feathers with matching nosetip veils were worn in their hair, and each carried a bouquet of white pompon chrysanthemums. Stacy Duniphan, assisted by Ginger Ward of Advance, served her sister as flower girl.

Brothers of the broom who attended him were Benny Morgan, best man, and Ford Morgan along with Don Berry of Advance, Kent Duniphan, brother of the bride, and Ed Hastings, St. Louis, groomsmen. Steve Duniphan, also a brother of the bride, and Charles Vickery were ushers. The ringbearers were Todd Ward and Rhett Morgan of Advance.

At the reception afterward the lace covered tea table was centered with a four-tiered cake and further appointed with a silver coffee service and crystal punch bowl. Presiding in service were Mrs. Charles Wagoner, Cape Girardeau, Mrs. Buddy Beck, Houston, Tex., Mrs. Troy Lingle, Arnold, Mrs. Ivan Ward and Mrs. Jack Morgan, Advance, and Mrs. H. R. Shaw. Mrs. Larry Abbott of Advance presided at the guest book.

Mrs. Morgan, a graduate of Chaffee high school, attended the School of Nursing at Southeast Missouri State College in Cape Girardeau and is presently employed by the Saveway Oil Co., in Ilmo-Scott City, Mo. Morgan was graduated from the Advance high school and is employed by the highway department, but will enter college this fall. They are residing in Chaffee.

Cards Gain Half Game With Split

Jack Lamabe extended his string of consecutive scoreless innings to 25 Monday night as, he shut out the Mets, 6-0, to give the Cardinals a split with New York in a twi-night doubleheader. The Mets won the opener, 4-2.

St. Louis got 12 hits off winning pitcher Jack Fisher, but left ten men on base. The loss went to Card starter Steve Carlton.

The nightcap was Lamabe's game all the way as he cut down his former teammates on five hits. It was his third victory in a St. Louis uniform and gives him a 3-6 record.

Tim McCarver hit a two-run homer and Orlando Cepeda and Dal Maxvill each singled in a pair of runs to lead the Cardinal attack.

Although the Cardinals managed only a split, they picked up a half-game on National League runnersup, Philadelphia, Cincinnati and Chicago, and now lead the league by 11 full games.

In St. Louis tonight, Dick Hughes hopes to pick up his 14th victory against only four losses for the Cardinals. He will be opposed by Cal Koonce of the Mets.

A six-day sprint has swept the Philadelphia Phillies to the head of the pack in the National League's runner-up derby.

Now they're trying to drum up a match race with St. Louis swifties. . .but Manager Gene Mauch isn't looking past the next nine innings.

"We're still looking for one in a row," Mauch said Monday night after the Phillies edged Cincinnati 3-2 for their eighth straight victory. . . and displayed the first symptoms of pennant fever.

The Phils' winning streak has vaulted them from sixth to second place in less than a week. They lead the Reds and Chicago Cubs by one percentage point. . . but trail the league-leading Cardinals by 11 lengths.

San Francisco pelted Los Angeles 7-0, Pittsburgh nipped Atlanta 4-3 in 10 innings and the Cubs shaded Houston 6-5 in other NL games.

John Callison's 13th homer snapped a 1-1 tie in the sixth inning at Cincinnati and the Phils added another run on a bases-loaded balk by Gerry Arrigo on the way to their 21st triumph in 29 starts.

But they needed four innings of scoreless relief from veteran Dick Farrell to keep the streak alive after the Reds closed the gap in the bottom of the sixth on Pete Rose's single, Lee May's double and a ground out.

The save was Farrell's seventh in 44 relief efforts this season.

Roberto Clemente poled his 19th and 20th homers, the second one breaking a 3-3 tie in the 10th to end a four-game losing streak for the Pirates. Atlanta had tied the game with two runs in the eighth on Rico Carty's double and singles by Felipe Alou, Tito Francona and Hank Aaron.

Gaylord Perry stymied Los Angeles on three hits and fanned nine, leading the Giants to their 10th victory in 13 games against the Dodgers this year. Willie Mays knocked in two runs with a third-inning single and scored from second base on a wild pitch in the Giants' three-run sixth.

Adolfo Phillips doubled in the sixth inning, took third on a bunt and scored on Dave Giusti's wild pitch, giving the Cubs their one-run margin over the Astros. Giusti and rookie Doug Rader homered for Houston.

Namath Named In NY Law Suit

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Namath, quarterback of the New York Jets, apparently has not heard the last of his unauthorized Aug. 3 trip to New York.

Namath left the Jets' camp at Peekskill, N.Y., without permission because of what he said was personal matters and when he returned to the team, owner Sonny Werblin said he would be fined. Later, Coach Weeb Ewbank said "action has been taken."

Now, Charles Parmiter, the sports editor of Time Magazine, has filed papers in Supreme Court alleging that Namath and two other men assaulted him in an East Side bar at 3 a.m. on the morning of Aug. 4.

Parmiter's court action, filed by his attorney, Stuart M. Speiser, asks that Namath and Murray Schaff, owner of the Open End Bar where the incident allegedly took place, reveal in court the names of two men Parmiter says helped Namath assault him.

According to Speiser, the identities are needed so that the two men can be included as co-defendants with Namath and Schaaf in court action which Parmiter said he intends to start.

In a supporting affidavit, Parmiter says the incident occurred after he recognized Namath at the bar, greeted him and offered to shake hands.

"Without any warning or provocation," the affidavit continues, Namath grabbed Parmiter by the lapels, slammed his head back over the top of a cigarette machine and held him there "approximately the next 10 or 15 minutes."

Parmiter's affidavit adds that another man, who Namath called Mickey, struck him during this period and that a third man prevented others from interceding.

The complaint claimed Namath was intoxicated and that the attack was caused by Namath's dislike for the press.

"I don't need any of you $100 a week creeps to go around writing about me," Namath is alleged to have said to Parmiter.

Duck, Goose Seasons Set By State

JEFFERSON CITY -- The Missouri Conservation Commission has approved a 40-day duck season for 1967, Nov. 1 - Dec. 10, and has established a goose season similar to that of last year.

The duck season is five days shorter than the 1966 hunt, and limits have been curtailed on two species, canvasback and wood duck. The mallard limits, are the same as last year's.

Overall limits on ducks are four daily and eight in possession, including no more than one wood duck daily and two in possession, one canvasback daily and in possession, and two mallards daily and four in possession.

The 1967 regulation reflects poor duck breeding and duckling survival conditions that were reported at the meeting in St. Louis recently of the Mississippi Flyway Council. Before those reports came in, biologists had considered this an excellent duck year. The U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service said, however, that the adverse conditions developed late, after the earlier and more favorable conditions had raised the hopes of duck hunters and conservationists.

Limits on coots this year will be 10 daily and 20 in possession; on gallinules, 15 daily and 30 in possession; and on mergansers, five daily and 10 in possession, including not more than one hooded merganser daily or two in possession.

The goose season, except in two special zones of northern Missouri, will be Oct. 20 through Dec. 3 and Dec. 21 through Jan. 14. In the Swan Lake and Squaw Creek Zones the season will be Oct. 20 through Dec. 28.

Possession limits on Canada geese have been doubled over last year's. Limits on geese are five daily and five in possession including no more than two Canadas daily or four in possession.

At Squaw Creek, Canada geese will be legal only during the first 30 days, or until Nov. 18, and the limit on Canadas in this zone will be one daily and two in possession. At Swan Lake, the limit on Canadas will be one daily until the end of October. From Nov. 1, through the remainder of the season, the limits will be the same as those for the rest of Missouri. The Swan Lake Zone is bounded by U.S. highways 65 and 36 and Missouri highways 5 and 240. The Squaw Creek Zone includes Atchison and Holt Counties and those parts of Nodaway and Andrew Counties west of U.S. 71.

A new federal regulation this year will make it illegal to ship or transport geese except as personal baggage of the hunter who shot them.

NEW YORK (AP) — St. Louis hosts Philadelphia Sept. 9 in the semifinals of the National Professional Soccer League Challenge Cup series.

Officials discovered that someone had forgotten to fill the gas tanks under the flame's dias. Fresh tanks were ordered and the flame re-lit.

More Light On Athletics

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A former United Airlines steward ess, who is now married, has what she calls a "nightmare recollection" of a trip she made last season with the Kansas City Athletics to Baltimore.

Mrs. Michal Sheridan, now living in Milwaukie, a suburb of Portland, sid she spoke out because of recent news accounts about the firing of Manager Alvin Dark and owner Charles Finley's disciplinary efforts.

Of the Athletics, she says, "they came on the plane with a rush, and shouting for beer. I and the other hostess weren't able to serve it fast enough to suit them and they became quite rough about it.

"They wouldn't fasten their seat belts. They decided to play cards, so some of them sat on top of the seat backs and we couldn't get them down.

"Always they wanted and demanded beer, more beer and still more. They'd throw the cans on the floor and we hotesses were almost crying in our despair. We couldn't even get down the aisle without a struggle, players were sitting with their legs across it and wouldn't move.

"The flight captain tried to key them down and how rude they were to him! They called him 'bussy,' meaning 'bus driver.' The time came to eat and that was a dreadful experience, with all of them yelling to be served at once."

She said she didn't think Dark was aboard.

RECORD BREAKER Zachary Zorn of Buena Park, Calif., paced a strong team of United States swimmers in the Pan-American games at Winnipeg, Canada, when he flashed home with a time of 53.8 seconds in the 100-meter freestyle.

Harrelson's Foot Turns Into Cash

NEW YORK (AP) — "That's the first time I ever stuck my foot in my mouth and came out with a better break and more money," Ken Harrelson, the Kansas City castoff, said after joining the Boston Red Sox here last night for the American League pennant race.

"It's the best thing that ever happened to me. I'm convinced we're going to win the pennant."

Harrelson, first baseman for the Athletics, was given his release after sharply criticizing Kansas City owner Charles Finley in the recent player controversy.

After Finley had fired Manager Al Dark, Harrelson called Finley "a menace to baseball."

"Nine clubs made me offers, seven in the American League and two National League clubs," the first baseman said. "I turned down one offer that would have paid me about $50,000 more than the Red Sox.

"But I wanted to play with this club. They're young and aggressive. They've got a lot of good years ahead of them, and I want to be a part of it. Did you know that at 25 I'm about the oldest guy on the club?"

He declined to say how much he got for signing with the Red Sox.

"It was a nice little bundle," he said, "and I'm making more money than I did with the A's."

MU To Take Bids Sept. 19

COLUMBIA -- The University of Missouri, Columbia, will receive bids Sept. 19 on a press box at Memorial Stadium that will be financed by gifts from alumni and friends of the athletic department.

The proposed press box will offer expanded space for sports writers, increase the number of radio and television booths, and provide more than 250 seats in the lower level of the three-story addition for University guests and contributors to the press box fund.

The addition will replace the present inadequate and deteriorated facility, that is particularly unsuitable for electronic coverage and is inadequate for present - day news coverage. It was built in 1948.

Bids were obtained on a proposed press box a year ago but were rejected because offers exceeded estimates and funds available. Since that time, the St. Louis architectural firm of Hammond, Charle and Burns has revised construction plans for a three-story rather than a five-story addition.

It still includes 2½ times more space for sports writers, increases to 10 the number of booths available for radio and television coverage, and provides a top floor for use of news and television photographers. The press box will be reached by an elevator to be installed outside the present stadium.

By shortening the width of the present press box, the University will pick up an additional 300 or more seats in the Stadium proper. No spectators will be displaced from seats they have held traditionally.

Plans call for a start on construction, if bids are found acceptable, immediately after the close of the 1967 football season so the press facilities will be available with the opening of the 1968 season.

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Rod Laver defeated fellow Australian Ken Rosewall 6-2, 6-2, 12-10 Monday and won the first professional tennis tournament ever played at Wimbledon, citadel of the amateur game.

42nd Running Of Hambletonian

DU QUOIN, Ill. (AP)— Imagine going along and having all four wheels of your car lock.

That's how it feels sometimes to Art Hult, driver and trainer of Speed Model, a tempermental filly.

The big, brown daughter of Speedster ranks with three colts — Dazzling Speed, Speedy Streak and Keystone Pride— as top favorites in a field of a dozen 3-year-old trotters going in the $122,650 Hambletonian Wednesday.

"If things don't set just right, Speedy Model puts on a bucking act," says Hult, who at 26 could become the youngest driver ever to win the Kentucky Derby of harness racing.

"She acts up for no reason at times and then again it takes something definie to set her off. At Vernon Downs a clod of mud flew up and hit her in the stomach and she started bucking like a bronco.

"At Goshen, just as the mobile gate closed and the race started, she set all four feet and came to a squealing stop.

"We've put cups on the sides of her eyes and that seems to have helped. She can look around but not back.

Speed Model has won five of 15 starts this year. Several times in her theatrical tantrums she even has tried to kick Hult out of the sulky.

Lately she has been on her good behavior, finishing second and fourth in two heats of the Review Futurity in Springfield, won by Dazzling Speed and Speedy Streak, and capturing one division of the split American National at Chicago's Sportsman's Park.

"There has been a lot of push for gun laws, but these people are attacking a symptom rather than the disease. If they are really interested in the situation, they could try to find out what causes crime and mental disorder. The amount of research and activity in this field is barely minimal."

Dr. Albert Elkin, Ph. D., Psychologist, 1966

UDDEVALLA, Sweden (AP) — Willie Davenport of Athens, Ohio, won the 100-meter event in 10.7 seconds at an international track and field meet here Monday.

Arkansas State Gridders To Report Wednesday

JONESBORO, Ark. -- Head football coach Bennie Ellender and his staff will greet 80 Arkansas State University gridders tomorrow to begin preparations for what is expected to be the toughest schedule in the school's history.

The Indians will undergo physicals Wednesday and will pose for photographers and answer newsmen's questions Thursday beginning at 9 a.m. Practice sessions will be held daily beginning Friday at 8:30 a.m. and 3 p.m.

The Indians return 19 starters from last season's 7-2 squad and they will be joined by eight other lettermen, plus five transfers and several promising redshirts and recruits.

The Indian staff will be intact with one addition. Returning coaches include Wayne Armstrong, defensive line, Bill Davidson, offensive line, and Bill Templeton, offensive backfield. Wilson Waites, former head coach at Trinity University, was hired the summer as defensive backfield coach.

One of the positions that has to be filled is that of halfback left vacant by the graduation of All-American Terry Gwin, who set a Southland Conference rushing record last fall. Two-year starter at defensive halfback, Gary Hankins was moved to offensive spot in spring drills and showed he had potential to fill the gap.

Two defensive spots are in need of immediate help and two others are likely to be filled by transfers. Former University of Arkansas star Tommy Sain is counted on to replace linebacker Truman Moore's spot and another U of A transfer Clovis Swinney is a probable tackle starter.

Monster man and the defensive halfback spot of Hankins are two spots that must be filled. Oft-injured Gwin Wood is the top candidate at the roving linebacking job and transfer Steve Struble and kicker Gary Elliott will battle for the halfback position.

The Indians will kick off their 1967 schedule Sept. 23 by hosting Western Michigan University, the pre-season favorite in the Mid-American Conference, in a 8 p.m. game.

Ferrenburg allowed nine bases on balls in Morley's first inning spurt.

Morley's third seeker, Larry Burden hit a seventh inning homer to add to the lead.

Tonight's schedule finds Morley SCC meeting Advance at 8 p.m.

Apple Production Down in Missori

JEFFERSON CITY-Missouri's apple harvest will be 400,000 bushels short of last year's production of 1,050,000 bushels if pre-harvest estimates are correct, the employment service reports.

The United States department of agriculture and Missouri department of agriculture also estimate the state peach harvest at 320,000 bushels compared to last year's harvest of 280,000 bushels.

Southeast Missouri reports an increase in out-state labor needs with recruitment and order filling underway. Wisconsin and Minnesota are the principal recipients of Missouri labor.

Labor demands in the Sikeston area are limited to top farm equipment operators. Out-of-area commitments are slow in starting for the corn and tomato harvest.

Twenty-one in-plant workers and seven equipment operators were accepted last week. The out-area movement is expected to be heavy for the next two weeks.

The farm labor information station and rest camp, route two, served 101 migrants last week with seven staying in Missouri, 17 enroute to Ohio, six going to Indiana and the balance of 56 returning to Texas.

There is some activity in watermelon harvest in the Kennett region. The supply of good melons in the central part of the county is plentiful. Demand is slow.

Soybean chopping continues to be in volume with demand and supply of labor in balance.

Demand for farm labor in the Cape Girardeau area continues to be unusually light. All crops, fruit and vegetables are in good condition.

Major farm activities in the Caruthersville area are disking and leveling lay out land. Most of the chopping and cultivating has been completed.

Cotton picking, from estimates of several persons contacted, will probably start about the last week in September or the first week in October. All of the ginners contacted expect to gin from 50 per cent to 75 per cent of what they ginned last year. Two or three days a week is all that the larger ginners are expecting to be able to operate during the season. There is some recruiting for cannery workers for Minnesota.

No farming activity is in progress in the Poplar Bluff area. The need of rain is beginning to show in soybeans.

Four applicants are being processed at the labor mobility office, 211 Pine St., Poplar Bluff. Six applicants have been referred in the past 10 days.

Unpaid Bills Form Post Office Cloud

POPLAR BLUFF--A complex and controversial legal snarl has developed in connection with nonpayment of construction material bills on the new post office.

A total of $56,209.80 in mechanics liens had been filed Friday in the Butler county circuit court and at least one lawsuit has been employed to enforce collection on a lien. A lien is defined legally as a claim on the property of another as security against payment of a debt. A lawsuit is required to enforce a lien.

The suit filed involves Steward Steel Supply Co., Sikeston, who names as defendants all persons principally involved in the post office ownership and construction. The suit asks payment of $9,176.01 on account with the Keystone Lumber Co., Cleveland, Okla., plus $2,000 for "refusal to pay" and another $2,000 for attorney fees. Keystone, known also as the Price Construction Co., Cleveland, Okla., is the prime contractor on the job.

Also named as defendants in the suit to enforce the lien against Keystone are:

The owners of the land on which the post office stands. Mr. and Mrs. Morrison L. Clevelen, Poplar Bluff, Mr. and Mrs. Earl C. Pierce, Ponte Verdra, Fla., and Mrs. Dorris Serafini, Poplar Bluff. (Mrs. Clevelen and Mrs. Serafini are sisters and Mrs. Pierce is a niece of Mrs. Clevlen's)

The owners of the building itself, Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Rubin, Coral Gables, Fla.

The institution where the Rubin's borrowed money to build the post office, Old Colony Trust Co., Boston.

A firm whose pension fund actually comprised the money lent by Old Colony, the Houghton-Mifflin Co., a Boston publisher.

An insurance firm who is the bonding agency for the contractor, Continental Casualty Co.

And, an attorney, Robert C. Hyde, who is named as trustee by Old Colony in a deed of trust.

The post office department apparently is not directly involved legally in the situation. But it is expected that at least political pressure will be exerted by the department to help the delinquent bill payment.

The Daily American Republic has learned that Congressman Paul C. Jones is concerned with the problem and has made inquiries of post office dept. officials in Washington.

The contractor is bonded for $235,000 and attorneys have indicated that the building suppliers who have not been paid probably will be protected in the long run.

In the ownership and construction arrangement the post office is not owned by the government.

The owners of the land lease their property to the Rubins, who borrowed money and had the building constructed in their name. The Rubins in turn lease the structure to the post office dept.

The government has not officially accepted the building from the contractors. The department says there still remain construction items which have not been completed.

It is reported by Poplar Bluff firms who have not been paid that the contractors are refusing to answer long distance telephone calls or acknowledge mail inquiries.

The following liens have been filed in connection with the Post Office project:

E. C. Robinson Lumber Co., Poplar Bluff, against the Leonard Bauer Plumbing Co., Jefferson City, $170.67.

B-D-R Engineering Corp, Kansas City, against Price Construction Co., $800.31.

Huffman Wholesale Supply Co., Poplar Bluff, against the Bauer plumbing firm, $1,870.05.

Pat H. Castrop Lathing & Plastering Co. against the Price firm, $7,334.

Porter - DeWitt Construction Co., Poplar Bluff, against Price, $8,018.36.

Ceco Steel Products Corp., Kansas City, against Keystone Lumber Co., $8,667.47.

Steward Steel Supply Co., against Keystone, $9,076.91.

Lawson Electric Supply Co., Tulsa, against Keystone, $8,-921.17.

Tile Center, Inc., St. Louis, against Price and Keystone firms, $6,553.

And Kasten Masonry Sales, Inc., Cape Girardeau, against Price, Keystone, Mr. and Mrs. Rubin, Mr. and Mrs. Clevlen and Mrs. Serafini.

On maneuvers in Germany, our infantry platoon was ordered to fall back across a river. Everyone managed to wade across except the radio operator, who stepped into a hole and sank from sight. Weighted down by the radio strapped to his back, the operator calmly walked along the bottom until he reached shallow water and emerged. Our young career lieutenant rushed up to praise the radioman for creditable behavior in a frightening situation. Then, putting in a plug for his chosen profession, he asked dramatically, "Without the benefit of Army training and discipline, do you realize where you would probably be now?"

"Yes, sir," answered the dripping soldier, "In Hartford, Connecticut."

14-Million-Bale Cotton Crop Urged for 1968

PORTAGEVILLE -- Thursday the Missouri Cotton Producers association in an open executive committee meeting culminated a series of producer group meetings and questioning of producers regarding the status of the cotton industry and preferences for 1968.

Due to the acreage diversion program and to poor climate conditions for two years, the supply of cotton has descreased to a point where it is necessary to increase cotton production or risk by default permanent loss of markets to synthetic fibers and foreign growths.

Potential adjustments by the department of agriculture were considered and unanimously endorsed. Missouri Cotton Producers Associaton's President, T. A. Haggard, prepared a letter to the department of agriculture in which he said, "assuming an 8.3 million bale production in 1967 and a steady offtake, it would appear that if we are to obtain an adequate stock of merchandise to effectively market our produce, we must produce somewhere in the vicinity of 13 1/2 to 14 million bales in 1968".

Recommendations to the department of agriculture reflected the importance of maintaining producer net income both over the short and long run and were:

(1) Limitation of the diversion program to a 10 per cent mandatory diversion.

(2) Effective discouragement of the continued production of undesirable cotton by instituting a system of premiums and discounts.

(3) Preparation for legislation that would properly recognize our carryover of undesirable cotton as a victim of the technological progress and authorize a separate procedure to effect its utilization.

(4) No change in the current skip row regulations.

(5) An accelerated emphasis on production costs in cotton research.

Campaign Draws Near

WASHINGTON, D.C., -- Thousands of petitioners - led by a strong contingent of rank - and-file employees (both union and non-union) are set to hit the pavements as the start of the Oklahoma Right to Work petition campaign draws nearer.

"Operation LUV" (Let Us Vote!) - a 90-day campaign to get 200,000 (only 101,000 are needed) initiative petition signatures calling for a vote of the people on a proposal to outlaw the compulsory union shop begins Tuesday, September 5.

Elsewhere on the Right to Work front:

. . . .The recently organized Californians for Right to Work announced the election of officers and key Committee Chairmen.

. . . .An Idaho Right to Work organization has been formed with officers scheduled to be announced at a press conference next week.

. . . .An employee organization- "Pennsylvania Employees For Right to Work" - has been launched and is starting to circulate petitions among rank-and-file workers calling for the enactment of a Right to Work law in Pennsylvania.

PROSPECTS EXCELLENT

Reed Larson, Executive Vice President of the National Right to Work Committee, predicts success in getting enough petition signers. "In 1962," he said, "approximately 4,000 Right to Work boosters participated in a petition and drive and gathered the signatures of 213,-000 registered voters.

"I consider the prospects excellent that the voters of Oklahoma will approve the Right to Work amendment. However, because of the expected legal delays, it will probably be early 1969 before a referendum is held.

"With the start of the campaign imminent, desperate union professionals have stepped up their campaign to prevent a vote of the people on the issue of compulsory unionsim. The announcement that Columbia pictures objected to the 'LUV' theme because of the soon - to - be - held premiere of their motion picture 'LUV' came on the heels of a threat by union bigwigs to promote a union boycott of the film. The combination of events suggests that the bosses will not hesitate to browbeat or intimidate any individual, group or company in their efforts to perpetuate compulsory union membership - the source of their excessive economic and political power.

"This attempt failed as their petition for a temporary injunction was turned down. The U.S. District Court Judge rightly ruled for free 'LUV'.

"The state AFL-CIO is also attempting to pressure union members supporting Right to Work into withdrawing this support. Raymond C. Losornio, a vice president of Local 386 of the Federation of Federal Employees, has revealed that Oklahoma AFL-CIO officials exerted pressure on his employer in an attempt to get him to resign his post on the Board of Trustees for Oklahomans For The Right To Work. A group of union officials, led by state AFL-CIO President Alva Hollingsworth called on his employer, made some unsubstantiated accusations and thus threatened his job and the income and security of his family- all because he opposes compulsory unionism."

Larson added that the action of the Tulsa NAACP was of even greater significance than the amusing controversy over "free LUV." He said, "The union 'pros' had barely launched their attack on 'LUV' when they were stunned by the announcement that Oklahoma Negroes will not oppose Right to Work unless racial discrimination by unions is ended."

Some 300 Negroes who attended a rally sponsored by the Tulsa NAACP August 6 gave a rousing ovation to State Senator E. Melvin Porter when he said, "We won't listen to labor leaders who sit behind big desks and hand out big smiles, big cigars and money to a few people. What we want are iron - clad assurances that Negroes may become union plumbers, carpenters and workers in the other crafts, because we want jobs - and that's where the money is!"

Senator Porter reminded them, "Negroes defeated Right to Work the last election by voting 99.44 per cent against it, but we won't be fooled again."

Not surprisingly, this explosion stunned the union bosses. After summoning help from AFL-CIO headquarters in Washington, they called on Senator Porter in an effort to reclaim his support.

The Senator was unmoved, according to Tulsa World reporter Travis Walsh. Commenting on the refusal of craft unions to accept Negro apprentices, Senator Porter said, "They haven't done much on their own initiative. I'll have to wait and see."

The referendum resulting from the 1962 petition campaign was stalled for more than two years by a nuisance lawsuit filed by officials of the Oklahoma State AFL-CIO. At the expense of their dues - paying membership, they challenged the validity and sufficency of the petition and their protest was ultimately thrown out by the Oklahoma Supreme Court. More than 700,000 votes were cast in May 1964 on the Right To Work amendment, which failed by a narrow margin, 48½ per cent to 51½ per cent.

IDAHO.

In Boise, Idaho Citizens For Right To Work, will be incorporated next week. Ron Johnston, an Orofino lumberman who has been serving as Chairman of the Organizing Committee said, "This new organization will serve as a voice for the hundreds of thousands of Idaho citizens who oppose compulsory unionism. We expect to mount a hard - hitting grassroots educational campaign with a goal of either legislative action in 1969 or a 1970 referendum."

CALIFORNIA.

In California, officers and key committee chairmen have been elected for the recently - organized Californians For Right To Work. E. Russell White of Oakland and formerly associated with Mill College was named as President and Executive Director and Rex L. Coons of Anaheim, Vice President and Finance Chairman.

The California effort is considered "long - range" but is not lightly regarded by the labor bosses. Only a few weeks ago a union publication in Richmond, California (the Contra Costa County Labor Journal) admitted that the new Right to Work drive "is not to be taken lightly. Studies made for the AFL-CIO and for one Bay Area labor council indicate that the leadership of many unions is out of touch with a large number of their members."

Gillnetters Catch Drops in Maine

PORTLAND, Maine, (AP) — Ronald W. Green, state sea and shore fisheries commissioner, says the total catch by gillnetters in Maine dropped from 5,768,223 pounds in 1947 to 2,208,033 in 1966.

Gill nets, about six feet high and two miles long, trap fish that swim into their four-inch mesh. One edge is held on the ocean bottom by lead weights and the top is held up by floats.

"Yes, I used to shoot tigers in Africa," asserted the big game hunter.

"But there are no tigers in Africa," protested the suspicious one.

"Certainly not!" exclaimed the hunter. "I shot them all!"

SUBLIMATION

Today I doctored Susan's tiny toe,
Told Tressa stories of my goats, and so,
Forgot awhile my small ones far away,
All grown up now (no one holds Time at bay).
When anyone's own child invades your heart,
Then every small one, too, must be a part.

Read any good Commandments lately?

Though we don't live in Old Testament times, the Ten Commandments are still a good guide for life.

Ponder them.

They cover all our relations with our Creator, our family, our fellow man.

And if we could just follow them all, wars would cease, intolerance and prejudice would end, crime and immorality would be non-existent.

In short, a perfect world.

But none of us is perfect. Which is the very reason these great commandments were created.

Can the world be made a better place to live in? Can people really obey all the Ten Commandments? Start with yourself. And start at the place where you worship. If you put your faith to work every day, why the world is that much better already!

Ann Landers

All Homes Need One Adult

Dear Ann Landers: Right now I am burning up. Will you please tell me what to do about a 28-year-old husband who has less sense than his 3-year-old son?

Ever since we first married I have asked to please turn his socks, undershirts and shorts right side out before he throws them in the hamper. It really slows up my Mondays to have to turn everything.

Last week I hit on what I thought was the ideal solution. As usual, everything was wrong side out, so I just washed his socks and undershirts wrong side out and I ironed them that way, too. He never said a word. He just wore them that way.

What do I do now? -- PRUDENCE

Dear Prudence: Every home should have at least one adult. Grow up and be the adult in your family before your children notice that their parents are a couple of kids.

In less time than it took you to write this letter you could have turned every garment in the hamper inside out or outside in and saved yourself a case of applexy in the bargain.

Dear Ann Landers: I have been going with this man for two years. He is kind and sweet, but he has a habit that bothers me. He keeps running out of money.

I kept track of our last 10 dates and I paid seven times. This goes for movie tickets, dinners and baseball games. He never warns me. He just tells me when we get to the box office (or when the check comes) that he is a little short, and will I "help him out"? Last night we decided to drive to Akron for supper and we were half way there he pulled into a gas station and said, "Fill 'er up." Then he turned to me and said, "Do you have $6.40?"

Please don't say I should tell him to get lost. I love this man and I don't want to stop seeing him. What I want you to tell me is how I can get him to stop sticking me with the tab. Thank you -- INSUFFICIENT FUNDS

Dear In: Look, Lady, I write an advice column. I am not a magician. This bird is a free loader and you might as well know it.

If you want to continue to go with him, do so with your eyes open. And carry plenty of money with you at all times because you're going to need it.

Dear Ann Landers: I don't know who else to ask so I am asking you. How come parents can go around swearing and using any kind of language they want to and when us kids do it we get slapped across the mouth?

My mother says adults can say whatever they please because they are adults. I don't think this is a very good excuse. Do you? -- LOOSE TOOTH

Dear Loose: When your mother says adults can say whatever they please it means they do not have to worry about getting slapped across the mouth by a parent. This, in my opnion, is a pretty poor excuse for swearing and using gutter language.

A foul mouth is a liability to adults as well as children. It can also get to be a habit. So why don't you imitate something that will add to your personality, not detract from it?

Drinking may be "in" to the kids you run with -- but it can put you "out" for keeps. You can cool it and stay popular. Read "Booze and You -- For Teen-Agers Only." Send 35¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

If You Were the Judge

Wisdom Goal Which May Not Be Reached

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Carl didn't get anything out of college, not even himself. After four years of studying, he was told that he wasn't eligible to graduate. Indignant, he sued the college for the return of his tuition.

"The college catalogs, and faculty members too," he told the judge "falsely represented that I would be taught wisdom and truth. The fact is, I was taught neither."

"That's not our fault," a college official answered. "You can lead a boy to college, but you can't make him think."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you return Carl's tuition because he wasn't taught wisdom?

This is how the judge ruled: Carl flunked again. The judge held that "wisdom" is not a subject which can be taught and no rational person would believe any claim to the contrary. "Wisdom," the judge noted, is a hoped-for end product of education, experience and ability which many seek and many fail to obtain.

Today in U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Tuesday, Aug. 29, the 241st day of 1967. There are 124 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1842, Britain signed a treaty with China obtaining rights to Hong Kong.

On this date:

In 1809, American writer Oliver Wendell Holmes was born.

In 1835, the Australian city of Melbourne was founded.

In 1877, Mormon leader Brigham Young died.

In 1901, temperance agitator Carrie Nation, armed with a hatchet, descended upon a New York saloon operated by former boxing champion John L. Sullivan.

In 1935, Queen Astrid of Belgium was killed in a car accident in Switzerland.

In 1948, presidential candidate Henry A. Wallace was heckled and pelted with eggs at a political rally in Durham, N.C.

Ten years ago — The U.S. Senate passed a civil rights bill after a long filibuster by Southern opponents.

Five years ago — Jordan and Saudi Arabia announced a plan to merge their military forces and coordinate their economic policies.

One year ago — Twenty thousand young Chinese staged a rally against the Soviet Union at Moscow's embassy in Peking.

Nowadays too many people are trying to be the first over the line in the mad pursuit of nonconformity. John Healy

Music Dollar Jingle

NEW YORK (AP) — A lot more than the hills are alive with the sound of music in the United States.

The echo is being heard from the mountains, to the prairies, to the oceans, accompanied by a louder and louder tune on the cash registers of the music industry.

In 1930, there were 13 million amateur musicians banging, tootling and strumming away in the United States, according to the American Music Conference.

But by the beginning of this year, the ranks of the music men, women and children had swollen to more than 41 million. About 15 million of these range in age from 4 to 21, and the other 26 million are over 21.

"Amateur musicians in the United States increased by an average of approximately a million annually from 1950 to 1961," says the conference, which describes itself as an educational organization supported by major segments of the music industry.

"From 1962 to 1966, however, the average annual increase exceeded 1.8 million with dramatic increases of 2.3 million in 1965 and again in 1966.

"America's amateur musicians are almost entirely responsible for the long record-breaking upswing in sales of new instruments, instrument accessories and instructional aids that started 20 years ago. They have also contributed substantially to improved sales of sheet music in recent years."

The conference says these combined sales, which totaled $90 million in 1941, jumped to $955 million in 1966 and surpassed "the dollar volume of all records sold, and the combined dollar volumes of all spectator sports, still and movie cameras, comic books and playing cards."

How do you explain this current boom, boom, boom in an industry that was in decline before World War II?

"There is a higher level of education in the country and a greater need for individual creativity," says Marion Egbert, the conference's educational director. "This combination is part of the great atmosphere that exists for music making."

Egbert also cites new teaching techniques which make learning music fun and not a chore—plinking out the "Skater's Waltz" on the piano every day for a month is out—and the "growing awareness generally in education that things like music and art are needed to balance their programs. Almost every school today has a music program."

Or, as the member of a youthful rock 'n' roll group puts it, musical instruments are a way for young people to express themselves.

State Fair Record Breaker

SEDALIA, Mo. (AP) — Officials of the Missouri State Fair reported today the 1967 exposition outdrew all previous ones in both money and attendance.

W. C. Askew, secretary, reported for the first time in many years the fair's returns to the general revenue fund exceeded the General Assembly's appropriations.

He said $471,000 had been deposited with the state's general fund. This is $21,000 above the appropriation for the fair.

"It will be sometime before the actual receipts are determined," he said, "but it will be over the appropriation. Also, considerable sales tax monies were collected at the fair and they go beyond any previous year according to tax representatives who reported the gross was up over last year.

Askew said a final check showed attendance was 7,506 ahead of the 1966 fair.

Threshing Bee

WAUKOMIS, Okla. (AP) — An organization dedicated to preserving steam-operated threshers recently held its 11th annual Waukomis Threshing Bee.

Some 4,000 persons stood in a hot sun to watch steam threshers shatter grain. Stacks of wheat and oats, carefully preserved for the occasion, were erved for the occasion, were tossed into grinding separators.

Blythe Hottest

NEW YORK (AP) — The high temperature in the nation Monday was 113 degrees at Blythe, Calif. The overnight low was 41 at Reno, Nev.

Sight and Teeth

Rules Are Eased

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Plans are afoot these days to take the teeth out and put glasses into the medical requirements for Los Angeles policemen and firemen.

If a plan proposed by the board of Civil Service commissioners is approved, applicants won't have to possess natural teeth—dentures, if acceptable, will do—and eyesight can be less perfect, as long as duty can be performed.

The dimension which is missing from men's lives today is reverence. Joseph L. Bishop

Weaver to Get Crack at New TV Role

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Dennis Weaver, with one hit and some misses behind him, is returning to television this season, playing a husband and father in an early evening CBS series whose title role is enacted by a large, black bear.

"Gentle Ben," however, is promised as an adventure series with a difference. Even though it comes off the production lines of Ivan Tors, who gave us Judy, the chimp; Clarence, the cross-eyed lion of "Daktari," and Flipper, the superdolphin, Weaver insists that Ben, 650 pounds of tractability and friendliness, will be treated in the scripts as a family pet, unendowed with human sensitivities.

"No one in this series," said Weaver, "will ever get into a mess and say, 'I'm hurt, Ben, go get dad.'"

"Gentle Ben" follows "Lassie" on the network's Sunday evening schedule—and Lassie has been getting dad, the rangers or—most often—doing the rescuing herself, for 13 years without a goof. The two shows should provide an interesting study in contrast.

Weaver made an indelible impression on television audiences during the nine years he played Chester, Marshal Dillon's limping, drawling, worrying side-kick in "Gunsmoke." After he quit the show, he went through a difficult period attempting to shake himself of the Chester identity.

"It was natural to be identified that strongly," he said. "The character was extremely visual, which puts the actor into a pigeon-hole—particularly since Chester has stayed in view on "Gunsmoke" reruns.

After that he made a couple of pilots, neither of which worked out, a short-lived series called "Kentucky Jones," and since then has been busy in motion pictures.

In "Gentle Ben," shot in Florida, Weaver plays a game warden and father of an 8-year-old boy with a pet bear. Ben is an American bear who was raised as a pet by a family in Minnesota and is as tame—and gentle—as the ordinary family dog, Weaver says. However, he is handled by five trainers, three of them on the set with him at all times.

"He's friendly with everyone," said Weaver, "everyone who will feed him, that is. Bears are omnivorous, so it doesn't matter whether it's honey, crackers, doughnuts, just as long as it's food."

The actor observed that the usual format for such a show is merely a convenient frame in which to place the animals.

"Our format is to tell a story, and use the animal to enhance it—but as a pet animal, not something human under a furry exterior. I don't think that is really necessary and just detracts from the believability," he said.

"And if you aren't faced with the necessity of having the animal wrap up everything neatly at the end, the base of the series can be much broader."

Although "Gentle Ben" is aimed at young audiences, Weaver thinks that adults may find it interesting.

"It's the opposite of 'Gunsmoke,'" he said. "That was made for adults

Bargaining Appeal Made To Farmers

About 600 farmers were urged to apply the same principles practiced by business, industry and labor to establish price control for their products.

"This can only be done through collective bargaining," Oran Lee Staley, Rea, president of the National Farmers Organization, said. Staley spoke at an NFO organizational meeting Monday night at the armory.

He explained that he flew here from Iowa for three main purposes: To discuss the NFO program and answer questions about it, to discuss agriculture and the agriculture industry, and to ask the farmers to join the NFO.

Staley related that the farmers support is essential to the NFO effort because only with strength can collective bargaining be effective.

The NFO started from a discussion between an Iowa farmer and a feed dealer about the pricing system for agricultural products. Soon a small group was formed and they decided first in 1955, to send telegrams to Washington, D.C., and later to send representatives to lobby.

They learned that the Capper-Volstead Act of Feb. 18, 1922, authorized a group to legally set up an organization to represent the farmers and bargain collectively on their behalf, Staley said.

The group organized for one purpose, Staley continued, to do what it could for equitable prices for farm products.

The reason why prices on farm products "have not been equitable is that farmers are the only segment of an organized economy who have not organized," Staley related.

Farmers have gone to the market and asked processors what they will give.

Other segments of the economy such as the steel and automobile industries set their price and others follow suit, he continued.

"We have seen the small groceries virtually replaced by chain stores that deal in tremendous volume," Staley said. "This volume is not necessarily bad. But when they deal in volume, they have a tremendous effect on prices."

The law of supply and demand operates well, only when there is equal strength on both sides, he continued.

The NFO has made progress to achieve enough power so it can put the price on farm products as surely as manufacturers price clothing and shoes.

Referring to a recent article in the Wall Street Journal, Staley said, a corporate type of agriculture is just over the hill.

"Do you know why?" he asked. "Because of low farm income.

"You and I know that we cannot expect the young farmers today to stay on the farm like we did. They will only stay if they have equal opportunity to earn an equitable return on their investment compared to other walks of life. The average age of farmers today is 55-58."

Larger farm units are needed today to pay for the equipment to operate efficiently, he said.

Investment capital required to start an operation is getting larger and larger to the point where eventually the individual farmer will not be able to take over," Staley said.

"Large farmers also suffer from the present pricing system. They have more to lose.

"Ten thousand acre units are appearing in Texas, Missouri, Arkansas and the Dakotas. And farmers are talking more about leasing in 10,000 acre units."

Turning to the membership agreement, which had been circulated to those attending, Staley asked: "What does it say?"

"It says you sign the NFO as a bargaining unit for all products produced on your farms," Staley said. "It is not the aim to raise the price of a single product, because then diversified farmers will switch their operation, produce too much and deflate the price.

"We hope to bring the prices up in balance to keep diversified farmers from switching."

The membership agreement is for a three-year period for continuity reasons. The member agrees to pay $25 per year or one per cent of his gross to the NFO, if a marketing contract is consummated by the NFO covering a members commodity.

Until a marketing contract is effected, the member is free to sell as he wishes, Staley explained.

To form a marketing area contract would require two-thirds approval of member farmers. Negotiations for a volume contract would first be conducted by NFO leadership and seven zone leaders in a particular marketing area. Marketing areas are made up of 25 to 50 neighboring counties. Once the price is negotiated with a large processor, the local county organizations are asked to call a meeting, notify each member and vote on the contract.

"Collective bargaining, simply, means working together to meet processors and buyers needs on a volume basis," Staley said.

"There is only one reason farmers are receiving the low prices they are getting today. It is because enough farmers are willing to take it.

"This can be done by putting the crop together as collective farmers, putting it on the market in volume at the price you want."

Staley explained the organization's policy of holding actions.

The NFO is faced with an anti-trust suit. In effect, the suit is more directly accusing us of asking non-members to support in a previous holding action, he said. Staley said he was confident that the NFO would win the suit.

The organization has always opposed violations of law and stated its policy against violence, Staley said. Nothing has ever been won in the United States through force and intimidation, he continued.

When a holding action is voted by the NFO board, members are asked to keep their products from the market to effect a price rise. But co-operation is purely voluntary Staley said.

Red Chinese Clash With London Police

LONDON (AP) — Members of Red China's diplomatic mission and police fought bloody battles today outside the legation in the heart of London, bringing an angry diplomatic exchange.

Several policemen and Chinese were injured in two clashes. The Chinese brandished sticks, axes and threw bottles. One flashed a revolver but it was not fired. The police fought back with night sticks.

The first clash came when police stepped in to stop about 10 Britons and 15 Chinese who were punching and kicking one another after an exchange of words. A crowd of about 150 watched.

The second clash came as China's charge d'affaires returned from lodging a protest at the Foreign Office against the first incident.

About 40 policemen and Chinese were involved in a seething mass of bodies in a tiny Mews behind the legation.

The fighting started when the Chinese barred the way of a police car and refused to move. The police pushed them away and immediately a crowd of Chinese rushed out of the mission's headquarters swinging bats and axes and hurling bottles and ash can covers.

One policeman was led away with blood streaming from a head wound. A Chinese, his face bloodied, was dragged by police along the cobblestones.

The police picked up the ash can covers and used them as shields against a barrage of milk bottles thrown at them.

A woman who lives in an upstairs apartment in the same mews joined in the fighting by throwing flower pots at the Chinese.

A blonde policewoman who got caught up in the fighting said: "It was terrifying. I never thought I would see anything like this in Britain."

When the fighting died down ambulances drove up to the legation and the attendants were allowed to carry out on stretchers three Chinese — their heads wrapped in bandages.

A crowd of 300 began to converge on the legation but were held back by police.

Some shouts came from the crowd, "Smash Communism," "Mao is a pig!" and "Go back to China."

After the first outburst before noon, Chinese Charge d'affaires Shen Ping called at the Foreign Office and angrily accused the British police of beating up members of his staff.

Viet Cong Election Plot

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. and South Vietnamese sources say the Viet Cong have plotted a countrywide campaign to sabotage the presidential elections Sunday with increased military attacks, terrorism and propaganda.

The sources said information on the Communist plans came from captured documents, intelligence reports and questioning of guerrillas taken prisoner.

Over the weekend the Communists launched a series of mortar, rocket and artillery attacks from Quang Tri Province below the demilitarized zone to the Mekong delta in the south. There also has been a sharp increase in terrorist kidnapings, murders and sabotage.

The sources said one captured document called for Communist forces in the northern city of Da Nang to "smash the buffoonery of the election." It said that if the elections were a failure, this would provide "momentum to force a new political crisis."

Post Office Burglary Fails

BRAGG CITY--An attempted burglary at the Bragg City Post office early today--was unsuccessful.

Pemiscot county deputy sheriff Raymond Ings said, burglars pried the side door open with an iron bar. Nothing was reported missing.

Governors Ask More Guard Riot Training

OSAGE BEACH, Mo. (AP) -- The Midwestern Governors' Conference called today for additional training guidance and techniques for the National Guard to deal with civil disorder.

In a resolution the conference said the Department of Defense 32-hour crash training program is a step in the right direction but is inadequate.

"The problems which have been confronted in the recent iolent domestic upheavals throughout the nation," the resolution said, "represent new dimensions in the area of civil disturbances never before experienced by military forces of this country."

In another resolution the governors pointed out that the first responsibility for maintaining law and order belongs to state and local government.

The governors said the states should be given a bigger say in the development of social and economic programs "designed to eliminate the causes of discontent, resentment and discrimination by reason of race or economic status. State governments must be given authority in the inception and development of social and economic programs in relationship to obligations."

The governors also asked the Council of State Governments to "draft an inter-state compact setting forth legally sound methods for mutual assistance among adjoining states for utilization of National Guard units in the event that civil disorders require such assistance across state lines."

Senate Votes to Triple FHA Grants

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill tripling federal grants under the consolidated Farmers Home Administration Act for rural water and sewer projects was passed by the Senate and sent to the House Monday.

Grants of up to $150 million a year would be permitted, compared to the present $50 million limit.

The bill also would expand the types of real estate loans authorized for owner-operators of family size farms to include enterprises needed to supplement farm income.

Expect Quick Union Rejection

DETROIT (AP) — The auto industry offered the United Auto Workers union what one company termed the best contract proposals ever today, but asked the union to cut back on some demands won in previous years.

The industry presented a solid and united front in answering for the first time demands the union itself has termed the most ambitious it has ever made.

Quick rejection of the industry proposals by the union was expected.

The industry economic offers, based on a proposed three-year contract, come after two months of bargaining and with only eight days remaining before a strike deadline.

Contracts covering 650,000 workers at the Big Three expire at midnight Sept. 6 although only the company selected by the union as a pattern setter would be struck.

The three companies estimated their package at 33 to 51 cents an hour over the next three years, including a flat 13-cent-an-hour hike now and 2.8 per cent a year in the following two years.

All three, however, asked the union to modify a cost-of-living escalator clause based on the government cost-of-living index which has brought union members increases of 18 cents an hour since 1964.

UAW President Walter P. Reuther has said he would brook no tampering with the clause and that an attempt to change would be a strikeable issue.

The industry also offered the union an increase of from 62 per cent to 80 per cent in the supplemental unemployment benefits — the benefits that supplement a laid-off worker's state unemployment compensation.

This apparently was far short of the demand made by the union for a complete guaranteed annual income.

Louis G. Seaton of General Motors called his firm's offer the best it has ever made.

Malcolm Denise, chief bargainer at Ford, termed his company's package "responsive and responsible."

GM estimated its contract package at 36 to 44 cents an hour over the next three years. Ford pegged its at 34 cents. Chrysler figured 33 to 51 cents.

Seaton has estimated that union demands made at the start of bargaining in July would cost GM at least $4 an hour.

The industry also offered additional wage boosts for skilled workers, an issue that has caused some dissension in the union. Skilled workers have demanded increases of at least $1 an hour more than the rest of the workers get.

The three companies did not specify how much they would give the 200,000 industry skilled and said only that it was negotiable.

Ford and Chrysler took a different tack than GM on the escalator clause. Both asked ceilings be placed on the amount possible for a worker to get—Ford of 6 cents an hour, Chrysler of 7.

Nothing was said by any company about the union demand for parity for Canadian workers, which along with guaranteed annual income, a big wage boost and continuation of the escalator clause were the union's chief demands. The UAW placed no monetary value on its own package.

The straight-time average hourly wage in the auto industry is figured at $3.41 by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. Fringe benefits are estimated by the companies to run the total cost to about $4.70 hourly.

Cool Air Coming To Missouri

KANSAS CITY (AP)— Missouri warmed up a little today, but the weatherman says another surge of cool air is headed for the state.

Southerly winds are expected to shift to northerly in the northwest tonight. Wednesday's highs will be in the upper 80s in the northwest and from the mid 70s to the mid 80s in the rest of the state.

Monday's highs were in the 80s, ranging from 81 at Kirksville and St. Joseph to 89 at Springfield.

16 Planes Lost-- Heaviest in Air War

SAIGON (AP) — The United States suffered its heaviest losses for a seven-day period in the air war against North Vietnam— 16 planes— between Aug. 21 and Aug. 27, the U.S. Command announced today.

The 16th plane— a Marine A6 Intruder— was lost on Sunday due to "unknown causes," the command said, but announcement of the loss was delayed for security reasons.

The two Marine fliers were listed as missing in action, bringing the total of missing fliers for the seven-day period to 24. Three were rescued. In South Vietnam, the stepped-up Communist campaign of shelling and bridge destruction in the northern war zone was met today by three heavy B52 raids on Red staging bases inside the demilitarized zone.

Military headquarters said Communists blew up nine bridges in the past 24 hours— eight of them in the northern area and one in the main Mekong delta city of Can Tho.

The heavy attacks by the B52s followed intensive tactical air strikes by Marine and Air Force pilots on the gun positions where the Reds have dug in their heaviest weapons— 152mm guns with a range of almost 20 miles.

These big guns opened up with heavy barrages on Marine positions two days ago, and since then Marine fighter-bomber pilots claim to have destroyed 14 fortified pits housing the big truck-drawn field pieces.

The increase in Communist shelling, bridge-blowing and terrorism was evidently intended to demonstrate Red muscle during the South Vietnamese presidential election campaign which ends Sunday. The Communists appear to be concentrating on terrorism in Saigon and on disrupting traffic along coastal Highway 1 in the northern sector and the main paved road south from Saigon to the big cities of My Tho and Can Tho in the Mekong delta.

Just after midnight Monday Communist sappers used the same technique to blow important bridges in Can Tho, and just below Da Nang in the north.

Near Da Nang also, guerrillas attempted to overrun a South Vietnamese artillery post and lost at least 15 dead in a pitched battle. The guerrillas got inside the perimeter of the post long enough to damage one big 155mm howitzer.

In terrorist attacks, a pair of Viet Cong agents on a motor scooter in Saigon's Chinese quarter shot down a South Vietnamese sailor distributing pamphlets urging people to vote, and a high school that was to be used as a polling place was blasted by an explosive, probably a grenade.

Viet Cong guerrillas shot and killed six civilians in an attack on a bus about 75 miles north of Saigon Monday.

U.S. headquarters reported that the number of air missions against North Vietnam climbed to 138 Monday because of clearing skies.

Segregationist, Negro Votes Election Factors

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Mississippi votes today in a Democratic primary election runoff where unassessed Negro voting strength and the ballots of a defeated hard-line segregationist could decide the governor's race.

In local contests, the state may elect its first Negro sheriffs since Reconstruction. Four candidates for sheriff are among the 21 Negroes seeking county offices against white opponents.

A Democratic congressman from Detroit was in Mississippi to observe the voting and to encourage participation of Negroes. Rep. John C. Conyers, a Negro and a member of the House Judiciary Committee, said he would file a report with his committee although his visit was unofficial.

The question of the Negro vote was whether it would form behind state Treasurer William Winter or U.S. Rep. John Bell Williams for governor. Each candidate claimed the conservative, segregationist banner and attacked the federal government.

First primary returns indicated that Negroes, with registration estimated at about 185,000, split among the candidates much as white voters did.

The other factor was the pool of more than 124,000 votes won in the first primary by Jimmy Swan, a Hattiesburg country singer who captured third place with a pledge to open private, segregated schools.

Swan announced in the closing days of the campaign that he would not endorse a runoff candidate, but would work toward the office himself in 1971. Prominent Swan supporters have split between the candidates.

Mahalia Jackson Cancels Concert

BERLIN (AP) — At the advice of her doctor, gospel singer Mahalia Jackson has postponed indefinitely a European concert tour to avoid the possibility of a heart attack. "I want to sing," she cried, wiping her wet eyes Monday. "Oh, how I want to sing. What about all those people who have paid money to see me? Will they understand?"

Dr. Rolf Schroeder, cardiac specialist at the West Berlin Westend Hospital, said, "The burden of performing would have been a great strain on her heart and could have led to a heart attack."

Miss Jackson, 55, suffered a heart attack three years ago.

Fourth Child for Gary

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Singer John Gary and his wife, Lois, became parents for the fourth time Monday night — a 7-pound boy named John Andrew.

Rockwell Hearse Barred

CULPEPER, Va. (AP) — The hearse bearing the body of American Nazi party leader George Lincoln Rockwell was barred from Culpeper National Cemetery today as federal troops arrived to enforce an order banning Nazi insignia and uniforms.

Military policemen armed with pistols and night sticks arrived in helicopters and buses. They were led by Maj. Gen. Carl C. Turner, Army provost marshal.

"I am going to protect federal property," Turner told newsmen as the hearse waited outside the gate of the little military cemetery. "No one will be permitted in here with Nazi uniforms and insignia."

There appeared to be about 50 mourners, some dressed in full Nazi uniforms bearing swastikas. Five of those in uniforms said they were to be pallbearers.

Among the floral pieces was a large swastika composed of red carnations and a Nazi flag in red, white and black flowers.

License plates of cars carrying the mourners, some of whom brought children with them, were from California, Ontario, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Michigan, New York and Pennsylvania.

A young man in an Army private's uniform said he was "here to mourn my real commander in chief— Rockwell." He identified himself as Pfc. James G. DeWitt of Mount Pleasant, Mich., stationed at Ft. Gordon, Ga. That, coincidentally, is headquarters of the Military Police Corps, headed by Turner.

But when DeWitt threw a snappy salute at Turner, the general returned it without appearing to notice the black armband of mourning on the private's sleeve.

Turner, who said anyone could enter as long as he did not wear or carry any Nazi insignia or emblem, told acting party leader Matt Koehl those disobeying the order would be arrested.

Minutes earlier, Edward Maxwell, the superintendent of Culpeper National Cemetery, refused to allow Rockwell followers in Nazi uniforms and wearing swastikas permission to enter.

"My orders from Washington are no swastikas can be used inside the cemetery - government property," he said.

A bullet fired by a rooftop sniper killed the party chief Friday as he was leaving a shopping center in his car. A former official of the party has been charged with murder.

Small Vote Appeal in International Coups

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Johnson administration is unlikely to convert two major international achievements into massive support at the polls next year.

But both will help shape the lives and leisure of many Americans for years to come.

Earlier this summer, U.S. officials reached agreement to cut tariffs on thousands of items over a five-year period in return for cuts by other non-Communist nations.

And last weekend the United States agreed with nine leading industrial nations on a framework for creating new money to help pay for new trade.

Both moves have bipartisan support but lack massive voter attention given such questions as the Vietnam war and trouble in the cities.

Yet government officials consider them so important to the country's future that they've spent four to five years trying to resolve problems surrounding each.

President Johnson called last weekend's agreement "the greatest step forward in world financial cooperation" in two decades and said it will advance the welfare of all Americans.

The reduction of tariffs and the means to finance more trade will mean more jobs for Americans, the administration contends.

The government estimates that every $1 billion in exports means 127,000 jobs for Americans. Government officials expect the successful round of tariff talks to increase exports although they hesitate to say by how much.

Foes of specific tariff cuts contend these could lead to increased imports which could affect some U.S. jobs.

With the machinery for monetary reform taking place, the non-Communist world is expected to have the money to pay for growing trade.

It took four years to draft the monetary reform outline which now must be approved by the International Monetary Fund and ratified by participating countries.

Rain Douses Kennedy Grave Eternal Flame

WASHINGTON (AP) — A weekend rain storm extinguished the "eternal flame" at the grave of President John F. Kennedy and flooded the electrical system designed to keep it burning, Arlington National Cemetery officials said today.

The torch was relighted by hand when an automatic spark igniter malfunctioned because of a flooded transformer Sunday.

Rotarians Look at Head Start

Rotarians took a look last night at the working of the Head Start program through Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Powell.

Powell was social service work counselor in the summer program for Scott county. He said that one goal was to preserve the parents' role in the child's life and that it was hoped that long range results could be achieved.

Mrs. Powell, administrative secretary for the regular Head Start program, said that the program was financed 90 per cent by the federal government. She praised the assistance given by the Sikeston public schools.

To give a child in the classroom individual attention the ratio of teachers to students is one for five, she explained.

Medical, dental, psychological and social services are offered. An effort is made to involve the parents and Mrs. Powell said that "community help" is needed. The children are immunized against disease.

Of 60 children, she said, 218 teeth were filled, 28 teeth extracted, 10 were anemic, four required glasses and three referred for hearing tests were found to have no defects.

The Powells were introduced by Jack Lopp at last night's club meeting at the Rustic Rock Inn.

President Fred Koch announced that the club was sending a wreath to the funeral for L.W. Dillman of Caruthersville, past district governor of Rotary International. Services were at 10:30 a.m. in the Methodist church in Caruthersville today for Dillman, who was one of eight killed in an automobile collision Saturday near Chester, Ill.

Koch also announced that the Rev. Fr. Justin Monaghan would speak at the meeting of the Rotary club in Jackson today at noon.

Visiting Rotarians were Harold Rabin of Belle Glade, Fla., and Norman Wenskay of Morley. Frank Harp was a guest of James Green.

Mary Anne Bruce entertained at the piano.

Motherhood Loses Battle With School Board

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — Motherhood collided with a school board— and lost.

Mrs. John Hill gave birth to her fourth child while on a sabbatical study leave. Monday night, she was fired from her teaching job.

"I was fired for being a mother," she said. "That's the only thing I can see I've done. They couldn't think of another reason." The story of how the 42-year-old elementary school music teacher gained a son and a master's degree, but lost her job, goes back to 1966.

In March, her school board granted her a sabbatical leave to study at Duquesne University the following school year at half-pay.

Then she started to gain weight. And, school officials said, she showed up for classes in loose-fitting clothes.

On June 10, she got a telephone call from her boss, Dr. Stanley R. Duda, superintendent of the Chartiers Valley Schools.

"Are you having a child?" asked Duda.

"No," replied Mrs. Hill. But she conceded she was gaining weight.

"I felt I was getting fat because I had been used to dancing a lot, then slacked off, plus the fact that I had had three children."

But she gained more weight— and finally accepted the fact she was pregnant.

"I really didn't know I was pregnant," she said. "Any woman my age has difficulty accepting such a development."

Jonathan was born Sept. 13, 1966. And born with him was a full-fledged feud.

Duda contended Mrs. Hill, upon learning she was pregnant, should have notified the board, asked for maternity leave and canceled her sabbatical.

Mrs. Hill figured that since she had already made application to Duquesne, she saw no reason to cancel the sabbatical.

Anyway, she added, she fulfilled the terms of her sabbatical. She went to school, got her degree and took off only one week to have Jonathan.

The school canceled her sabbatical allowance, amounting to about $3,000. She appealed. Monday night, the board turned down the appeal in one vote and fired her in another.

The board contended Mrs. Hill violated state law by not reporting her pregnancy.

Bargaining Appeal Made To Farmers

About 600 farmers were urged to apply the same principles practiced by business, industry and labor to establish price control for their products.

"This can only be done through collective bargaining," Oran Lee Staley, Rea, president of the National Farmers Organization, said. Staley spoke at an NFO organizational meeting Monday night at the armory.

He explained that he flew here from Iowa for three main purposes: To discuss the NFO program and answer questions about it, to discuss agriculture and the agriculture industry, and to ask the farmers to join the NFO.

Staley related that the farmers support is essential to the NFO effort because only with strength can collective bargaining be effective.

The NFO started from a discussion between an Iowa farmer and a feed dealer about the pricing system for agricultural products. Soon a small group was formed and they decided first in 1955, to send telegrams to Washington, D.C., and later to send representatives to lobby.

They learned that the Capper-Volstead Act of Feb. 18, 1922, authorized a group to legally set up an organization to represent the farmers and bargain collectively on their behalf, Staley said.

The group organized for one purpose, Staley continued, to do what it could for equitable prices for farm products.

The reason why prices on farm products "have not been equitable is that farmers are the only segment of an organized economy who have not organized," Staley related.

Farmers have gone to the market and asked processors what they will give.

Other segments of the economy such as the steel and automobile industries set their price and others follow suit, he continued.

"We have seen the small groceries virtually replaced by chain stores that deal in tremendous volume," Staley said. "This volume is not necessarily bad. But when they deal in volume, they have a tremendous effect on prices."

The law of supply and demand operates well, only when there is equal strength on both sides, he continued.

The NFO has made progress to achieve enough power so it can put the price on farm products as surely as manufacturers price clothing and shoes.

Referring to a recent article in the Wall Street Journal, Staley said, a corporate type of agriculture is just over the hill.

"Do you know why?" he asked. "Because of low farm income.

"You and I know that we cannot expect the young farmers today to stay on the farm like we did. They will only stay if they have equal opportunity to earn an equitable return on their investment compared to other walks of life. The average age of farmers today is 55-58."

Larger farm units are needed today to pay for the equipment to operate efficiently, he said.

Investment capital required to start an operation is getting larger and larger to the point where eventually the individual farmer will not be able to take over," Staley said.

"Large farmers also suffer from the present pricing system. They have more to lose.

"Ten thousand acre units are appearing in Texas, Missouri, Arkansas and the Dakotas. And farmers are talking more about leasing in 10,000 acre units."

Turning to the membership agreement, which had been circulated to those attending, Staley asked: "What does it say?"

"It says you sign the NFO as a bargaining unit for all products produced on your farms," Staley said. "It is not the aim to raise the price of a single product, because then diversified farmers will switch their operation, produce too much and deflate the price.

"We hope to bring the prices up in balance to keep diversified farmers from switching."

The membership agreement is for a three-year period for continuity reasons. The member agrees to pay $25 per year or one per cent of his gross to the NFO, if a marketing contract is consummated by the NFO covering a members commodity.

Until a marketing contract is effected, the member is free to sell as he wishes, Staley explained.

To form a marketing area contract would require two-thirds approval of member farmers. Negotiations for a volume contract would first be conducted by NFO leadership and seven zone leaders in a particular marketing area. Marketing areas are made up of 25 to 50 neighboring counties. Once the price is negotiated with a large processor, the local county organizations are asked to call a meeting, notify each member and vote on the contract.

"Collective bargaining, simply, means working together to meet processors and buyers needs on a volume basis," Staley said.

"There is only one reason farmers are receiving the low prices they are getting today. It is because enough farmers are willing to take it.

"This can be done by putting the crop together as collective farmers, putting it on the market in volume at the price you want."

Staley explained the organization's policy of holding actions.

The NFO is faced with an anti-trust suit. In effect, the suit is more directly accusing us of asking non-members to support in a previous holding action, he said. Staley said he was confident that the NFO would win the suit.

The organization has always opposed violations of law and stated its policy against violence, Staley said. Nothing has ever been won in the United States through force and intimidation, he continued.

When a holding action is voted by the NFO board, members are asked to keep their products from the market to effect a price rise. But co-operation is purely voluntary Staley said.

Red Chinese Clash With London Police

LONDON (AP) — Members of Red China's diplomatic mission and police fought bloody battles today outside the legation in the heart of London, bringing an angry diplomatic exchange.

Several policemen and Chinese were injured in two clashes. The Chinese brandished sticks, axes and threw bottles. One flashed a revolver but it was not fired. The police fought back with night sticks.

The first clash came when police stepped in to stop about 10 Britons and 15 Chinese who were punching and kicking one another after an exchange of words. A crowd of about 150 watched.

The second clash came as China's charge d'affaires returned from lodging a protest at the Foreign Office against the first incident.

About 40 policemen and Chinese were involved in a seething mass of bodies in a tiny Mews behind the legation.

The fighting started when the Chinese barred the way of a police car and refused to move. The police pushed them away and immediately a crowd of Chinese rushed out of the mission's headquarters swinging bats and axes and hurling bottles and ash can covers.

One policeman was led away with blood streaming from a head wound. A Chinese, his face bloodied, was dragged by police along the cobblestones.

The police picked up the ash can covers and used them as shields against a barrage of milk bottles thrown at them.

A woman who lives in an upstairs apartment in the same mews joined in the fighting by throwing flower pots at the Chinese.

A blonde policewoman who got caught up in the fighting said: "It was terrifying. I never thought I would see anything like this in Britain."

When the fighting died down ambulances drove up to the legation and the attendants were allowed to carry out on stretchers three Chinese — their heads wrapped in bandages.

A crowd of 300 began to converge on the legation but were held back by police.

Some shouts came from the crowd, "Smash Communism," "Mao is a pig!" and "Go back to China."

After the first outburst before noon, Chinese Charge d'affaires Shen Ping called at the Foreign Office and angrily accused the British police of beating up members of his staff.

Viet Cong Election Plot

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. and South Vietnamese sources say the Viet Cong have plotted a countrywide campaign to sabotage the presidential elections Sunday with increased military attacks, terrorism and propaganda.

The sources said information on the Communist plans came from captured documents, intelligence reports and questioning of guerrillas taken prisoner.

Over the weekend the Communists launched a series of mortar, rocket and artillery attacks from Quang Tri Province below the demilitarized zone to the Mekong delta in the south. There also has been a sharp increase in terrorist kidnapings, murders and sabotage.

The sources said one captured document called for Communist forces in the northern city of Da Nang to "smash the buffoonery of the election." It said that if the elections were a failure, this would provide "momentum to force a new political crisis."

Governors Ask More Guard Riot Training

OSAGE BEACH, Mo. (AP) — The Midwestern Governors' Conference called today for additional training guidance and techniques for the National Guard to deal with civil disorder.

In a resolution the conference said the Department of Defense 32-hour crash training program is a step in the right direction but is inadequate.

"The problems which have been confronted in the recent violent domestic upheavals throughout the nation," the resolution said, "represent new dimensions in the area of civil disturbances never before experienced by military forces of this country."

In another resolution the governors pointed out that the first responsibility for maintaining law and order belongs to state and local government.

The governors said the states should be given a bigger say in the development of social and economic programs "designed to eliminate the causes of discontent, resentment and discrimination by reason of race or economic status. State governments must be given authority in the inception and development of social and economic programs in relationship to obligations."

The governors also asked the Council of State Governments to "draft an inter-state compact setting forth legally sound methods for mutual assistance among adjoining states for utilization of National Guard units in the event that civil disorders require such assistance across state lines."

Senate Votes to Triple FHA Grants

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill tripling federal grants under the consolidated Farmers Home Administration Act for rural water and sewer projects was passed by the Senate and sent to the House Monday.

Grants of up to $150 million a year would be permitted, compared to the present $50 million limit.

The bill also would expand the types of real estate loans authorized for owner-operators of family size farms to include enterprises needed to supplement farm income.

Expect Quick Union Rejection

DETROIT (AP) — The auto industry offered the United Auto Workers union what one company termed the best contract proposals ever today, but asked the union to cut back on some demands won in previous years.

The industry presented a solid and united front in answering for the first time demands the union itself has termed the most ambitious it has ever made.

Quick rejection of the industry proposals by the union was expected.

The industry economic offers, based on a proposed three-year contract, come after two months of bargaining and with only eight days remaining before a strike deadline.

Contracts covering 650,000 workers at the Big Three expire at midnight Sept. 6 although only the company selected by the union as a pattern setter would be struck.

The three companies estimated their package at 33 to 51 cents an hour over the next three years, including a flat 13-cent-an-hour hike now and 2.8 per cent a year in the following two years.

All three, however, asked the union to modify a cost-of-living escalator clause based on the government cost-of-living index which has brought union members increases of 18 cents an hour since 1964.

UAW President Walter P. Reuther has said he would brook no tampering with the clause and that an attempt to change would be a strikeable issue.

The industry also offered the union an increase of from 62 per cent to 80 per cent in the supplemental unemployment benefits — the benefits that supplement a laid-off worker's state unemployment compensation.

This apparently was far short of the demand made by the union for a complete guaranteed annual income.

Louis G. Seaton of General Motors called his firm's offer the best it has ever made.

Malcolm Denise, chief bargainer at Ford, termed his company's package "responsive and responsible."

GM estimated its contract package at 36 to 44 cents an hour over the next three years. Ford pegged its at 34 cents. Chrysler figured 33 to 51 cents.

Seaton has estimated that union demands made at the start of bargaining in July would cost GM at least $4 an hour.

The industry also offered additional wage boosts for skilled workers, an issue that has caused some dissension in the union. Skilled workers have demanded increases of at least $1 an hour more than the rest of the workers get.

The three companies did not specify how much they would give the 200,000 industry skilled and said only that it was negotiable.

Ford and Chrysler took a different tack than GM on the escalator clause. Both asked ceilings be placed on the amount possible for a worker to get—Ford of 6 cents an hour, Chrysler of 7.

Nothing was said by any company about the union demand for parity for Canadian workers, which along with guaranteed annual income, a big wage boost and continuation of the escalator clause were the union's chief demands. The UAW placed no monetary value on its own package.

The straight-time average hourly wage in the auto industry is figured at $3.41 by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. Fringe benefits are estimated by the companies to run the total cost to about $4.70 hourly.

Cool Air Coming To Missouri

KANSAS CITY (AP)— Missouri warmed up a little today, but the weatherman says another surge of cool air is headed for the state.

Southerly winds are expected to shift to northerly in the northwest tonight. Wednesday's highs will be in the upper 80s in the northwest and from the mid 70s to the mid 80s in the rest of the state.

Monday's highs were in the 80s, ranging from 81 at Kirksville and St. Joseph to 89 at Springfield.

16 Planes Lost-- Heaviest in Air War

SAIGON (AP) — The United States suffered its heaviest losses for a seven-day period in the air war against North Vietnam— 16 planes— between Aug. 21 and Aug. 27, the U.S. Command announced today.

The 16th plane— a Marine A6 Intruder— was lost on Sunday due to "unknown causes," the command said, but announcement of the loss was delayed for security reasons.

The two Marine fliers were listed as missing in action, bringing the total of missing fliers for the seven-day period to 24. Three were rescued. In South Vietnam, the stepped-up Communist campaign of shelling and bridge destruction in the northern war zone was met today by three heavy B52 raids on Red staging bases inside the demilitarized zone.

Military headquarters said Communists blew up nine bridges in the past 24 hours— eight of them in the northern area and one in the main Mekong delta city of Can Tho.

The heavy attacks by the B52s followed intensive tactical air strikes by Marine and Air Force pilots on the gun positions where the Reds have dug in their heaviest weapons— 152mm guns with a range of almost 20 miles.

These big guns opened up with heavy barrages on Marine positions two days ago, and since then Marine fighter-bomber pilots claim to have destroyed 14 fortified pits housing the big truck-drawn field pieces.

The increase in Communist shelling, bridge-blowing and terrorism was evidently intended to demonstrate Red muscle during the South Vietnamese presidential election campaign which ends Sunday. The Communists appear to be concentrating on terrorism in Saigon and on disrupting traffic along coastal Highway 1 in the northern sector and the main paved road south from Saigon to the big cities of My Tho and Can Tho in the Mekong delta.

Just after midnight Monday Communist sappers used the same technique to blow important bridges in Can Tho, and just below Da Nang in the north.

Near Da Nang also, guerrillas attempted to overrun a South Vietnamese artillery post and lost at least 15 dead in a pitched battle. The guerrillas got inside the perimeter of the post long enough to damage one big 155mm howitzer.

In terrorist attacks, a pair of Viet Cong agents on a motor scooter in Saigon's Chinese quarter shot down a South Vietnamese sailor distributing pamphlets urging people to vote, and a high school that was to be used as a polling place was blasted by an explosive, probably a grenade.

Viet Cong guerrillas shot and killed six civilians in an attack on a bus about 75 miles north of Saigon Monday.

U.S. headquarters reported that the number of air missions against North Vietnam climbed to 138 Monday because of clearing skies.

Segregationist, Negro Votes Election Factors

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Mississippi votes today in a Democratic primary election runoff where unassessed Negro voting strength and the ballots of a defeated hard-line segregationist could decide the governor's race.

In local contests, the state may elect its first Negro sheriffs since Reconstruction. Four candidates for sheriff are among the 21 Negroes seeking county offices against white opponents.

A Democratic congressman from Detroit was in Mississippi to observe the voting and to encourage participation of Negroes. Rep. John C. Conyers, a Negro and a member of the House Judiciary Committee, said he would file a report with his committee although his visit was unofficial.

The question of the Negro vote was whether it would form behind state Treasurer William Winter or U.S. Rep. John Bell Williams for governor. Each candidate claimed the conservative, segregationist banner and attacked the federal government.

First primary returns indicated that Negroes, with registration estimated at about 185,000, split among the candidates much as white voters did.

The other factor was the pool of more than 124,000 votes won in the first primary by Jimmy Swan, a Hattiesburg country singer who captured third place with a pledge to open private, segregated schools.

Swan announced in the closing days of the campaign that he would not endorse a runoff candidate, but would work toward the office himself in 1971. Prominent Swan supporters have split between the candidates.

Mahalia Jackson Cancels Concert

BERLIN (AP) — At the advice of her doctor, gospel singer Mahalia Jackson has postponed indefinitely a European concert tour to avoid the possibility of a heart attack. "I want to sing," she cried, wiping her wet eyes Monday. "Oh, how I want to sing. What about all those people who have paid money to see me? Will they understand?"

Dr. Rolf Schroeder, cardiac specialist at the West Berlin Westend Hospital, said, "The burden of performing would have been a great strain on her heart and could have led to a heart attack."

Miss Jackson, 55, suffered a heart attack three years ago.

Rockwell Hearse Barred

CULPEPER, Va. (AP) — The hearse bearing the body of American Nazi party leader George Lincoln Rockwell was barred from Culpeper National Cemetery today as federal troops arrived to enforce an order banning Nazi insignia and uniforms.

Military policemen armed with pistols and night sticks arrived in helicopters and buses. They were led by Maj. Gen. Carl C. Turner, Army provost marshal.

"I am going to protect federal property," Turner told newsmen as the hearse waited outside the gate of the little military cemetery. "No one will be permitted in here with Nazi uniforms and insignia."

There appeared to be about 50 mourners, some dressed in full Nazi uniforms bearing swastikas. Five of those in uniforms said they were to be pallbearers.

Among the floral pieces was a large swastika composed of red carnations and a Nazi flag in red, white and black flowers.

License plates of cars carrying the mourners, some of whom brought children with them, were from California, Ontario, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Michigan, New York and Pennsylvania.

A young man in an Army private's uniform said he was "here to mourn my real commander in chief— Rockwell." He identified himself as Pfc. James G. DeWitt of Mount Pleasant, Mich., stationed at Ft. Gordon, Ga. That, coincidentally, is headquarters of the Military Police Corps, headed by Turner.

But when DeWitt threw a snappy salute at Turner, the general returned it without appearing to notice the black armband of mourning on the private's sleeve.

Turner, who said anyone could enter as long as he did not wear or carry any Nazi insignia or emblem, told acting party leader Matt Koehl those disobeying the order would be arrested.

Minutes earlier, Edward Maxwell, the superintendent of Culpeper National Cemetery, refused to allow Rockwell followers in Nazi uniforms and wearing swastikas permission to enter.

"My orders from Washington are no swastikas can be used inside the cemetery - government property," he said.

A bullet fired by a rooftop sniper killed the party chief Friday as he was leaving a shopping center in his car. A former official of the party has been charged with murder.

Small Vote Appeal in International Coups

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Johnson administration is unlikely to convert two major international achievements into massive support at the polls next year.

But both will help shape the lives and leisure of many Americans for years to come.

Earlier this summer, U.S. officials reached agreement to cut tariffs on thousands of items over a five-year period in return for cuts by other non-Communist nations.

And last weekend the United States agreed with nine leading industrial nations on a framework for creating new money to help pay for new trade.

Both moves have bipartisan support but lack massive voter attention given such questions as the Vietnam war and trouble in the cities.

Yet government officials consider them so important to the country's future that they've spent four to five years trying to resolve problems surrounding each.

President Johnson called last weekend's agreement "the greatest step forward in world financial cooperation" in two decades and said it will advance the welfare of all Americans.

The reduction of tariffs and the means to finance more trade will mean more jobs for Americans, the administration contends.

The government estimates that every $1 billion in exports means 127,000 jobs for Americans. Government officials expect the successful round of tariff talks to increase exports although they hesitate to say by how much.

Foes of specific tariff cuts contend these could lead to increased imports which could affect some U.S. jobs.

With the machinery for monetary reform taking place, the non-Communist world is expected to have the money to pay for growing trade.

It took four years to draft the monetary reform outline which now must be approved by the International Monetary Fund and ratified by participating countries.

Rotarians Look at Head Start

Rotarians took a look last night at the working of the Head Start program through Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Powell.

Powell was social service work counselor in the summer program for Scott county. He said that one goal was to preserve the parents' role in the child's life and that it was hoped that long range results could be achieved.

Mrs. Powell, administrative secretary for the regular Head Start program, said that the program was financed 90 per cent by the federal government. She praised the assistance given by the Sikeston public schools.

To give a child in the classroom individual attention the ratio of teachers to students is one for five, she explained.

Medical, dental, psychological and social services are offered. An effort is made to involve the parents and Mrs. Powell said that "community help" is needed. The children are immunized against disease.

Of 60 children, she said, 218 teeth were filled, 28 teeth extracted, 10 were anemic, four required glasses and three referred for hearing tests were found to have no defects.

The Powells were introduced by Jack Lopp at last night's club meeting at the Rustic Rock Inn.

President Fred Koch announced that the club was sending a wreath to the funeral for L.W. Dillman of Caruthersville, past district governor of Rotary International. Services were at 10:30 a.m. in the Methodist church in Caruthersville today for Dillman, who was one of eight killed in an automobile collision Saturday near Chester, Ill.

Koch also announced that the Rev. Fr. Justin Monaghan would speak at the meeting of the Rotary club in Jackson today at noon.

Visiting Rotarians were Harold Rabin of Belle Glade, Fla., and Norman Wenskay of Morley. Frank Harp was a guest of James Green.

Mary Anne Bruce entertained at the piano.

Motherhood Loses Battle With School Board

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) - Motherhood collided with a school board— and lost.

Mrs. John Hill gave birth to her fourth child while on a sabbatical study leave. Monday night, she was fired from her teaching job.

"I was fired for being a mother," she said. "That's the only thing I can see I've done. They couldn't think of another reason." The story of how the 42-year-old elementary school music teacher gained a son and a master's degree, but lost her job, goes back to 1966.

In March, her school board granted her a sabbatical leave to study at Duquesne University the following school year at half-pay.

Then she started to gain weight. And, school officials said, she showed up for classes in loose-fitting clothes.

On June 10, she got a telephone call from her boss, Dr. Stanley R. Duda, superintendent of the Chartiers Valley Schools.

"Are you having a child?" asked Duda.

"No," replied Mrs. Hill. But she conceded she was gaining weight.

"I felt I was getting fat because I had been used to dancing a lot, then slacked off, plus the fact that I had had three children."

But she gained more weight— and finally accepted the fact she was pregnant.

"I really didn't know I was pregnant," she said. "Any woman my age has difficulty accepting such a development."

Jonathan was born Sept. 13, 1966. And born with him was a full-fledged feud.

Duda contended Mrs. Hill, upon learning she was pregnant, should have notified the board, asked for maternity leave and canceled her sabbatical.

Mrs. Hill figured that since she had already made application to Duquesne, she saw no reason to cancel the sabbatical.

Anyway, she added, she fulfilled the terms of her sabbatical. She went to school, got her degree and took off only one week to have Jonathan.

The school canceled her sabbatical allowance, amounting to about $3,000. She appealed. Monday night, the board turned down the appeal in one vote and fired her in another.

The board contended Mrs. Hill violated state law by not reporting her pregnancy.

1963 REVISITED

It has been said that each man brings most of his troubles on himself. This may be true of nations as well as individuals. One cause of U.S. troubles is that it seems determined to repeat past mistakes.

A little more than 32 years ago, on November 17, 1933, the United States officially extended diplomatic recognition to the Soviet Union. This was caused by, as much as anything else, the pressure of business interests tempted by the promise of billions of dollars in exports to Russia. Today that temptation is again being dangled before U. S. business. Some U. S. businessmen are reaching out to grab the bait, urging closer relations with Russia and showing a willingness to go along -- at least a part of the way -- with the "co-existence" line the communists have craftily dangled.

Before we fall into the same trap twice, we will be well advised to re-examine history of the last 32 years.

U.S. REFUSED

For 16 years after the Bolsheviks took over on November 7, 1917, the United States withheld diplomatic recognition from the Soviet Union. Five American Presidents faced the problem. The Bolshevik seizure of power, headed by Nicolai Lenin and Leon Trotsky, took place during Woodrow Wilson's second term as President. Trotsky, Russian Commissar of Foreign Affairs, almost immediately asked all the accredited foreign envoys in Petrograd for recognition. Neither the United States nor any of its allies replied affirmatively at that time.

Secretary of State Bainbridge Colby, on behalf of President Wilson, explained in plain language why the United States was determined not to recognize Russia:

"The Bolsheviki, an inconsiderable minority of the people, by force and cunning seized the powers and machinery of government and have continued to use them with savage oppression. Their responsible statesmen have declared that the very existence of Bolshevism depends upon revolution in all other great countries, including the United States. There can be no confidence if pledges are to be given with cynical repudiation already in the mind of one of the parties. We cannot recognize a government which is determined and bound to conspire against our institutions."

When Warren G. Harding became President, the Bolsheviks tried again -- without success. Nor did the administrations of Calvin Coolidge and Herbert Hoover move to recognize the USSR. During the latter Administration, incidentally, the communist nation showed how far it could be trusted when it flooded the world with counterfeit American money printed in Moscow.

In his "Memoirs," President Hoover explained his stand. "If one of our neighbors is wicked in all his relations with the community, we do not necessarily attack him. We even minister to him in sickness. But we do not establish his respectability in the communist or offer him opportunities to extend wickedness by asking him into our home."

HOOVER FEARED INFILTRATION

Hoover feared that recognition would inevitably lead to dangerous infiltration of America by communist agents and agitators. He also recalled that "more than five million people have been cruelly butchered in Russia." Many more were in Siberian slave camps.

Nevertheless, the pressure for recognition grew. American business was trading with Russia, and some large companies extended long-term credits to the Soviet Union. When the great depression came, a member of the U.S. Senate said: "There are billions of dollars' worth of future orders in Russia for American workers to fill, and in these times it is simply idiocy for America by its policies, to preclude Americans from trade and commerce which so readily could be obtained." Many leading U. S. newspapers supported recognition of Soviet Russia as a means of bringing about more trade between the two countries.

The able and crafty Maxim Litvinov became Russia's foreign minister, and Franklin D. Roosevelt became President of the United States. On May 16, 1933, President Roosevelt issued a call to 50 heads of other nations to cooperate in a World Economic Conference to be held in London in June. One of the invitations went to the president of the Soviet Union. It was the first time since the Bolshevik Revolution of 1917 the White House had communicated directly with the Kremlin. The Communist Party press in the Soviet Union hailed it as a practical first step toward recognition.

When Litvinov addressed the London Conference, he directed his remarks chiefly to the United States, and as bait he held out the figure of one billion American dollars' worth of Russian orders for U.S.-manufactured goods. He went so far as to list commodities which he knew U.S. manufacturers were well-equipped to produce.

NEXT: COTTON LOAN

The following month, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation granted a loan of $4 million to Amtorg, the Soviet trading corporation, for the purchase of American cotton. The significant of the loan was that it was made by an agency of the U.S. Government. While many Americans criticized the transaction, many business firms praised it. More than 40 American business concerns urged that the RFC extend additional loans so that other goods could be sold to Russia on credit.

Diplomatic recognition was coming closer.

In the summer of 1933, the Chief of the Division of Eastern European Affairs in the U. S. State Department, acting on orders, drew up a memorandum on all phases of the Soviet recognition question. This man, Robert Kelly, warned repeatedly in his memorandum that "all" outstanding issues between the governments of the United States and Russia must be settled "before" recognition.

America's demands, he said, should be as follows:

-- Moscow must sever all connections with communists in the United States and refrain from reactivating them after recognition.

-- Russian debts must be settled. English and French experience had proved that discussion of payments "after" recognition was useless.

-- The legal rights of American citizens in Russia must be clearly defined and agreed upon before recognition.

-- Assurances must be given that the rights of Americans in Russia to observe the rituals of their respective faiths and churches "without annoyance or molestation's would be rigidly observed.

PRIVATE NEGOTIATIONS

When Litvinov came to the United States in the fall of 1933, most negotiations about recognition were carried on in private between him and President Roosevelt. The Russian promised whatever he had to promise, and the promises were accepted. As soon as recognition of the Soviet Union was extended, the promises were ignored by the communist dictatorship. The history of the years since 1933 shows that Russia did not keep one promise of all those upon which recognition was based.

The great hopes of selling goods to Russia, which had caused U. S. business to favor recognition, did not materialize. In the 32 years of diplomatic recognition of the Soviet Union, U. S. trade exports have come to only $1.3 billion.

The U.S. gave Russia $10.8 billion in lend-lease during World War Two. The U. S. never asked payment for lend-lease goods used up in the war; the value of leftover lend-lease material kept in Russia after the war has been estimated to be more than a $1 billion. In the early 1950's the U.S. asked for repayment of World War II debts, and settled on a figure of $800 million. The negotiations fell through, however, and have never been revived. Russia kept 84 merchant ships and 40 military craft which were returnable under lend-lease -- more broken promises.

WHY NOW?

Yet, there is now much effort to increase trade with Russia. This is difficult to understand, because extending credit to Russia is certainly risky. The "customer" is not a business concern; he is a government which uses trade as it uses everything else -- to advance the cause of communism. There is no way, then, to enforce contract and no way that payment can be assured. Successful trade depends on mutual confidence, and it is clear that no confidence can be placed in communist promises.

In view of all this, it is hard to grasp the reasoning in a report issued in May, 1965, by the Committee for Economic Development, a U. S. business study group. The report, entitled "East-West Trade, A Common Policy for the West," recommends setting up machinery for increasing trade between the West and the communist-bloc nations.

One member of the group, Robert Kleberg, Jr., president of the King Ranch, wrote a strong dissent to the report:

KING SIZE DISSENT

"I do not believe," wrote Mr. Kleberg, "that a policy statement by CED on East-West trade is advisable at this time. The whole matter of East-West relationships -- ranging as it does from the shooting war in Vietnam through the counterthreats of atomic retaliation to the stalemate in Cuba, the propaganda war in South America and communist attempts at subversion of emerging nations in Africa -- is so complex that it is not possible to consider East-West trade as a separate issue.

"I feel that it would be unrealistic to hope that mutually useful trade could be developed with the communist countries under present circumstances. We would receive little benefit from such trade and would expose the Western world to some or all of the following hazards:

"An increase in communist propaganda and subversion in Latin America under the guise of trade.

"An opening of the trade barriers which we have attempted to impose around Cuba.

"A further detriment to our balance of payments position as a result of the credits which we would have to extend to communist countries.

"An increase in the flow of our technical information and know-how to the communist world.

"In short, communist governments look upon trade as a political weapon and use it as such. So long as this is true, we should attempt to deny it to them."

The Labor Day weekend will soon be here and drivers were urged today by Colonel E. I. (Mike) Hockaday, the Superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, to help insure their safety before they begin their trip. He said, "One of the first things a car owner can do is to have his vehicle safety-checked. An inspection of the vehicle's tires, lights, brakes, steering and other items of importance to safety should be made before traveling this holiday weekend. The few minutes it takes to have a car checked is time well spent."

The Patrol Superintendent also mentioned the need to be well rested before starting a trip and of the importance of getting an early start. "Make sure you are physically able to drive this holiday weekend," he declared. "Get a good rest before you get behind the wheel, and if you get tired along the way, stop to rest or let someone drive who is physically able to do so.

"The importance of getting an early start and thereby giving yourself plenty of time to reach your destination cannot be overemphasized. Trying to make up for lost time by taking unnecessary chances can be very costly. So get an early start and take your time as you travel this weekend."

Colonel Hockaday concluded by stating that a driver who follows these safety measures prior to beginning his Labor Day trip will have a better chance of not being involved in a traffic accident.

THE NEWSPAPER: ACCENTUATES POSITIVE

Newspapers sometimes are charged with shortcomings ranging from favoritism in photographic coverage to discrimination in the divorce and magistrate court transcripts.

One criticism is that they are perpetrators of gloom, exploiting the sordid and the sadistic out of a desire to sell more papers.

Of course, the charges are untrue in most cases and grossly unfair to the industry as a whole.

Stung by repeated criticism of this type, one Midwestern daily studied, measured and catalogued its own total news lineage over a period of two weeks. The result, it gleefully reported, was that something like 70 per cent of all news printed was of a positive nature, of human accomplishments and encouraging indications.

The much-maligned young by themselves fared every bit as well, and that didn't even count the weekly youth supplement, which accentuated the positive completely.

The only real argument the average critic has is that sordid news sells papers, which is, in a way, a most encouraging fact.

Because the unusual makes the real hard core news, the fat black headlines. The mean, the base, the ignoble are, fortunately, unusual.

As long as crime, violence and all manner of negative deeds are uncommon enough to rate top page play, it means kindness, courage and positive accomplishments are what is really making the world go round.

When the latter become so rare that they make the big headlines, readers will have something to worry about.

TOO BIG FOR THEIR BRITCHES

When business and industry got too big for their britches, 50 years or so ago, the people through their elected representatives cracked down on them.

As labor monopolies have grown in wealth and power, they are following the same arrogant course that brought strict controls and antimonopoly laws to business. The public has suffered great inconvenience as the result of uncontrolled strikes in recent years and more are threatened now. Due to public and national defense interests which suffer in nationwide strike warfare, President Johnson has established a study group to search for ways to cope with strikes that threaten the nation's welfare.

This is the only result that can be expected when any monopoly thumbs its nose at the public. This is not a case of being pro-labor or antilabor. It is simply a case of being propublic interest, and the public is seeking for protection.

STEINBECK ON VIETNAM

John Steinbeck has not joined the intellectuals' protest against the Vietnam war, the Catholic Digest says. When asked why by Soviet poet Yevgeny Yevtushenko, the American novelist wrote in part:

"I am against this Chinese-inspired war. I don't know a single American who is for it. But you ask me to denounce half a war, our half. I appeal to you to join me in denouncing the whole war. If you could persuade North Vietnam to agree in good faith to negotiate the bombing would stop instantly. The guns would fall silent and our dear sons could come home. PAPER MOUNTAINS IN WASHINGTON

Most people are aware of the huge sums of money spent on such programs as the War on Poverty. But there are many less obvious ways that tax money is wasted.

One such way is the incredible amount of paperwork in the federal bureaus. Recently the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee completed a study on this subject.

The Committee reports that the government needs one billion reports each year. Two hundred fifty-five thousand employees are required just to file the reports, which take up 25 million cubic feet of space. If records now on file were torn up at the rate of one page per second, two thousand years would be needed to complete the job.

The individual citizen pays for this paperwork many times over. He pays for the paper itself. The Committee reports that the forms it analyzed cost $53 million annually.

He pays the salaries of bureaucrats whose main job is producing new forms, filling out forms, or filing old forms. If the time spent on paperwork would be devoted to other things, the federal government could substantially reduce its payroll.

Many citizens pay for this paperwork directly with the time they have to spend filling out forms sent them by the government.

The Committee made several suggestions to reduce paperwork. But the only real and lasting solution was ignored. As long as there are bureaucrats, there will be paper. The only way to eliminate the paper mountains in Washington is to return the government to its proper function: protecting the liberty of the people. HLH.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- While Ralph Nader has the country all stirred up over unsafe automobiles, some boat manufacturers are still selling boats to the public that don't meet the coast guard's minimum safety standards.

Not only are the newest pleasure boats sometimes unsafe, but they can be piloted by unlicensed operators of any age who know nothing about the rules of the sea. Result: more Americans were killed last year in boating accidents than in plane crashes, and the accident rate is soaring.

The latest available figures, for example, show an astonishing 67 per cent leap in incapacitating personal injuries from boating accidents during the single year 1965 to 1966. Property damage from these accidents shot up 55 per cent.

Meanwhile, the nation's waterways have become cluttered with eight million pleasure boats, carrying 40 million joy riders. Boating has become America's largest family sport. On a given weekend, as many as 25 million people may be out on the water.

Yet the coast guard has done a woefully inadequate job of guarding the safety of these water lovers. To patrol the incredible weekend traffic jam on the waterways, the coast guard has only 37 mobile inspection teams.

Hot-rodding teenagers churn up the water, fleegully splashing past other boats, endangering swimmers and smaller craft, without fear of apprehension. Though youths from 12 to 18 years make up only 6 per cent of the boating population, they figure in 13 per cent of all motor-boating accidents.

Yet, of the 35,624 boating convictions last year, only one involved reckless operation. Half were merely registration violations, which have nothing at all to do with boating safety.

The most serious neglect, however, must be charged to the boat manufacturers who put appearances ahead of safety as the best way to increase sales. They can get away with this because the boat owner, not the manufacturer, is held responsible for meeting coast guard standards.

LANDLUBBER YACHTSMAN

Yet the typical owner today is strictly a landlubber, whose boat is a status symbol. For all this salty posturing, he has little nautical background and usually assumes his boat has passed rigid safety tests.

The craft may have glittering chrome trim and running lights that gleam impressively. Some of the latest runabouts come in pastel shades with vinyl coverings on bucket seats. To the landlubber, with a little spray on his face, his new boat may appear seaworthy enough. But the manufacturer was under no legal obligation to produce a safe boat.

This column has seen a confidential directive sent out six months ago by the coast guard to its various inspectors, notifying them to watch out for new boats with unsafe bilge ventilating systems. The directive identified boats made by the following manufacturers: Revel Craft, Egg Harbor, Hatteras, Jersey 28, Manson, Owens, Pacemaker and Trojan.

Inadequate ventilation can cause fires and explosions aboard boats. Enforcement of a new bilge safety regulation finally began this past July 1, but had been announced two years ago to become effective a year ago. At that time, the coast guard found boat owners and many boat manufacturers had made little real effort to meet the new requirements, and allowed a second year's grace. But many of the latest models still do not pass coast guard inspection.

One reason, according to some boat people, is that the regulations are "vague" and it is up to each inspecting coast guard officer to determine if the bilge ventilation is safe.

Another complaint is that new boats are sold that are not equipped with the horns, whistles, lights, fire extinguishers and other safety devices required by law.

Though boats are not inspected at the factory, the coast guard does check life preservers at the manufacturing level. Yet 91 persons drowned last year using these approved preservers at the manufacturing level. Yet 91 persons drowned last year using these approved preservers.

More than 75 per cent of last year's drowning victims didn't use life saving devices at all. In some cases, no preservers were carried on board the boats. More often, the approved brand was so big and bulky that boaters were unwilling to buy them.

With one-fifth of the population now boating and the waterways becoming ever more crowded, perhaps it's time the coast guard showed the same concern for boats as life preservers and started enforcing boat safety at the production line.

This column has solved the mystery of how a huge, gold-framed painting, which used to hang in the board room of central airlines, turned up on the wall of Texas congressman Omar Burleson's office.

The painting of an oxen-drawn, wooden-wheeled wagon, prodded along by peasants, was purchased in Europe. Someone at Central Airlines decided it didn't project the image of a 20th century airline, and the painting suddenly vanished from the board room.

A spokesman told this column that the painting was carried on the books at a value of $39.50. Its purchase price, he said, was $525. However, the airline received a $140 rebate from the shippers because of damage in transit.

The spokesman identified the purchaser as Ed Connally, one of the airline's directors, who told this column that he paid $500 for it. He immediately shipped it off, he said, to congressman Burleson.

Conally could not explain any reason for the gift, except that he and the congressman were friends. However, the congressman apparently was glad to get it, for it occupies the most prominent place on the wall of his private office.

The history of the years since 1933 shows that Russia did not keep one promise of all those upon which recognition was based.

The great hopes of selling goods to Russia, which had caused U. S. business to favor recognition, did not materialize. In the 32 years of diplomatic recognition of the Soviet Union, U. S. trade exports have come to only $1.3 billion.

The U.S. gave Russia $10.8 billion in lend-lease during World War Two. The U. S. never asked payment for lend-lease goods used up in the war; the value of leftover lend-lease material kept in Russia after the war has been estimated to be more than a $1 billion. In the early 1950's the U.S. asked for repayment of World War II debts, and settled on a figure of $800 million. The negotiations fell through, however, and have never been revived. Russia kept 84 merchant ships and 40 military craft which were returnable under lend-lease -- more broken promises.

WHY NOW?

Yet, there is now much effort to increase trade with Russia. This is difficult to understand, because extending credit to Russia is certainly risky. The "customer" is not a business concern; he is a government which uses trade as it uses everything else -- to advance the cause of communism. There is no way, then, to enforce contract and no way that payment can be assured. Successful trade depends on mutual confidence, and it is clear that no confidence can be placed in communist promises.

In view of all this, it is hard to grasp the reasoning in a report issued in May, 1965, by the Committee for Economic Development, a U. S. business study group. The report, entitled "East-West Trade, A Common Policy for the West," recommends setting up machinery for increasing trade between the West and the communist-bloc nations.

One member of the group, Robert Kleberg, Jr., president of the King Ranch, wrote a strong dissent to the report:

KING SIZE DISSENT

"I do not believe," wrote Mr. Kleberg, "that a policy statement by CED on East-West trade is advisable at this time. The whole matter of East-West relationships -- ranging as it does from the shooting war in Vietnam through the counterthreats of atomic retaliation to the stalemate in Cuba, the propaganda war in South America and communist attempts at subversion of emerging nations in Africa -- is so complex that it is not possible to consider East-West trade as a separate issue.

"I feel that it would be unrealistic to hope that mutually useful trade could be developed with the communist countries under present circumstances. We would receive little benefit from such trade and would expose the Western world to some or all of the following hazards:

"An increase in communist propaganda and subversion in Latin America under the guise of trade.

"An opening of the trade barriers which we have attempted to impose around Cuba.

"A further detriment to our balance of payments position as a result of the credits which we would have to extend to communist countries.

"An increase in the flow of our technical information and know-how to the communist world.

"In short, communist governments look upon trade as a political weapon and use it as such. So long as this is true, we should attempt to deny it to them."

The Labor Day weekend will soon be here and drivers were urged today by Colonel E. I. (Mike) Hockaday, the Superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, to help insure their safety before they begin their trip. He said, "One of the first things a car owner can do is to have his vehicle safety-checked. An inspection of the vehicle's tires, lights, brakes, steering and other items of importance to safety should be made before traveling this holiday weekend. The few minutes it takes to have a car checked is time well spent."

The Patrol Superintendent also mentioned the need to be well rested before starting a trip and of the importance of getting an early start. "Make sure you are physically able to drive this holiday weekend," he declared. "Get a good rest before you get behind the wheel, and if you get tired along the way, stop to rest or let someone drive who is physically able to do so.

"The importance of getting an early start and thereby giving yourself plenty of time to reach your destination cannot be overemphasized. Trying to make up for lost time by taking unnecessary chances can be very costly. So get an early start and take your time as you travel this weekend."

Colonel Hockaday concluded by stating that a driver who follows these safety measures prior to beginning his Labor Day trip will have a better chance of not being involved in a traffic accident.

THE NEWSPAPER: ACCENTUATES POSITIVE

Newspapers sometimes are charged with shortcomings ranging from favoritism in photographic coverage to discrimination in the divorce and magistrate court transcripts.

One criticism is that they are perpetrators of gloom, exploiting the sordid and the sadistic out of a desire to sell more papers.

Of course, the charges are untrue in most cases and grossly unfair to the industry as a whole.

Stung by repeated criticism of this type, one Midwestern daily studied, measured and catalogued its own total news lineage over a period of two weeks. The result, it gleefully reported, was that something like 70 per cent of all news printed was of a positive nature, of human accomplishments and encouraging indications.

The much-maligned young by themselves fared every bit as well, and that didn't even count the weekly youth supplement, which accentuated the positive completely.

The only real argument the average critic has is that sordid news sells papers, which is, in a way, a most encouraging fact.

Because the unusual makes the real hard core news, the fat black headlines. The mean, the base, the ignoble are, fortunately, unusual.

As long as crime, violence and all manner of negative deeds are uncommon enough to rate top page play, it means kindness, courage and positive accomplishments are what is really making the world go round.

When the latter become so rare that they make the big headlines, readers will have something to worry about.

TOO BIG FOR THEIR BRITCHES

When business and industry got too big for their britches, 50 years or so ago, the people through their elected representatives cracked down on them.

As labor monopolies have grown in wealth and power, they are following the same arrogant course that brought strict controls and antimonopoly laws to business. The public has suffered great inconvenience as the result of uncontrolled strikes in recent years and more are threatened now. Due to public and national defense interests which suffer in nationwide strike warfare, President Johnson has established a study group to search for ways to cope with strikes that threaten the nation's welfare.

This is the only result that can be expected when any monopoly thumbs its nose at the public. This is not a case of being pro-labor or anti-labor. It is simply a case of being propublic interest, and the public is seeking for protection.

STEINBECK ON VIETNAM

John Steinbeck has not joined the intellectuals' protest against the Vietnam war, the Catholic Digest says. When asked why by Soviet poet Yevgeny Yevtushenko, the American novelist wrote in part:

"I am against this Chinese-inspired war. I don't know a single American who is for it. But you ask me to denounce half a war, our half. I appeal to you to join me in denouncing the whole war. If you could persuade North Vietnam to agree in good faith to negotiate the bombing would stop instantly. The guns would fall silent and our dear sons could come home. It is as simple as that, my friend, as simple as that, I promise you."

PAPER MOUNTAINS IN WASHINGTON

Most people are aware of the huge sums of money spent on such programs as the War on Poverty. But there are many less obvious ways that tax money is wasted.

One such way is the incredible amount of paperwork in the federal bureaus. Recently the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee completed a study on this subject.

The Committee reports that the government needs one billion reports each year. Two hundred fifty-five thousand employees are required just to file the reports, which take up 25 million cubic feet of space. If records now on file were torn up at the rate of one page per second, two thousand years would be needed to complete the job.

The individual citizen pays for this paperwork many times over. He pays for the paper itself. The Committee reports that the forms it analyzed cost $53 million annually.

He pays the salaries of bureaucrats whose main job is producing new forms, filling out forms, or filing old forms. If the time spent on paperwork would be devoted to other things, the federal government could substantially reduce its payroll.

Many citizens pay for this paperwork directly with the time they have to spend filling out forms sent them by the government.

The Committee made several suggestions to reduce paperwork. But the only real and lasting solution was ignored. As long as there are bureaucrats, there will be paper. The only way to eliminate the paper mountains in Washington is to return the government to its proper function: protecting the liberty of the people. HLH.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- While Ralph Nader has the country all stirred up over unsafe automobiles, some boat manufacturers are still selling boats to the public that don't meet the coast guard's minimum safety standards.

Not only are the newest pleasure boats sometimes unsafe, but they can be piloted by unlicensed operators of any age who know nothing about the rules of the sea. Result: more Americans were killed last year in boating accidents than in plane crashes, and the accident rate is soaring.

The latest available figures, for example, show an astonishing 67 per cent leap in incapacitating personal injuries from boating accidents during the single year 1965 to 1966. Property damage from these accidents shot up 55 per cent.

Meanwhile, the nation's waterways have become cluttered with eight million pleasure boats, carrying 40 million joy riders. Boating has become America's largest family sport. On a given weekend, as many as 25 million people may be out on the water.

Yet the coast guard has done a woefully inadequate job of guarding the safety of these water lovers. To patrol the incredible weekend traffic jam on the waterways, the coast guard has only 37 mobile inspection teams.

Hot-rodding teenagers churn up the water, fleegully splashing past other boats, endangering swimmers and smaller craft, without fear of apprehension. Though youths from 12 to 18 years make up only 6 per cent of the boating population, they figure in 13 per cent of all motorboating accidents.

Yet, of the 35,624 boating convictions last year, only one involved reckless operation. Half were merely registration violations, which have nothing at all to do with boating safety.

The most serious neglect, however, must be charged to the boat manufacturers who put appearances ahead of safety as the best way to increase sales. They can get away with this because the boat owner, not the manufacturer, is held responsible for meeting coast guard standards.

LANDLUBBER YACHTSMAN

Yet the typical owner today is strictly a landlubber, whose boat is a status symbol. For all this salty posturing, he has little nautical background and usually assumes his boat has passed rigid safety tests.

The craft may have glittering chrome trim and running lights that gleam impressively. Some of the latest runabouts come in pastel shades with vinyl coverings on bucket seats. To the landlubber, with a little spray on his face, his new boat may appear seaworthy enough. But the manufacturer was under no legal obligation to produce a safe boat.

This column has seen a confidential directive sent out six months ago by the coast guard to its various inspectors, notifying them to watch out for new boats with unsafe bilge ventilating systems. The directive identified boats made by the following manufacturers: Revel Craft, Egg Harbor, Hatteras, Jersey 28, Manson, Owens, Pacemaker and Trojan.

Inadequate ventilation can cause fires and explosions aboard boats. Enforcement of a new bilge safety regulation finally began this past July 1, but had been announced two years ago to become effective a year ago. At that time, the coast guard found boat owners and many boat manufacturers had made little real effort to meet the new requirements, and allowed a second year's grace. But many of the latest models still do not pass coast guard inspection.

One reason, according to some boat people, is that the regulations are "vague" and it is up to each inspecting coast guard officer to determine if the bilge ventilation is safe.

Another complaint is that new boats are sold that are not equipped with the horns, whistles, lights, fire extinguishers and other safety devices required by law.

Though boats are not inspected at the factory, the coast guard does check life preservers at the manufacturing level. Yet 91 persons drowned last year using these approved preservers at the manufacturing level. Yet 91 persons drowned last year using these approved preservers.

More than 75 per cent of last year's drowning victims didn't use life saving devices at all. In some cases, no preservers were carried on board the boats. More often, the approved brand was so big and bulky that boaters were unwilling to buy them.

With one - fifth of the population now boating and the waterways becoming ever more crowded, perhaps it's time the coast guard showed the same concern for boats as life preservers and started enforcing boat safety at the production line.

This column has solved the mystery of how a huge, gold-framed painting, which used to hang in the board room of central airlines, turned up on the wall of Texas congressman Omar Burleson's office.

The painting of an oxen-drawn, wooden-wheeled wagon, prodded along by peasants, was purchased in Europe. Someone at Central Airlines decided it didn't project the image of a 20th century airline, and the painting suddenly vanished from the board room.

A spokesman told this column that the painting was carried on the books at a value of $39.50. Its purchase price, he said, was $525. However, the airline received a $140 rebate from the shippers because of damage in transit.

The spokesman identified the purchaser as Ed Connally, one of the airline's directors, who told this column that he paid $500 for it. He immediately shipped it off, he said, to congressman Burleson.

Conally could not explain any reason for the gift, except that he and the congressman were friends. However, the congressman apparently was glad to get it, for it occupies the most prominent place on the wall of his private office.

Vanduser Club Entertains Families

VANDUSER -- The Vanduser extension club met in the community building Thursday for a potluck supper for members and their families.

The next meeting will be Sept. 21 with the program "Living With Today's Fabrics."

Early in his diplomatic career, Hugh Gibson served in the State Department in Washington. As he told it:

At the end of each day's work a group of us would go to the club for a martini. Most of the boys would order a second, and some a third, but I couln't take a second and be any good for the rest of the evening. Yet I did not want to ruin the party, so I asked the bartender to fill my glass with plain water on the second and all later rounds. As he did not want to confuse my drink with the others, he placed a pickled baby onion in it.

Soon the boys discovered that I was drinking along with them and yet remained sober. At first they credited me with an extraordinary capacity to absorb alcohol. Later some thought that it might be the drink, and began to order a "Gibson." Again the bartender came to my rescue. He served those who ordered a Gibson a new kind of powerhouse, almost all gin and very little vermouth, and of course put an onion in it to make it appear genuine. The Gibson has traveled far, farther than I have. - Hugh Gibson

Mr. and Mrs. Orrin Hunt Sr. were honored with an open house celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary Aug. 13 from 2 to 5 p.m. in their home.

Hostesses were the couple's daughters, Mrs. Oscar McNeil, Oak Ridge, Tenn., and Mrs. Virginia Wray, Tiptonville, Tenn.

Their son, Orrin Hunt Jr., Columbus, Ohio, could not be present but telephoned during the afternoon.

Miss Carolyn Clinton and Miss Ann Nix, Fruitland, Tenn., great niece of the Hunts, presided at the register.

Nieces of the couple served refreshments from a table covered with a white embroidered linen tablecloth centered with a crystal bowl of gold tinted baby mums and golden candles.

The Dorcas Sunday School class of Trinity Baptist church gave an arrangement of the same flowers for the buffet.

The only ones present who attended the wedding of the Hunts 50 years ago were Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Scruggs of Humboldt, Tenn., in whose home the wedding took place.

During the afternoon Sikeston friends as well as friends and relatives from Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana and Tennessee called.

When icy windstorms blow me in
And nasty blizards snow me in,
There's simply nothing horrida
Than cards from friends in Florida.

Just about anybody can get on radio these days, thanks to the beeper show, a two-way conversation program between listener and disc jockey. It's named for the high-pitched tone that the FCC requires when a telephone conversation is being taped. Slips are rare, but do occur. Paul Benzaquin, who runs a beeper show on Boston's WEEI, had author Louis Lomax as a guest and was chatting with a woman caller who said she read in bed.

"I think Louis Lomax is just as exciting on the air as he is in bed," she declared to several thousand listeners.

French Woman Drives Truck, Farms 313 Acres

PARIS, Ohio (AP)— Martha Henrich, slender, single and 22-years-old, has two jobs—farmer and truckdriver.

"I'd rather wear out than rust out sitting around," she says.

During the summer she farms 313 acres turning out about 300 head of cattle a year.

When things slow down in the winter she jumps in the cab of a tractor-trailer and hauls steel around the country.

"I've seen no disrespect from men despite my competing with them," she says. "I try to act like a lady and that usually results in even rough, tough truck drivers treating me like a lady."

Regena Duniphan Marries William H. Morgan Jr.

CHAFFEE--Miss Regena Sue Duniphan of Chaffee and William H. Morgan Jr. of Advance exchanged wedding vows Friday evening as they stood beneath an ivy-entwined arch at the altar of First Baptist church. On either side of the arch were graduated arrangements of blue and white chrysanthemums and gladioli. Palms lined the approach to the altar.

Organ music was provided by Miss Ruth Ellen Huey, and Mrs. Gary Reutzel, Advance, was soloist. The ceremony was conducted by the Rev. R. L. Robinson, who also read Scripture during a symbolic candlelighting ceremony in which the couple took part. The altar tapers were lighted by Miss Tracy Wagoner and Bradley Wagoner of Cape Girardeau.

Miss Duniphan, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Loman H. Duniphan, was given in marriage by her father. Morgan is the son of Mrs. Marjorie Morgan and William H. Morgan of Advance.

The bride chose for her wedding a gown of Chantilly lace styled in a loosely fitting cage with rounded neckline and short sleeves, worn over an organza sheath. A train of tulle and lace fell from her shoulders to cathedral length, and her tiered veil of illusion was affixed to a petite crown of lace embroidered with pearl and crystal petals. Her bridal bouquet was a yellow-throated orchid nested in white rosebuds and baby's breath.

Miss Duniphan was attended by her sister, Miss Cinda Duniphan, as maid of honor, Miss Carol Glastetter, Cape Girardeau, Miss Janelle Cowles, Springfield, Miss Mary Margaret Miller and Miss Kerri Bolton bridesmaids. Their formal empire gowns of blue peau de soie and Alencon lace were identical. Blue ostrich feathers with matching nosetip veils were worn in their hair, and each carried a bouquet of white pompon chrysanthemums. Stacy Duniphan, assisted by Ginger Ward of Advance, served her sister as flower girl.

Brothers of the broom who attended him were Benny Morgan, best man, and Ford Morgan along with Don Berry of Advance, Kent Duniphan, brother of the bride, and Ed Hastings, St. Louis, groomsmen. Steve Duniphan, also a brother of the bride, and Charles Vickery were ushers. The ringbearers were Todd Ward and Rhett Morgan of Advance.

At the reception afterward the lace covered tea table was centered with a four-tiered cake and further appointed with a silver coffee service and crystal punch bowl. Presiding in service were Mrs. Charles Wagoner, Cape Girardeau, Mrs. Buddy Beck, Houston, Tex., Mrs. Troy Lingle, Arnold, Mrs. Ivan Ward and Mrs. Jack Morgan, Advance, and Mrs. H. R. Shaw, Mrs. Larry Abbott of Advance presided at the guest book.

While serving with the Royal Canadian Mounted Police in the Calgary district more than 20 years ago, I did a great deal of work with the Sarcee Indians. When I was leaving the area, one old chief whom I had arrested a number of times for drunkenness presented me with a fancy beaded hatband. I wore it proudly and showed it to many people. Recently I ran into an old friend who was able to translate the Indian characters on the hatband for me: "THE BIG BLUE-EYED LONGNOSED S.O.B."

"It is remarkable what can be accomplished with ordinary abilities, if right desire is coupled with determination and diligence. So-called drudgery and disappointment are often forms of discipline that lead to large success. Formidable difficulties vanish before courageous and indomitable spirit. Many of life's greatest victories have been due to inexhaustible patience, resolution, and industry, rather than to extraordinary talent. Daily self-discipline and self-culture are essential to highly progressive life. You are shaping your destiny by the quality and direction of your daily thought habits."

Vanduser Club Entertains Families

VANDUSER -- The Vanduser extension club met in the community building Thursday for a potluck supper for members and their families.

The next meeting will be Sept. 21 with the program "Living With Today's Fabrics."

Early in his diplomatic career, Hugh Gibson served in the State Department in Washington. As he told it:

At the end of each day's work a group of us would go to the club for a martini. Most of the boys would order a second, and some a third, but I couln't take a second and be any good for the rest of the evening. Yet I did not want to ruin the party, so I asked the bartender to fill my glass with plain water on the second and all later rounds. As he did not want to confuse my drink with the others, he placed a pickled baby onion in it.

Soon the boys discovered that I was drinking along with them and yet remained sober. At first they credited me with an extraordinary capacity to absorb alcohol. Later some thought that it might be the drink, and began to order a "Gibson." Again the bartender came to my rescue. He served those who ordered a Gibson a new kind of powerhouse, almost all gin and very little vermouth, and of course put an onion in it to make it appear genuine. The Gibson has traveled far, farther than I have. - Hugh Gibson

Cards Gain Half Game With Split

Jack Lamabe extended his string of consecutive scoreless innings to 25 Monday night as, he shut out the Mets, 6-0, to give the Cardinals a split with New York in a twi-night doubleheader. The Mets won the opener, 4-2.

St. Louis got 12 hits off winning pitcher Jack Fisher, but left ten men on base. The loss went to Card starter Steve Carlton.

The nightcap was Lamabe's game all the way as he cut down his former teammates on five hits. It was his third victory in a St. Louis uniform and gives him a 3-6 record.

Tim McCarver hit a two-run homer and Orlando Cepeda and Dal Maxvill each singled in a pair of runs to lead the Cardinal attack.

Although the Cardinals managed only a split, they picked up a half-game on National League runnersup, Philadelphia, Cincinnati and Chicago, and now lead the league by ll full games.

In St. Louis tonight, Dick Hughes hopes to pick up his 14th victory against only four losses for the Cardinals. He will be opposed by Cal Koonce of the Mets.

A six-day sprint has swept the Philadelphia Phillies to the head of the pack in the National League's runner-up derby.

Now they're trying to drum up a match race with St. Louis swifties. . .but Manager Gene Mauch isn't looking past the next nine innings.

"We're still looking for one in a row," Mauch said Monday night after the Phillies edged Cincinnati 3-2 for their eighth straight victory. . . and displayed the first symptoms of pennant fever.

The Phils' winning streak has vaulted them from sixth to second place in less than a week. They lead the Reds and Chicago Cubs by one percentage point. . . but trail the league-leading Cardinals by ll lengths.

San Francisco pelted Los Angeles 7-0, Pittsburgh nipped Atlanta 4-3 in 10 innings and the Cubs shaded Houston 6-5 in other NL games.

John Callison's 13th homer snapped a 1-1 tie in the sixth inning at Cincinnati and the Phils added another run on a bases-loaded balk by Gerry Arrigo on the way to their 21st triumph in 29 starts.

But they needed four innings of scoreless relief from veteran Dick Farrell to keep the streak alive after the Reds closed the gap in the bottom of the sixth on Pete Rose's single, Lee May's double and a ground out.

The save was Farrell's seventh in 44 relief efforts this season.

Roberto Clemente poled his 19th and 20th homers, the second one breaking a 3-3 tie in the 10th to end a four-game losing streak for the Pirates. Atlanta had tied the game with two runs in the eighth on Rico Carty's double and singles by Felipe Alou, Tito Francona and Hank Aaron.

Gaylord Perry stymied Los Angeles on three hits and fanned nine, leading the Giants to their 10th victory in 13 games against the Dodgers this year. Willie Mays knocked in two runs with a third-inning single and scored from second base on a wild pitch in the Giants' three-run sixth.

Adolfo Phillips doubled in the sixth inning, took third on a bunt and scored on Dave Giusti's wild pitch, giving the Cubs their one-run margin over the Astros. Giusti and rookie Doug Rader homered for Houston.

Namath Named In NY Law Suit

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Namath, quarterback of the New York Jets, apparently has not heard the last of his unauthorized Aug. 3 trip to New York.

Namath left the Jets' camp at Peekskill, N.Y., without permission because of what he said was personal matters and when he returned to the team, owner Sonny Werblin said he would be fined. Later, Coach Weeb Ewbank said "action has been taken."

Now, Charles Parmiter, the sports editor of Time Magazine, has filed papers in Supreme Court alleging that Namath and two other men assaulted him in an East Side bar at 3 a.m. on the morning of Aug. 4.

Parmiter's court action, filed by his attorney, Stuart M. Speiser, asks that Namath and Murray Schaff, owner of the Open End Bar where the incident allegedly took place, reveal in court the names of two men Parmiter says helped Namath assault him.

According to Speiser, the identities are needed so that the two men can be included as co-defendants with Namath and Schaaf in court action which Parmiter said he intends to start.

In a supporting affidavit, Parmiter says the incident occurred after he recognized Namath at the bar, greeted him and offered to shake hands.

"Without any warning or provocation," the affidavit continues, Namath grabbed Parmiter by the lapels, slammed his head back over the top of a cigarette machine and held him there "approximately the next 10 or 15 minutes."

Parmiter's affidavit adds that another man, who Namath called Mickey, struck him during this period and that a third man prevented others from interceding.

The complaint claimed Namath was intoxicated and that the attack was caused by Namath's dislike for the press.

"I don't need any of you $100 a week creeps to go around writing about me," Namath is alleged to have said to Parmiter.

Duck, Goose Seasons Set By State

JEFFERSON CITY -- The Missouri Conservation Commission has approved a 40-day duck season for 1967, Nov. 1 - Dec. 10, and has established a goose season similar to that of last year.

The duck season is five days shorter than the 1966 hunt, and limits have been curtailed on two species, canvasback and wood duck. The mallard limits, are the same as last year's.

Overall limits on ducks are four daily and eight in possession, including no more than one wood duck daily and two in possession, one canvasback daily and in possession, and two mallards daily and four in possession.

The 1967 regulation reflects poor duck breeding and duckling survival conditions that were reported at the meeting in St. Louis recently of the Mississippi Flyway Council. Before those reports came in, biologists had considered this an excellent duck year. The U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service said, however, that the adverse conditions developed late, after the earlier and more favorable conditions had raised the hopes of duck hunters and conservationists.

Limits on coots this year will be 10 daily and 20 in possession; on gallinules, 15 daily and 30 in possession; and on mergansers, five daily and 10 in possession, including not more than one hooded merganser daily or two in possession.

The goose season, except in two special zones of northern Missouri, will be Oct. 20 through Dec. 3 and Dec. 21 through Jan. 14. In the Swan Lake and Squaw Creek Zones the season will be Oct. 20 through Dec. 28.

Possession limits on Canada geese have been doubled over last year's. Limits on geese are five daily and five in possession including no more than two Canadas daily or four in possession.

At Squaw Creek, Canada geese will be legal only during the first 30 days, or until Nov. 18, and the limit on Canadas in this zone will be one daily and two in possession. At Swan Lake, the limit on Canadas will be one daily until the end of October. From Nov. 1, through the remainder of the season, the limits will be the same as those for the rest of Missouri. The Swan Lake Zone is bounded by U.S. highways 65 and 36 and Missouri highways 5 and 240. The Squaw Creek Zone includes Atchison and Holt Counties and those parts of Nodaway and Andrew Counties west of U.S. 71.

A new federal regulation this year will make it illegal to ship or transport geese except as personal baggage of the hunter who shot them.

More Light On Athletics

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A former United Airlines steward ess, who is now married, has what she calls a "nightmare recollection" of a trip she made last season with the Kansas City Athletics to Baltimore.

Mrs. Michal Sheridan, now living in Milwaukie, a suburb of Portland, sid she spoke out because of recent news accounts about the firing of Manager Alvin Dark and owner Charles Finley's disciplinary efforts.

Of the Athletics, she says, "they came on the plane with a rush, and shouting for beer. I and the other hostess weren't able to serve it fast enough to suit them and they became quite rough about it.

"They wouldn't fasten their seat belts. They decided to play cards, so some of them sat on top of the seat backs and we couldn't get them down.

"Always they wanted and demanded beer, more beer and still more. They'd throw the cans on the floor and we hotesses were almost crying in our despair. We couldn't even get down the aisle without a struggle, players were sitting with their legs across it and wouldn't move.

"The flight captain tried to key them down and how rude they were to him! They called him 'bussy,' meaning 'bus driver.' The time came to eat and that was a dreadful experience, with all of them yelling to be served at once."

She said she didn't think Dark was aboard.

RECORD BREAKER Zachary Zorn of Buena Park, Calif., paced a strong team of United States swimmers in the Pan-American games at Winnipeg, Canada, when he flashed home with a time of 53.8 seconds in the 100-meter freestyle.

Harrelson's Foot Turns Into Cash

NEW YORK (AP) — "That's the first time I ever stuck my foot in my mouth and came out with a better break and more money," Ken Harrelson, the Kansas City castoff, said after joining the Boston Red Sox here last night for the American League pennant race.

"It's the best thing that ever happened to me. I'm convinced we're going to win the pennant."

Harrelson, first baseman for the Athletics, was given his release after sharply criticizing Kansas City owner Charles Finley in the recent player controversy.

After Finley had fired Manager Al Dark, Harrelson called Finley "a menace to baseball."

"Nine clubs made me offers, seven in the American League and two National League clubs," the first baseman said. "I turned down one offer that would have paid me about $50,000 more than the Red Sox.

"But I wanted to play with this club. They're young and aggressive. They've got a lot of good years ahead of them, and I want to be a part of it. Did you know that at 25 I'm about the oldest guy on the club?"

He declined to say how much he got for signing with the Red Sox.

"It was a nice little bundle," he said, "and I'm making more money than I did with the A's."

MU To Take Bids Sept. 19

COLUMBIA -- The University of Missouri, Columbia, will receive bids Sept. 19 on a press box at Memorial Stadium that will be financed by gifts from alumni and friends of the athletic department.

The proposed press box will offer expanded space for sports writers, increase the number of radio and television booths, and provide more than 250 seats in the lower level of the three-story addition for University guests and contributors to the press box fund.

The addition will replace the present inadequate and deteriorated facility, that is particularly unsuitable for electronic coverage and is inadequate for present - day news coverage. It was built in 1948.

Bids were obtained on a proposed press box a year ago but were rejected because offers exceeded estimates and funds available. Since that time, the St. Louis architectural firm of Hammond, Charle and Burns has revised construction plans for a three-story rather than a five-story addition.

It still includes 2½ times more space for sports writers, increases to 10 the number of booths available for radio and television coverage, and provides a top floor for use of news and television photographers. The press box will be reached by an elevator to be installed outside the present stadium.

By shortening the width of the present press box, the University will pick up an additional 300 or more seats in the Stadium proper. No spectators will be displaced from seats they have held traditionally.

Plans call for a start on construction, if bids are found acceptable, immediately after the close of the 1967 football season so the press facilities will be available with the opening of the 1968 season.

42nd Running Of Hambletonian

DU QUOIN, Ill. (AP)— Imagine going along and having all four wheels of your car lock.

That's how it feels sometimes to Art Hult, driver and trainer of Speed Model, a tempermental filly.

The big, brown daughter of Speedster ranks with three colts — Dazzling Speed, Speedy Streak and Keystone Pride— as top favorites in a field of a dozen 3-year-old trotters going in the $122,650 Hambletonian Wednesday.

"If things don't set just right, Speedy Model puts on a bucking act," says Hult, who at 26 could become the youngest driver ever to win the Kentucky Derby of harness racing.

"She acts up for no reason at times and then again it takes something definie to set her off. At Vernon Downs a clod of mud flew up and hit her in the stomach and she started bucking like a bronco.

"At Goshen, just as the mobile gate closed and the race started, she set all four feet and came to a squealing stop.

"We've put cups on the sides of her eyes and that seems to have helped. She can look around but not back.

Speed Model has won five of 15 starts this year. Several times in her theatrical tantrums she even has tried to kick Hult out of the sulky.

Lately she has been on her good behavior, finishing second and fourth in two heats of the Review Futurity in Springfield, won by Dazzling Speed and Speedy Streak, and capturing one division of the split American National at Chicago's Sportsman's Park.

"There has been a lot of push for gun laws, but these people are attacking a symptom rather than the disease. If they are really interested in the situation, they could try to find out what causes crime and mental disorder. The amount of research and activity in this field is barely minimal."

Arkansas State Gridders To Report Wednesday

JONESBORO, Ark. -- Head football coach Bennie Ellender and his staff will greet 80 Arkansas State University gridders tomorrow to begin preparations for what is expected to be the toughest schedule in the school's history.

The Indians will undergo physicals Wednesday and will pose for photographers and answer newsmen's questions Thursday beginning at 9 a.m. Practice sessions will be held daily beginning Friday at 8:30 a.m. and 3 p.m.

The Indians return 19 starters from last season's 7-2 squad and they will be joined by eight other lettermen, plus five transfers and several promising redshirts and recruits.

The Indian staff will be intact with one addition. Returning coaches include Wayne Armstrong, defensive line, Bill Davidson, offensive line, and Bill Templeton, offensive backfield. Wilson Waites, former head coach at Trinity University, was hired the summer as defensive backfield coach.

One of the positions that has to be filled is that of halfback left vacant by the graduation of All-American Terry Gwin, who set a Southland Conference rushing record last fall. Two-year starter at defensive halfback, Gary Hankins was moved to offensive spot in spring drills and showed he had potential to fill the gap.

Two defensive spots are in need of immediate help and two others are likely to be filled by transfers. Former University of Arkansas star Tommy Sain is counted on to replace linebacker Truman Moore's spot and another U of A transfer Clovis Swinney is a probable tackle starter.

Monster man and the defensive halfback spot of Hankins are two spots that must be filled. Oft-injured Gwin Wood is the top candidate at the roving linebacking job and transfer Steve Struble and kicker Gary Elliott will battle for the halfback position.

The Indians will kick off their 1967 schedule Sept. 23 by hosting Western Michigan University, the pre-season favorite in the Mid-American Conference, in a 8 p.m. game.

Cards Gain Half Game With Split

Jack Lamabe extended his string of consecutive scoreless innings to 25 Monday night as, he shut out the Mets, 6-0, to give the Cardinals a split with New York in a twi-night doubleheader. The Mets won the opener, 4-2.

St. Louis got 12 hits off winning pitcher Jack Fisher, but left ten men on base. The loss went to Card starter Steve Carlton.

The nightcap was Lamabe's game all the way as he cut down his former teammates on five hits. It was his third victory in a St. Louis uniform and gives him a 3-6 record.

Tim McCarver hit a two-run homer and Orlando Cepeda and Dal Maxvill each singled in a pair of runs to lead the Cardinal attack.

Although the Cardinals managed only a split, they picked up a half-game on National League runnersup, Philadelphia, Cincinnati and Chicago, and now lead the league by ll full games.

In St. Louis tonight, Dick Hughes hopes to pick up his 14th victory against only four losses for the Cardinals. He will be opposed by Cal Koonce of the Mets.

A six-day sprint has swept the Philadelphia Phillies to the head of the pack in the National League's runner-up derby.

Now they're trying to drum up a match race with St. Louis swifties. . .but Manager Gene Mauch isn't looking past the next nine innings.

"We're still looking for one in a row," Mauch said Monday night after the Phillies edged Cincinnati 3-2 for their eighth straight victory. . . and displayed the first symptoms of pennant fever.

The Phils' winning streak has vaulted them from sixth to second place in less than a week. They lead the Reds and Chicago Cubs by one percentage point. . . but trail the league-leading Cardinals by ll lengths.

San Francisco pelted Los Angeles 7-0, Pittsburgh nipped Atlanta 4-3 in 10 innings and the Cubs shaded Houston 6-5 in other NL games.

John Callison's 13th homer snapped a 1-1 tie in the sixth inning at Cincinnati and the Phils added another run on a bases-loaded balk by Gerry Arrigo on the way to their 21st triumph in 29 starts.

But they needed four innings of scoreless relief from veteran Dick Farrell to keep the streak alive after the Reds closed the gap in the bottom of the sixth on Pete Rose's single, Lee May's double and a ground out.

The save was Farrell's seventh in 44 relief efforts this season.

Roberto Clemente poled his 19th and 20th homers, the second one breaking a 3-3 tie in the 10th to end a four-game losing streak for the Pirates. Atlanta had tied the game with two runs in the eighth on Rico Carty's double and singles by Felipe Alou, Tito Francona and Hank Aaron.

Gaylord Perry stymied Los Angeles on three hits and fanned nine, leading the Giants to their 10th victory in 13 games against the Dodgers this year. Willie Mays knocked in two runs with a third-inning single and scored from second base on a wild pitch in the Giants' three-run sixth.

Adolfo Phillips doubled in the sixth inning, took third on a bunt and scored on Dave Giusti's wild pitch, giving the Cubs their one-run margin over the Astros. Giusti and rookie Doug Rader homered for Houston.

Namath Named In NY Law Suit

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Namath, quarterback of the New York Jets, apparently has not heard the last of his unauthorized Aug. 3 trip to New York.

Namath left the Jets' camp at Peekskill, N.Y., without permission because of what he said was personal matters and when he returned to the team, owner Sonny Werblin said he would be fined. Later, Coach Weeb Ewbank said "action has been taken."

Now, Charles Parmiter, the sports editor of Time Magazine, has filed papers in Supreme Court alleging that Namath and two other men assaulted him in an East Side bar at 3 a.m. on the morning of Aug. 4.

Parmiter's court action, filed by his attorney, Stuart M. Speiser, asks that Namath and Murray Schaff, owner of the Open End Bar where the incident allegedly took place, reveal in court the names of two men Parmiter says helped Namath assault him.

According to Speiser, the identities are needed so that the two men can be included as co-defendants with Namath and Schaaf in court action which Parmiter said he intends to start.

In a supporting affidavit, Parmiter says the incident occurred after he recognized Namath at the bar, greeted him and offered to shake hands.

"Without any warning or provocation," the affidavit continues, Namath grabbed Parmiter by the lapels, slammed his head back over the top of a cigarette machine and held him there "approximately the next 10 or 15 minutes."

Parmiter's affidavit adds that another man, who Namath called Mickey, struck him during this period and that a third man prevented others from interceding.

The complaint claimed Namath was intoxicated and that the attack was caused by Namath's dislike for the press.

"I don't need any of you $100 a week creeps to go around writing about me," Namath is alleged to have said to Parmiter.

Duck, Goose Seasons Set By State

JEFFERSON CITY -- The Missouri Conservation Commission has approved a 40-day duck season for 1967, Nov. 1 - Dec. 10, and has established a goose season similar to that of last year.

Arkansas State Gridders To Report Wednesday

JONESBORO, Ark. -- Head football coach Bennie Ellender and his staff will greet 80 Arkansas State University gridders tomorrow to begin preparations for what is expected to be the toughest schedule in the school's history.

The Indians will undergo physicals Wednesday and will pose for photographers and answer newsmen's questions Thursday beginning at 9 a.m. Practice sessions will be held daily beginning Friday at 8:30 a.m. and 3 p.m.

The Indians return 19 starters from last season's 7-2 squad and they will be joined by eight other lettermen, plus five transfers and several promising redshirts and recruits.

The Indian staff will be intact with one addition. Returning coaches include Wayne Armstrong, defensive line, Bill Davidson, offensive line, and Bill Templeton, offensive backfield. Wilson Waites, former head coach at Trinity University, was hired the summer as defensive backfield coach.

One of the positions that has to be filled is that of halfback left vacant by the graduation of All-American Terry Gwin, who set a Southland Conference rushing record last fall. Two-year starter at defensive halfback, Gary Hankins was moved to offensive spot in spring drills and showed he had potential to fill the gap.

Two defensive spots are in need of immediate help and two others are likely to be filled by transfers. Former University of Arkansas star Tommy Sain is counted on to replace linebacker Truman Moore's spot and another U of A transfer Clovis Swinney is a probable tackle starter.

Monster man and the defensive halfback spot of Hankins are two spots that must be filled. Oft-injured Gwin Wood is the top candidate at the roving linebacking job and transfer Steve Struble and kicker Gary Elliott will battle for the halfback position.

The Indians will kick off their 1967 schedule Sept. 23 by hosting Western Michigan University, the pre-season favorite in the Mid-American Conference, in a 8 p.m. game.

Morley Clubs New Madrid, 15-2

MORLEY -- A nine-run first inning by Morley SCC sent it on its way to a 15-2 victory over New Madrid in the SEMO independent baseball tournament last night.

Larry Hall gave up two runs and five hits to New Madrid while loser Jim Ferrenburg was tagged for five hits and 15 runs.

Ferrenburg allowed nine bases on balls in Morley's first inning spurt.

Morley's third seeker, Larry Burden hit a seventh inning homer to add to the lead.

Tonight's schedule finds Morley SCC meeting Advance at 8 p.m.

Apple Production Down in Missori

JEFFERSON CITY-Missouri's apple harvest will be 400,000 bushels short of last year's production of 1,050,000 bushels if pre-harvest estimates are correct, the employment service reports.

The United States department of agriculture and Missouri department of agriculture also estimate the state peach harvest at 320,000 bushels compared to last year's harvest of 280,000 bushels.

Southeast Missouri reports an increase in out-state labor needs with recruitment and order filling underway. Wisconsin and Minnesota are the principal recipients of Missouri labor.

Labor demands in the Sikeston area are limited to top farm equipment operators. Out-of-area commitments are slow in starting for the corn and tomato harvest.

Twenty-one in-plant workers and seven equipment operators were accepted last week. The out-area movement is expected to be heavy for the next two weeks.

The farm labor information station and rest camp, route two, served 101 migrants last week with seven staying in Missouri, 17 enroute to Ohio, six going to Indiana and the balance of 56 returning to Texas.

There is some activity in watermelon harvest in the Kennett region. The supply of good melons in the central part of the county is plentiful. Demand is slow.

Soybean chopping continues to be in volume with demand and supply of labor in balance.

Demand for farm labor in the Cape Girardeau area continues to be unusually light. All crops, fruit and vegetables are in good condition.

Major farm activities in the Caruthersville area are disking and leveling lay out land. Most of the chopping and cultivating has been completed.

Cotton picking, from estimates of several persons contacted, will probably start about the last week in September or the first week in October. All of the ginners contacted expect to gin from 50 per cent to 75 per cent of what they ginned last year. Two or three days a week is all that the larger ginners are expecting to be able to operate during the season. There is some recruiting for cannery workers for Minnesota.

No farming activity is in progress in the Poplar Bluff area. The need of rain is beginning to show in soybeans.

Four applicants are being processed at the labor mobility office, 211 Pine St., Poplar Bluff. Six applicants have been referred in the past 10 days.

Sondra Harnes Sings at Meeting In St. Louis

ADVANCE -- Miss Sondra Harnes of Advance, a sophomore at Southeast Missouri State College, in Cape Girardeau, sang at the National Federation of Music Clubs convention Sunday in St. Louis.

Miss Harnes won the NFMC national scholarship to the Inspiration Point Fine Arts Colony in Eureka Springs, Ark., this summer and sang leading roles of Adina in "Elixir of Love" and Belinda in "Dido and Aeneas." The former opera was presented twice in Eureka Springs and twice in Little Rock, Ark. They were two of the six operas presented by the members of the colony.

At the college she is a student of Miss Mary Lou Henry, a member and soloist of the a capella choir and Trebleaires. She is also a member of the College Players.

Miss Harnes was asked to sing at the convention by the national chairman of the music clubs' federation, Mrs. Hal H. McHaney of Kennett.

In singing before the delegates, she was accompanied by Mrs. Eleanor Kinder of St. Louis, who was formerly Miss Harnes' vocal instructor in grade school and high school in Advance.

Unpaid Bills Form Post Office Cloud

POPLAR BLUFF--A complex and controversial legal snarl has developed in connection with nonpayment of construction material bills on the new post office.

A total of $56,209.80 in mechanics liens had been filed Friday in the Butler county circuit court and at least one lawsuit has been employed to enforce collection on a lien. A lien is defined legally as a claim on the property of another as security against payment of a debt. A lawsuit is required to enforce a lien.

The suit filed involves Steward Steel Supply Co., Sikeston, who names as defendants all persons principally involved in the post office ownership and construction. The suit asks payment of $9,176.01 on account with the Keystone Lumber Co., Cleveland, Okla., plus $2,000 for 'refusal to pay" and another $2,000 for attorney fees. Keystone, known also as the Price Construction Co., Cleveland, Okla., is the prime contractor on the job.

Also named as defendants in the suit to enforce the lien against Keystone are:

The owners of the land on which the post office stands. Mr. and Mrs. Morrison L. Clevelen, Poplar Bluff, Mr. and Mrs. Earl C. Pierce, Ponte Verdra, Fla., and Mrs. Dorris Serafini, Poplar Bluff. (Mrs. Clevelen and Mrs. Serafini are sisters and Mrs. Pierce is a niece of Mrs. Clevlen's)

The owners of the building itself, Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Rubin, Coral Gables, Fla.

The institution where the Rubin's borrowed money to build the post office, Old Colony Trust Co., Boston.

A firm whose pension fund actually comprised the money lent by Old Colony, the Houghton-Mifflin Co., a Boston publisher.

An insurance firm who is the bonding agency for the contractor, Continental Casualty Co.

And, an attorney, Robert C. Hyde, who is named as trustee by Old Colony in a deed of trust.

The post office department apparently is not directly involved legally in the situation. But it is expected that at least political pressure will be exerted by the department to help the delinquent bill payment.

The Daily American Republic has learned that Congressman Paul C. Jones is concerned with the problem and has made inquiries of post office dept. officials in Washington.

The contractor is bonded for $235,000 and attorneys have indicated that the building suppliers who have not been paid probably will be protected in the long run.

In the ownership and construction arrangement the post office is not owned by the government.

The owners of the land lease their property to the Rubins, who borrowed money and had the building constructed in their name. The Rubins in turn lease the structure to the post office dept.

The government has not officially accepted the building from the contractors. The department says there still remain construction items which have not been completed.

It is reported by Poplar Bluff firms who have not been paid that the contractors are refusing to answer long distance telephone calls or acknowledge mail inquiries.

The following liens have been filed in connection with the Post Office project:

E. C. Robinson Lumber Co., Poplar Bluff, against the Leonard Bauer Plumbing Co., Jefferson City, $170.67.

B-D-R Engineering Corp, Kansas City, against Price Construction Co., $800.31.

Huffman Wholesale Supply Co., Poplar Bluff, against the Bauer plumbing firm, $1,870.05.

Pat H. Castrop Lathing & Plastering Co. against the Price firm, $7,334.

Porter - DeWitt Construction Co., Poplar Bluff, against Price, $8,018.36.

Ceco Steel Products Corp., Kansas City, against Keystone Lumber Co., $8,667.47.

Steward Steel Supply Co., against Keystone, $9,076.91.

Lawson Electric Supply Co., Tulsa, against Keystone, $8,921.17.

Tile Center, Inc., St. Louis, against Price and Keystone firms, $6,553.

And Kasten Masonry Sales, Inc., Cape Girardeau, against Price, Keystone, Mr. and Mrs. Rubin, Mr. and Mrs. Clevlen and Mrs. Serafini.

Family Gathers Sunday

Attending were M/Sgt. Hubert Murphy and Debbie, Rick and Pam, Sacramento, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. Hurshel Murphy and daughters, Sandy, Annett and Darlene, Modesto, Ill.; Joyce Poore, St. Louis; Hershall Murphy and family, Mr. and Mrs. George Burris and sons, Tom, Dennis and Kaven and Mr. and Mrs. James Griffin and son David and daughter Donna, and James and Mike Murphy.

On maneuvers in Germany, our infantry platoon was ordered to fall back across a river. Everyone managed to wade across except the radio operator, who stepped into a hole and sank from sight. Weighted down by the radio strapped to his back, the operator calmly walked along the bottom until he reached shallow water and emerged. Our young career lieutenant rushed up to praise the radioman for creditable behavior in a frightening situation. Then, putting in a plug for his chosen profession, he asked dramatically, "Without the benefit of Army training and discipline, do you realize where you would probably be now?"

"Yes, sir," answered the dripping soldier, "In Hartford, Connecticut."

The post office department apparently is not directly involved legally in the situation. But it is expected that at least political pressure will be exerted by the department to help the delinquent bill payment.

The Daily American Republic has learned that Congressman Paul C. Jones is concerned with the problem and has made inquiries of post office dept. officials in Washington.

The contractor is bonded for $235,000 and attorneys have indicated that the building suppliers who have not been paid probably will be protected in the long run.

In the ownership and construction arrangement the post office is not owned by the government.

The owners of the land lease their property to the Rubins, who borrowed money and had the building constructed in their name. The Rubins in turn lease the structure to the post office dept.

The government has not officially accepted the building from the contractors. The department says there still remain construction items which have not been completed.

It is reported by Poplar Bluff firms who have not been paid that the contractors are refusing to answer long distance telephone calls or acknowledge mail inquiries.

The following liens have been filed in connection with the Post Office project;

E. C. Robinson Lumber Co., Poplar Bluff, against the Leonard Bauer Plumbing Co., Jefferson City, $170.67.

B-D-R Engineering Corp, Kansas City, against Price Construction Co., $800.31.

Huffman Wholesale Supply Co., Poplar Bluff, against the Bauer plumbing firm, $1,870.05.

14-Million-Bale Cotton Crop Urged for 1968

PORTAGEVILLE -- Thursday the Missouri Cotton Producers association in an open executive committee meeting culminated a series of producer group meetings and questioning of producers regarding the status of the cotton industry and preferences for 1968.

Due to the acreage diversion program and to poor climate conditions for two years, the supply of cotton has descreased to a point where it is necessary to increase cotton production or risk by default permanent loss of markets to synthetic fibers and foreign growths.

Potential adjustments by the department of agriculture were considered and unanimously endorsed. Missouri Cotton Producers Associaton's President, T. A. Haggard, prepared a letter to the department of agriculture in which he said, "assuming an 8.3 million bale production in 1967 and a steady offtake, it would appear that if we are to obtain an adequate stock of merchandise to effectively market our produce, we must produce somewhere in the vicinity of 13 1/2 to 14 million bales in 1968".

Recommendations to the department of agriculture reflected the importance of maintaining producer net income both over the short and long run and were:

(1) Limitation of the diversion program to a 10 per cent mandatory diversion.

(2) Effective discouragement of the continued production of undesirable cotton by instituting a system of premiums and discounts.

(3) Preparation for legislation that would properly recognize our carryover of undesirable cotton as a victim of the technological progress and authorize a separate procedure to effect its utilization.

(4) No change in the current skip row regulations.

(5) An accelerated emphasis on production costs in cotton research.

Thomas Phillips

Scholarship Given Thomas Phillips

Phillips is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ardell Phillips, 803 Pine St., Sikeston. He will be a freshman when school begins in the fall.

Phillips attended Sikeston high where he was active in the National Forensic League and tennis. He plans to be a lawyer.

During the summer, Phillips has worked as announcer. He lists these activities as his principal interests: announcing for radio, debating, playing for a rock and roll band, chess, tennis, swimming and poetry.

Phillips' sponsor is the Federal Materials Company of Cape Girardeau.

Prizes awarded by the Sikeston office - portable tv, Gordon Albrecht, Illmo; electric knife, W. L. DeWitt, Sikeston; mixer, Arlen Hurts, Oran; electric can opener, Mrs. Sam Coffee, Catron; lantern, Thomas Walker, Bertrand; water jug, Marin Cates, Painton; steam iron, H. L. King, Morehouse, card table, Mrs. G. W. Weathers, ice cream freezer, R. M. Vann, and set of tools, L. N. Gilliland, all of Sikeston. A cured ham was awarded to Everett Stewart, Poplar Bluff.

Campaign Draws Near

WASHINGTON, D.C., -- Thousands of petitioners - led by a strong contingent of rank - and-file employees (both union and non-union) are set to hit the pavements as the start of the Oklahoma Right to Work petition campaign draws nearer.

"Operation LUV" (Let Us Vote!) - a 90-day campaign to get 200,000 (only 101,000 are needed) initiative petition signatures calling for a vote of the people on a proposal to outlaw the compulsory union shop begins Tuesday, September 5.

Elsewhere on the Right to Work front:

. . .The recently organized Californians for Right to Work announced the election of officers and key Committee Chairmen.

. . . .An Idaho Right to Work organization has been formed with officers scheduled to be announced at a press conference next week.

. . . .An employee organization- "Pennsylvania Employees For Right to Work" - has been launched and is starting to circulate petitions among rank-and-file workers calling for the enactment of a Right to Worklaw in Pennsylvania.

PROSPECTS EXCELLENT

Reed Larson, Executive Vice President of the National Right to Work Committee, predicts success in getting enough petition signers. "In 1962," he said, "approximately 4,000 Right to Work boosters participated in a petition and drive and gathered the signatures of 213,-000 registered voters.

"I consider the prospects excellent that the voters of Oklahoma will approve the Right to Work amendment. However, because of the expected legal delays, it will probably be early 1969 before a referendum is held.

"With the start of the campaign imminent, desperate union professionals have stepped up their campaign to prevent a vote of the people on the issue of compulsory unionsim. The announcement that Columbia pictures objected to the 'LUV' theme because of the soon - to - be - held premiere of their motion picture 'LUV' came on the heels of a threat by union bigwigs to promote a union boycott of the film. The combination of events suggests that the bosses will not hesitate to browbeat or intimidate any individual, group or company in their efforts to perpetuate compulsory union membership - the source of their excessive economic and political power.

"This attempt failed as their petition for a temporary injunction was turned down. The U.S. District Court Judge rightly ruled for free 'LUV'.

"The state AFL-CIO is also attempting to pressure union members supporting Right to Work into withdrawing this support. Raymond C. Losornio, a vice president of Local 386 of the Federation of Federal Employees, has revealed that Oklahoma AFL-CIO officials exerted pressure on his employer in an attempt to get him to resign his post on the Board of Trustees for Oklahomans For The Right To Work. A group of union officials, led by state AFL-CIO President Alva Hollingsworth called on his employer, made some unsubstantiated accusations and thus threatened his job and the income and security of his family- all because he opposes compulsory unionism."

Larson added that the action of the Tulsa NAACP was of even greater significance than the amusing controversy over "free LUV." He said, "The union 'pros' had barely launched their attack on 'LUV' when they were stunned by the announcement that Oklahoma Negroes will not oppose Right to Work unless racial discrimination by unions is ended."

Some 300 Negroes who attended a rally sponsored by the Tulsa NAACP August 6 gave a rousing ovation to State Senator E. Melvin Porter when he said, "We won't listen to labor leaders who sit behind big desks and hand out big smiles, big cigars and money to a few people. What we want are iron - clad assurances that Negroes may become union plumbers, carpenters and workers in the other crafts, because we want jobs - and that's where the money is!"

Senator Porter reminded them, "Negroes defeated Right to Work the last election by voting 99.44 per cent against it, but we won't be fooled again."

Not surprisingly, this explosion stunned the union bosses. After summoning help from AFL-CIO headquarters in Washington, they called on Senator Porter in an effort to reclaim his support.

The Senator was unmoved, according to Tulsa World reporter Travis Walsh. Commenting on the refusal of craft unions to accept Negro apprentices, Senator Porter said, "They haven't done much on their own initiative. I'll have to wait and see."

The referendum resulting from the 1962 petition campaign was stalled for more than two years by a nuisance lawsuit filed by officials of the Oklahoma State AFL-CIO. At the expense of their dues - paying membership, they challenged the validity and sufficency of the petition and their protest was ultimately thrown out by the Oklahoma Supreme Court. More than 700,000 votes were cast in May 1964 on the Right To Work amendment, which failed by a narrow margin, 48½ per cent to 51½ per cent.

IDAHO.

In Boise, Idaho Citizens For Right To Work, will be incorporated next week. Ron Johnston, an Orofino lumberman who has been serving as Chairman of the Organizing Committee said, "This new organization will serve as a voice for the hundreds of thousands of Idaho citizens who oppose compulsory unionism. We expect to mount a hard - hitting grassroots educational campaign with a goal of either legislative action in 1969 or a 1970 referendum."

CALIFORNIA.

In California, officers and key committee chairmen have been elected for the recently - organized Californians For Right To Work. E. Russell White of Oakland and formerly associated with Mill College was named as President and Executive Director and Rex L. Coons of Anaheim, Vice President and Finance Chairman.

The California effort is considered "long - range" but is not lightly regarded by the labor bosses. Only a few weeks ago a union publication in Richmond, California (the Contra Costa County Labor Journal) admitted that the new Right to Work drive "is not to be taken lightly. Studies made for the AFL-CIO and for one Bay Area labor council indicate that the leadership of many unions is out of touch with a large number of their members."

Gillnetters Catch Drops in Maine

PORTLAND, Maine, (AP) — Ronald W. Green, state sea and shore fisheries commissioner, says the total catch by gillnetters in Maine dropped from 5,768,223 pounds in 1947 to 2,208,033 in 1966.

Gill nets, about six feet high and two miles long, trap fish that swim into their four-inch mesh. One edge is held on the ocean bottom by lead weights and the top is held up by floats.

"Yes, I used to shoot tigers in Africa," asserted the big game hunter.

"But there are no tigers in Africa," protested the suspicious one.

"Certainly not!" exclaimed the hunter. "I shot them all!"

SUBLIMATION

Today I doctored Susan's tiny toe,
Told Tressa stories of my goats, and so,
Forgot awhile my small ones far away,
All grown up now (no one holds Time at bay).
When anyone's own child invades your heart,
Then every small one, too, must be a part.

Read any good Commandments lately?

Though we don't live in Old Testament times, the Ten Commandments are still a good guide for life.

Ponder them.

They cover all our relations with our Creator, our family, our fellow man.

And if we could just follow them all, wars would cease, intolerance and prejudice would end, crime and immorality would be non-existent.

In short, a perfect world.

But none of us is perfect. Which is the very reason these great commandments were created.

Can the world be made a better place to live in? Can people really obey all the Ten Commandments? Start with yourself. And start at the place where you worship. If you put your faith to work every day, why the world is that much better already!

Thomas Phillips

Scholarship Given Thomas Phillips

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- Thomas Phillips of Sikeston, has been awarded a fees and incidental expenses scholarship at Southeast Missouri State College, President Mark Scully announced.

Phillips is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ardell Phillips, 803 Pine St., Sikeston. He will be a freshman when school begins in the fall.

Phillips attended Sikeston high where he was active in the National Forensic League and tennis. He plans to be a lawyer.

During the summer, Phillips has worked as announcer. He lists these activities as his principal interests: announcing for radio, debating, playing for a rock and roll band, chess, tennis, swimming and poetry.

Phillips' sponsor is the Federal Materials Company of Cape Girardeau.

Large Crowd Attends Annual PCA Meeting

A total of 1,062 signed the register with attendance estimated at 1,300 at the 34th annual Sikes-Production Credit Association meeting Tuesday.

Gene Lancaster and Mrs. Sue Neal, both of the Portageville office, received five - year service pins.

Prizes awarded by the Sikeston office - portable tv, Gordon Albrecht, Illmo; electric knife, W. L. DeWitt, Sikeston; mixer, Arlen Hurts, Oran; electric can opener, Mrs. Sam Coffee, Catron; lantern, Thomas Walker, Bertrand; water jug, Marin Cates, Painton; steam iron, H. L. King, Morehouse, card table, Mrs. G. W. Weathers, ice cream freezer, R. M. Vann, and set of tools, L. N. Gilliland, all of Sikeston. A cured ham was awarded to Everett Stewart, Poplar Bluff.

Campaign Draws Near

WASHINGTON, D.C., -- Thousands of petitioners - led by a strong contingent of rank - and-file employees (both union and non-union) are set to hit the pavements as the start of the Oklahoma Right to Work petition campaign draws nearer.

"Operation LUV" (Let Us Vote!) - a 90-day campaign to get 200,000 (only 101,000 are needed) initiative petition signatures calling for a vote of the people on a proposal to outlaw the compulsory union shop begins Tuesday, September 5.

Elsewhere on the Right to Work front:

. . . .The recently organized Californians for Right to Work announced the election of officers and key Committee Chairmen.

. . . .An Idaho Right to Work organization has been formed with officers scheduled to be announced at a press conference next week.

. . . .An employee organization- "Pennsylvania Employees For Right to Work" - has been launched and is starting to circulate petitions among rank-and-file workers calling for the enactment of a Right to Work law in Pennsylvania.

PROSPECTS EXCELLENT

Reed Larson, Executive Vice President of the National Right to Work Committee, predicts success in getting enough petition signers. "In 1962," he said, "approximately 4,000 Right to Work boosters participated in a petition and drive and gathered the signatures of 213,-000 registered voters.

"I consider the prospects excellent that the voters of Oklahoma will approve the Right to Work amendment. However, because of the expected legal delays, it will probably be early 1969 before a referendum is held.

"With the start of the campaign imminent, desperate union professionals have stepped up their campaign to prevent a vote of the people on the issue of compulsory unionsim. The announcement that Columbia pictures objected to the 'LUV' theme because of the soon - to - be - held premiere of their motion picture 'LUV' came on the heels of a threat by union bigwigs to promote a union boycott of the film. The combination of events suggests that the bosses will not hesitate to browbeat or intimidate any individual, group or company in their efforts to perpetuate compulsory union membership - the source of their excessive economic and political power.

"This attempt failed as their petition for a temporary injunction was turned down. The U.S. District Court Judge rightly ruled for free 'LUV'.

"The state AFL-CIO is also attempting to pressure union members supporting Right to Work into withdrawing this support. Raymond C. Losornio, a vice president of Local 386 of the Federation of Federal Employees, has revealed that Oklahoma AFL-CIO officials exerted pressure on his employer in an attempt to get him to resign his post on the Board of Trustees for Oklahomans For The Right To Work. A group of union officials, led by state AFL-CIO President Alva Hollingsworth called on his employer, made some unsubstantiated accusations and thus threatened his job and the income and security of his family-all because he opposes compulsory unionism."

Larson added that the action of the Tulsa NAACP was of even greater significance than the amusing controversy over "free LUV." He said, "The union 'pros' had barely launched their attack on 'LUV' when they were stunned by the announcement that Oklahoma Negroes will not oppose Right to Work unless racial discrimination by unions is ended."

Some 300 Negroes who attended a rally sponsored by the Tulsa NAACP August 6 gave a rousing ovation to State Senator E. Melvin Porter when he said, "We won't listen to labor leaders who sit behind big desks and hand out big smiles, big cigars and money to a few people. What we want are iron - clad assurances that Negroes may become union plumbers, carpenters and workers in the other crafts, because we want jobs - and that's where the money is!"

Senator Porter reminded them, "Negroes defeated Right to Work the last election by voting 99.44 per cent against it, but we won't be fooled again."

Not surprisingly, this explosion stunned the union bosses. After summoning help from AFL-CIO headquarters in Washington, they called on Senator Porter in an effort to reclaim his support.

The Senator was unmoved, according to Tulsa World reporter Travis Walsh. Commenting on the refusal of craft unions to accept Negro apprentices, Senator Porter said, "They haven't done much on their own initiative. I'll have to wait and see."

The referendum resulting from the 1962 petition campaign was stalled for more than two years by a nuisance lawsuit filed by officials of the Oklahoma State AFL-CIO. At the expense of their dues - paying membership, they challenged the validity and sufficency of the petition and their protest was ultimately thrown out by the Oklahoma Supreme Court. More than 700,000 votes were cast in May 1964 on the Right To Work amendment, which failed by a narrow margin, 48½ per cent to 51½ per cent.

IDAHO.

In Boise, Idaho Citizens For Right To Work, will be incorporated next week. Ron Johnston, an Orofino lumberman who has been serving as Chairman of the Organizing Committee said, "This new organization will serve as a voice for the hundreds of thousands of Idaho citizens who oppose compulsory unionism. We expect to mount a hard - hitting grassroots educational campaign with a goal of either legislative action in 1969 or a 1970 referendum."

CALIFORNIA.

In California, officers and key committee chairmen have been elected for the recently - organized Californians For Right To Work. E. Russell White of Oakland and formerly associated with Mill College was named as President and Executive Director and Rex L. Coons of Anaheim, Vice President and Finance Chairman.

The California effort is considered "long - range" but is not lightly regarded by the labor bosses. Only a few weeks ago a union publication in Richmond, California (the Contra Costa County Labor Journal) admitted that the new Right to Work drive "is not to be taken lightly. Studies made for the AFL-CIO and for one Bay Area labor council indicate that the leadership of many unions is out of touch with a large number of their members."

Gillnetters Catch Drops in Maine

PORTLAND, Maine, (AP) — Ronald W. Green, state sea and shore fisheries commissioner, says the total catch by gillnetters in Maine dropped from 5,768,223 pounds in 1947 to 2,208,033 in 1966.

Gill nets, about six feet high and two miles long, trap fish that swim into their four-inch mesh. One edge is held on the ocean bottom by lead weights and the top is held up by floats.

"Yes, I used to shoot tigers in Africa," asserted the big game hunter.

"But there are no tigers in Africa," protested the suspicious one.

"Certainly not!" exclaimed the hunter. "I shot them all!"

SUBLIMATION

Today I doctored Susan's tiny toe,
Told Tressa stories of my goats, and so,
Forgot awhile my small ones far away,
All grown up now (no one holds Time at bay).
When anyone's own child invades your heart,
Then every small one, too, must be a part.

Read any good Commandments lately?

Though we don't live in Old Testament times, the Ten Commandments are still a good guide for life.

Ponder them.

They cover all our relations with our Creator, our family, our fellow man.

And if we could just follow them all, wars would cease, intolerance and prejudice would end, crime and immorality would be non-existent.

In short, a perfect world.

But none of us is perfect. Which is the very reason these great commandments were created.

Can the world be made a better place to live in? Can people really obey all the Ten Commandments? Start with yourself. And start at the place where you worship. If you put your faith to work every day, why the world is that much better already!

Ann Landers

All Homes Need One Adult

Dear Ann Landers: Right now I am burning up. Will you please tell me what to do about a 28-year-old husband who has less sense than his 3-year-old son?

Ever since we first married I have asked to please turn his socks, undershirts and shorts right side out before he throws them in the hamper. It really slows up my Mondays to have to turn everything.

Last week I hit on what I thought was the ideal solution. As usual, everything was wrong side out, so I just washed his socks and undershirts wrong side out and I ironed them that way, too. He never said a word. He just wore them that way.

What do I do now? -- PRUDENCE

Dear Prudence: Every home should have at least one adult. Grow up and be the adult in your family before your children notice that their parents are a couple of kids.

In less time than it took you to write this letter you could have turned every garment in the hamper inside out or outside in and saved yourself a case of apoplexy in the bargain.

Dear Ann Landers: I have been going with this man for two years. He is kind and sweet, but he has a habit that bothers me. He keeps running out of money.

I kept track of our last 10 dates and I paid seven times. This goes for movie tickets, dinners and baseball games. He never warns me. He just tells me when we get to the box office (or when the check comes) that he is a little short, and will I "help him out"? Last night we decided to drive to Akron for supper and we were half way there he pulled into a gas station and said, "Fill 'er up." Then he turned to me and said, "Do you have $6.40?"

Please don't say I should tell him to get lost. I love this man and I don't want to stop seeing him. What I want you to tell me is how I can get him to stop sticking me with the tab. Thank you -- INSUFFICIENT FUNDS

Dear In: Look, Lady, I write an advice column. I am not a magician. This bird is a free loader and you might as well know it.

If you want to continue to go with him, do so with your eyes open. And carry plenty of money with you at all times because you're going to need it.

Dear Ann Landers: I don't know who else to ask so I am asking you. How come parents can go around swearing and using any kind of language they want to and when us kids do it we get slapped across the mouth?

My mother says adults can say whatever they please because they are adults. I don't think this is a very good excuse. Do you? -- LOOSE TOOTH

Dear Loose: When your mother says adults can say whatever they please it means they do not have to worry about getting slapped across the mouth by a parent. This, in my opnion, is a pretty poor excuse for swearing and using gutter language.

A foul mouth is a liability to adults as well as children. It can also get to be a habit. So why don't you imitate something that will add to your personality, not detract from it?

Drinking may be "in" to the kids you run with -- but it can put you "out" for keeps. You can cool it and stay popular. Read "Booze and You -- For Teen-Agers Only." Send 35¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

If You Were the Judge

Wisdom Goal Which May Not Be Reached

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Carl didn't get anything out of college, not even himself. After four years of studying, he was told that he wasn't eligible to graduate. Indignant, he sued the college for the return of his tuition.

"The college catalogs, and faculty members too," he told the judge "falsely represented that I would be taught wisdom and truth. The fact is, I was taught neither."

"That's not our fault," a college official answered. "You can lead a boy to college, but you can't make him think."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you return Carl's tuition because he wasn't taught wisdom?

This is how the judge ruled: Carl flunked again. The judge held that "wisdom" is not a subject which can be taught and no rational person would believe any claim to the contrary. "Wisdom," the judge noted, is a hoped-for end product of education, experience and ability which many seek and many fail to obtain.

Music Dollar Jingle

NEW YORK (AP) — A lot more than the hills are alive with the sound of music in the United States.

The echo is being heard from the mountains, to the prairies, to the oceans, accompanied by a louder and louder tune on the cash registers of the music industry.

In 1930, there were 13 million amateur musicians banging, tootling and strumming away in the United States, according to the American Music Conference.

But by the beginning of this year, the ranks of the music men, women and children had swollen to more than 41 million. About 15 million of these range in age from 4 to 21, and the other 26 million are over 21.

"Amateur musicians in the United States increased by an average of approximately a million annually from 1950 to 1961," says the conference, which describes itself as an educational organization supported by major segments of the music industry.

"From 1962 to 1966, however, the average annual increase exceeded 1.8 million with dramatic increases of 2.3 million in 1965 and again in 1966.

"America's amateur musicians are almost entirely responsible for the long record-breaking upswing in sales of new instruments, instrument accessories and instructional aids that started 20 years ago. They have also contributed substantially to improved sales of sheet music in recent years."

The conference says these combined sales, which totaled $90 million in 1941, jumped to $955 million in 1966 and surpassed "the dollar volume of all records sold, and the combined dollar volumes of all spectator sports, still and movie cameras, comic books and playing cards."

How do you explain this current boom, boom, boom in an industry that was in decline before World War II?

"There is a higher level of education in the country and a greater need for individual creativity," says Marion Egbert, the conference's educational director. "This combination is part of the great atmosphere that exists for music making."

Egbert also cites new teaching techniques which make learning music fun and not a chore— plinking out the "Skater's Waltz" on the piano every day for a month is out— and the "growing awareness generally in education that things like music and art are needed to balance their programs. Almost every school today has a music program."

Or, as the member of a youthful rock 'n' roll group puts it, musical instruments are a way for young people to express themselves.

State Fair Record Breaker

SEDALIA, Mo. (AP) — Officials of the Missouri State Fair reported today the 1967 exposition outdrew all previous ones in both money and attendance.

W. C. Askew, secretary, reported for the first time in many years the fair's returns to the general revenue fund exceeded the General Assembly's appropriations.

He said $471,000 had been deposited with the state's general fund. This is $21,000 above the appropriation for the fair.

"It will be sometime before the actual receipts are determined," he said, "but it will be over the appropriation. Also, considerable sales tax monies were collected at the fair and they go beyond any previous year according to tax representatives who reported the gross was up over last year.

Askew said a final check showed attendance was 7,506 ahead of the 1966 fair.

Threshing Bee

WAUKOMIS, Okla. (AP) — An organization dedicated to preserving steam-operated threshers recently held its 11th annual Waukomis Threshing Bee.

Some 4,000 persons stood in a hot sun to watch steam threshers shatter grain. Stacks of wheat and oats, carefully preserved for the occasion, were erved for the occasion, were tossed into grinding separators.

Sight and Teeth Rules Are Eased

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Plans are afoot these days to take the teeth out and put glasses into the medical requirements for Los Angeles policemen and firemen.

If a plan proposed by the board of Civil Service commissioners is approved, applicants won't have to possess natural teeth— dentures, if acceptable, will do— and eyesight can be less perfect, as long as duty can be performed.

The dimension which is missing from men's lives today is reverence. Joseph L. Bishop

Weaver to Get Crack at New TV Role

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Dennis Weaver, with one hit and some misses behind him, is returning to television this season, playing a husband and father in an early evening CBS series whose title role is enacted by a large, black bear.

"Gentle Ben," however, is promised as an adventure series with a difference. Even though it comes off the production lines of Ivan Tors, who gave us Judy, the chimp; Clarence, the cross-eyed lion of "Daktari," and Flipper, the superdolphin, Weaver insists that Ben, 650 pounds of tractability and friendliness, will be treated in the scripts as a family pet, unendowed with human sensitivities.

"No one in this series," said Weaver, "will ever get into a mess and say, 'I'm hurt, Ben, go get dad.'"

"Gentle Ben" follows "Lassie" on the network's Sunday evening schedule— and Lassie has been getting dad, the rangers or— most often— doing the rescuing herself, for 13 years without a goof. The two shows should provide an interesting study in contrast.

Weaver made an indelible impression on television audiences during the nine years he played Chester, Marshal Dillon's limping, drawling, worrying side-kick in "Gunsmoke." After he quit the show, he went through a difficult period attempting to shake himself of the Chester identity.

"It was natural to be identified that strongly," he said. "The character was extremely visual, which puts the actor into a pigeon-hole— particularly since Chester has stayed in view on "Gunsmoke" reruns.

After that he made a couple of pilots, neither of which worked out, a short-lived series called "Kentucky Jones," and since then has been busy in motion pictures.

In "Gentle Ben," shot in Florida, Weaver plays a game warden and father of an 8-year-old boy with a pet bear. Ben is an American bear who was raised as a pet by a family in Minnesota and is as tame— and gentle— as the ordinary family dog, Weaver says. However, he is handled by five trainers, three of them on the set with him at all times.

"He's friendly with everyone," said Weaver, "everyone who will feed him, that is. Bears are omnivorous, so it doesn't matter whether it's honey, crackers, doughnuts, just as long as it's food."

The actor observed that the usual format for such a show is merely a convenient frame in which to place the animals.

"Our format is to tell a story, and use the animal to enhance it— but as a pet animal, not something human under a furry exterior. I don't think that is really necessary and just detracts from the believability," he said.

"And if you aren't faced with the necessity of having the animal wrap up everything neatly at the end, the base of the series can be much broader."

Although "Gentle Ben" is aimed at young audiences, Weaver thinks that adults may find it interesting.

"It's the opposite of 'Gunsmoke,'" he said. "That was made for adults

Music Dollar Jingle

NEW YORK (AP) — A lot more than the hills are alive with the sound of music in the United States.

The echo is being heard from the mountains, to the prairies, to the oceans, accompanied by a louder and louder tune on the cash registers of the music industry.

In 1930, there were 13 million amateur musicians banging, tootling and strumming away in the United States, according to the American Music Conference.

But by the beginning of this year, the ranks of the music men, women and children had swollen to more than 41 million. About 15 million of these range in age from 4 to 21, and the other 26 million are over 21.

"Amateur musicians in the United States increased by an average of approximately a million annually from 1950 to 1961," says the conference, which describes itself as an educational organization supported by major segments of the music industry.

"From 1962 to 1966, however, the average annual increase exceeded 1.8 million with dramatic increases of 2.3 million in 1965 and again in 1966.

"America's amateur musicians are almost entirely responsible for the long record-breaking upswing in sales of new instruments, instrument accessories and instructional aids that started 20 years ago. They have also contributed substantially to improved sales of sheet music in recent years."

The conference says these combined sales, which totaled $90 million in 1941, jumped to $955 million in 1966 and surpassed "the dollar volume of all records sold, and the combined dollar volumes of all spectator sports, still and movie cameras, comic books and playing cards."

How do you explain this current boom, boom, boom in an industry that was in decline before World War II?

"There is a higher level of education in the country and a greater need for individual creativity," says Marion Egbert, the conference's educational director. "This combination is part of the great atmosphere that exists for music making."

Egbert also cites new teaching techniques which make learning music fun and not a chore—plinking out the "Skater's Waltz" on the piano every day for a month is out—and the "growing awareness generally in education that things like music and art are needed to balance their programs. Almost every school today has a music program."

Or, as the member of a youthful rock 'n' roll group puts it, musical instruments are a way for young people to express themselves.

State Fair Record Breaker

SEDALIA, Mo. (AP) — Officials of the Missouri State Fair reported today the 1967 exposition outdrew all previous ones in both money and attendance.

W. C. Askew, secretary, reported for the first time in many years the fair's returns to the general revenue fund exceeded the General Assembly's appropriations.

He said $471,000 had been deposited with the state's general fund. This is $21,000 above the appropriation for the fair.

"It will be sometime before the actual receipts are determined," he said, "but it will be over the appropriation. Also, considerable sales tax monies were collected at the fair and they go beyond any previous year according to tax representatives who reported the gross was up over last year.

Askew said a final check showed attendance was 7,506 ahead of the 1966 fair.

Threshing Bee

WAUKOMIS, Okla. (AP) — An organization dedicated to preserving steam-operated threshers recently held its 11th annual Waukomis Threshing Bee.

Some 4,000 persons stood in a hot sun to watch steam threshers shatter grain. Stacks of wheat and oats, carefully preserved for the occasion, were erved for the occasion, were tossed into grinding separators.

Blythe Hottest

NEW YORK (AP) — The high temperature in the nation Monday was 113 degrees at Blythe, Calif. The overnight low was 41 at Reno, Nev.

Sight and Teeth Rules Are Eased

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Plans are afoot these days to take the teeth out and put glasses into the medical requirements for Los Angeles policemen and firemen.

If a plan proposed by the board of Civil Service commissioners is approved, applicants won't have to possess natural teeth—dentures, if acceptable, will do—and eyesight can be less perfect, as long as duty can be performed.

The dimension which is missing from men's lives today is reverence. Joseph L. Bishop

Weaver to Get Crack at New TV Role

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Dennis Weaver, with one hit and some misses behind him, is returning to television this season, playing a husband and father in an early evening CBS series whose title role is enacted by a large, black bear.

"Gentle Ben," however, is promised as an adventure series with a difference. Even though it comes off the production lines of Ivan Tors, who gave us Judy, the chimp; Clarence, the cross-eyed lion of "Daktari," and Flipper, the superdolphin, Weaver insists that Ben, 650 pounds of tractability and friendliness, will be treated in the scripts as a family pet, unendowed with human sensitivities.

"No one in this series," said Weaver, "will ever get into a mess and say, 'I'm hurt, Ben, go get dad.'"

"Gentle Ben" follows "Lassie" on the network's Sunday evening schedule—and Lassie has been getting dad, the rangers or—most often—doing the rescuing herself, for 13 years without a goof. The two shows should provide an interesting study in contrast.

Weaver made an indelible impression on television audiences during the nine years he played Chester, Marshal Dillon's limping, drawling, worrying side-kick in "Gunsmoke." After he quit the show, he went through a difficult period attempting to shake himself of the Chester identity.

"It was natural to be identified that strongly," he said. "The character was extremely visual, which puts the actor into a pigeon-hole—particularly since Chester has stayed in view on "Gunsmoke" reruns.

After that he made a couple of pilots, neither of which worked out, a short-lived series called "Kentucky Jones," and since then has been busy in motion pictures.

In "Gentle Ben," shot in Florida, Weaver plays a game warden and father of an 8-year-old boy with a pet bear. Ben is an American bear who was raised as a pet by a family in Minnesota and is as tame—and gentle—as the ordinary family dog, Weaver says. However, he is handled by five trainers, three of them on the set with him at all times.

"He's friendly with everyone," said Weaver, "everyone who will feed him, that is. Bears are omnivorous, so it doesn't matter whether it's honey, crackers, doughnuts, just as long as it's food."

The actor observed that the usual format for such a show is merely a convenient frame in which to place the animals.

"Our format is to tell a story, and use the animal to enhance it—but as a pet animal, not something human under a furry exterior. I don't think that is really necessary and just detracts from the believability," he said.

"And if you aren't faced with the necessity of having the animal wrap up everything neatly at the end, the base of the series can be much broader."

Although "Gentle Ben" is aimed at young audiences, Weaver thinks that adults may find it interesting.

"It's the opposite of 'Gunsmoke,'" he said. "That was made for adults
